A Good Half-Pint Belief in Immortality Build-Up from Manchukuo Complaint from Selassie

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

Concerning the plane accident that killed eleven, Nellie Granger, young "hostess" of the plane, tells a reporter: "There was some ice on the wings, but it didn't appear serious."

Ice on wings may always become serious, and airplane makers, with government co-operation if necessary, should find a way to make it impossible. The engine exhaust wastes more heat than would be needed to melt any ice accumulation.

The courageous young woman attendant, who recovered consciousness after the crash, then helped the only surviving man and woman, ran four miles to notify the company, returned to the scene, finding her way through the underbrush, to do her duty.

Air companies select lightweight girls for "hostesses," to hold down the load. Miss Granger, weighing only 101 pounds, is described by reporters as a "half-pint" girl.

There is a good deal in that half-pint. The young lady will continue flying.

This telegram comes: "Kindly send by Western Union, my expense, to be read at Easter Symposium service, Methodist Episcopal Church of Oxnard, California, message on why you believe in immortality. May we wish you a very happy Easter? Gratefully, Reverend Thomas Grice."

Certain belief in immortality is found in religious faith, greatest comfort of the human race, and there are mundane arguments for immortality. It is not unreasonable to credit the Ruler of the universe with common sense and justice. The universe is made up of matter, force and spirit. The first two have already survived one eternity, stretching back of us, and are on the way into the eternity that stretches ahead.

Who believes that "spirit" alone is obliterated, made over fresh each morning like hot rolls? If there were no immortality, the billions of human beings coming and going on this earth would be so many human jokes. Man, unlike the animals, knows that death must come, and almost universally hopes for immortality. Only a demon would plant that hope in the human mind to disappoint it at the end.

The self-satisfied unbeliever may say: "To talk of man going down into the grave, and coming out later, with wings, into a new life is preposterous."

If caterpillars could talk, you might hear one say: "It is preposterous to talk of a caterpillar going into the dark cocoon and coming out later with brilliant wings into new sunshine." Yet that is just what the caterpillar does.

Regularly, with strange, interesting stamps and curious Oriental lettering, big envelopes, labeled in plain English, "Department of Foreign Affairs, Manchu Empire Hsinking," come to American newspapermen from the "Manchu Bureau of Information, Department of Foreign Affairs."

You read, "His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor, exchanges New Year greetings with his Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Japan." The first imperial majesty is the well-chosen Japanese puppet, descendant of the old Manchus and once boy Emperor of China, representing "the Emperor of Japan" on the Manchukuo throne.

You read: "An Outer Mongolian plane makes a reconnoitering flight over Manchukuo territory, January 7.

"Frontier patrols drive out about a dozen Outer Mongolian soldiers.

"A Soviet military plane makes a forced landing in Manchukuo territory. The plane is burnt by the aviator, who returns to Soviet territory, escorted by bandits.

"Twenty Outer Mongolian soldiers cross the frontiers.

"About thirty Outer Mongolian troops unlawfully cross the frontier.

"Manchukuo infantry officers, surveying on the frozen Amur, are fired upon by Soviet soldiers.

"His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor, celebrates his thirty-first birthday."

Japan knows the value of publicity, builds up her case, carefully, in advance.

Mussolini knows the text about not turning back after putting your hand to the plough, and tells his cabinet that Ethiopia's armies must be absolutely wiped out. What is more, he says, they will be wiped out.

Haile Selassie, with three Italian units converging on his headquarters, complains to the League of Nations that Italy is spraying his entire front with

BANDITS GET $5000 IN FALL RIVER MILL

BEAT OFFICER AND CASHIER, MISS $1000

Fall River, April 9—Three bandits disarmed a policeman and robbed the paymaster of the King Philip "B" Mill in Pleasant street of $5000 at noon today.

They escaped with the money after beating the paymaster and his police guard. They left more than $1000 behind them.

The bandits fired two shots point-blank before they grappled with their victims.

Neither Edward Sherman, the paymaster, nor Patrolman Thomas Ryan, the police guard, was hit.

The youthful bandits tore the payroll boxes out of Sherman's grasp during a bitter battle, but one box was dropped.

The robbers fled in a stolen blue sedan, bearing Rhode Island registration plates. The car went in the direction of New Bedford, Sherman said.

The machine the bandits used was reported stolen from Providence this morning.

The mill belongs to the Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates, Inc.

Bolshevik Professors

THE Soviet wing of the Columbia Teachers' College faculty and their allies, in the persons of Professors George S. Counts and Charles A. Beard, is now leading a fight in Washington to repeal the law of Congress designed to stop the teaching of Communism in the public schools of the District of Columbia.

Apparently it is not enough for professors of this type to MAR THE REPUTATION OF THEIR UNIVERSITY and REDUCE IT TO A COMMUNIST SEEDING GROUND for the cultivation of sedition and revolution.

The class rooms of Columbia do not offer sufficient scope for their nefarious designs against their country.

They must imitate their colleague Tugwell and carry their incitements to CLASS CONFLICT and SOCIAL UPHEAVAL to THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

An American Congress, it would seem, has no right to forbid the use of its appropriations for the teaching or advocating of Communism in the public schools.

WE have Professor Counts' own word for it that "the SCHOOL must shape attitudes and even IMPOSE IDEAS."

Therefore if the teachers believe in Com-

250 FACING NEW POLICE TRANSFERS

Wholesale transfers were awaited today in the new deal police shakeup.

Approximately 250 lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen now on permanent detail will be transferred probably early next week.

They are in addition to 120 patrolmen, 20 sergeants and eight lieutenants to be permanently detailed by official transfer to posts at which they are now temporarily serving.

FALLON AT HELM

New Superintendent Edward W. Fallon took the helm. Retiring Superintendent Martin H. King started a vacation.

There was an unconfirmed report that Lieutenant William Caffrey, traffic division, may be raised to a captaincy to make an even ten. He is a friend of Mayor Mansfield.

The mayor continued today to withhold his signature from the retirement papers of Deputy Superintendent McDevitt, Captain Skillings, Lieutenant O'Donnell, Sergeant Ryan and Patrolman Whitehead. He has not received King's papers.

SOX BACK HOME; PLAY AT H. C.

Boston's Red Sox, carrying the city's pennant hopes, arrived here today, rimed for the season's opening next week after the regular annual sojourn in the southland.

Detrained at the Back Bay station, Manager Joe Cronin and his squad, minus several members who dropped from the train for a day at their homes, prepared to leave for Worcester.

This afternoon they were to engage with Jack Barry's star-studded Holy Cross nine in their last exhibition tilt before the intercity series with the Bees, which opens tomorrow at National League Park.

Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx, slugging first baseman of the Sox, also have an engagement this evening at the Boston Evening American Sports Broadcast over Stations WNAC, Boston, and WEAN, Providence.

Miss Ann Masters, New England's first girl racing handicapper, and Bob Quinn, new owner of the Bees, are also to take part in the broadcast.

STOCKS MIXED

New York, April 9 (INS)—The stock market maintained an irregular front today as pre-holiday evening-up continued the dominating factors in dealings.

Price swings for the most part were of small proportions and trading proceeded at an extremely light pace.

PINK FINAL PRINTS BIG NEWS FIRST

Get today's news today!

Don't wait for morning papers.

Get the Boston Evening American PINK FINAL.

The Boston Evening American yesterday smashed the opposition with a complete scoop on the biggest Boston police story since the 1919 strike.

The forced retirement of Supt. Martin H. King, the appointment of Captain Edward W. Fallon as superintendent, the naming of nine new captains, the transfers of captains, lieutenants and sergeants—an unprecedented shakeup—was printed first in this newspaper.

The Boston Evening American was the only paper to complete the coverage of this spectacular news story with the list of all changes and the disclosure that Mayor Mansfield would fight the retiring of Deputy Superintendent McDevitt, Captain Skillings and others.

Nothing was left for the morning papers.

The final edition carried the complete racing results and the mutuel figures, and told of two more winners for those who are following Ann Marsters' racing selections.

It was a signal triumph, of excep-

LYNN MAN SAVES BOY FROM BLAZE

Like a human fly, Charles Emmons, 35, of Vine street, Lynn, clambered up over piazzas on his blazing three-story home today to save a boy, trapped on the top floor.

Emmons clasped the arms of eight-year-old Marshal Dick about his neck, then clambered down again safely.

Twelve other persons were saved from the flaming premises. One of them, Mrs. Ida Erlich, 65, grandmother of the rescued boy, was overcome by smoke and taken to Lynn Hospital. She had to be carried out.

Solomon Mamber and his wife, Eva, carried their 6-year-old son, Philip, to the street.

Emmons had first led his three children to safety before his daring rescue of the Dick boy. Emmons lived on the first floor.

Mr. and Mrs. John James, Mr. and Mrs. James Clarletta, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stronjias were others who fled.

The fire, according to Lynn police, started on the second floor. Its origin is as yet undetermined. Damage was estimated at $3500.

American Plants In Easter Demand

The Buy American surge will leave thousands of Japanese-grown Easter lilies unsold this year, a survey among florists showed today.

Taking their place in American homes on Easter Sunday will be American-grown azaleas and hydrangeas.

Anticipating a strong last-minute demand for these plants, wholesalers began their distribution today to bolster up stocks of the retail florists.

According to one dealer, Japanese lily bulbs have been shipped here this year in a ratio of 1000 to 1 over Bermuda bulbs, but from early selling indications the market will be glutted by the Japanese plants when the Easter purchases are through.

COURT HALTS PRIVATE TELEGRAM SEIZURE BY FCC

COMMISSION'S ASSURANCE AVOIDS INJUNCTION

Washington, April 9 (US)—Seizure of private telegraph messages by the Federal Communications Commission for use of the Senate Lobby Committee or any other snooping governmental agency was virtually ended yesterday by Chief Justice Wheat in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Accepting a disclaimer of its intention to seize any more telegrams for the use of the committee, Chief Justice Wheat ruled that it would be unnecessary to grant the motion of William Randolph Hearst for a preliminary injunction restraining the commission from making such seizures, pending the trial of the case brought by Mr. Hearst against the committee and the commission.

"SIN NO MORE" PROMISE

The purpose of a preliminary injunction, the Chief Justice said, is to maintain the status quo until final determination of the issue.

In view of the commission's promise made in open court to "sin no more" Justice Wheat denied the motion for the preliminary injunction.

The chief justice ordered the commission on to answer the bill of complaint, thereby compelling it to go to trial on the merits of Mr. Hearst's charges. This means that the commission will have to disclose in open court exactly what it did at the request of the committee.

On several occasions during argument, Justice Wheat demanded of the commission's attorney that he inform the court exactly what the commission had done. The attorney denied knowledge and said that he had not been consulted.

GRANTS DISMISSAL

As for Mr. Hearst's action against the committee Justice Wheat held he was without jurisdiction to enjoin the committee and granted the committee's motion to dismiss the complaint against its members. He said:

"Two wrongs do not make a right. If the Senate committee has been proceeding in a way which some people regard as unlawful it is better to let them continue to do it and let that be corrected in some other way than it is for me to proceed in the way that seems to me to be unlawful to attempt to correct what they do that I do not agree with."

Elisha Hanson and Edward G. Moore, counsel for Mr. Hearst, announced they would appeal from the ruling of the court, dismissing the bill of complaint in respect to the committee.

Wheat's ruling came after arguments by Hanson, Crampton Harris for the Black probers, and Carl F. Arnold for the communications commission.

Harris insisted the federal courts have no power over Senate committees. Arnold said the commission has no more seized telegrams in its possession and will refuse hereafter to take any without due process of law. Wheat then ruled:

"I will have to hold that the court has no jurisdiction over that Senate committee. I do not know exactly how that leaves us, but I think it is better to leave us without any remedy than it is for a court to assume jurisdiction to try to coerce or control a committee of the Senate."

REBUKES COMMITTEE

The chief justice said he did not feel he had the right to "assume to dictate to a committee of the Senate what it should do and what it should not do."

The justice again rebuked the Black committee for its seizure of all telegrams sent or received by the Chicago law firm of Winston, Straw and Shaw. This seizure was enjoined in an earlier decision. Wheat explained:

"I held in that case that that subpoena on its face was an illegal subpoena. It was obviously a mere fishing expedition of the kind that has been condemned so many times."

Wheat said the Hearst suit does not present a question of freedom of the press.

Argument was centered on the jurisdictional question, with Harris, the committee counsel, declaring:

"A special committee of the Senate is a part of the Senate. It is neither a natural person nor a legal entity. It can neither sue nor be sued without express authority."

Hanson countered:

"It is absurd to say that committee members are to be sole judges of their acts. They have no immunity and they must be held to answer."

ACTS TRACED

Hanson traced the acts of the Black committee and the communications commission in their unprecedented raid on private papers. He directly charged the Senate resolution which empowers the Black committee to investigate all efforts to influence the course of legislation as "repugnant to the Constitution."

Congress is absolutely without power to enact a law in any way restricting a newspaper publisher's right to influence legislation, he said, citing the constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press.

Before proceeding with the principal arguments, Justice Wheat on Hanson's motion, dismissed an earlier suit to enjoin the Western Union from turning over a specific telegram from William Randolph Hearst to an editor here.

The Black committee's subpoena for this message was withdrawn, but an alleged copy of this message was made public by the committee in defiance of the court proceeding. The Black committee had asserted copies of telegrams belong not to the receivers or senders, but to the telegraph companies.

The view was sharply contradicted by Paul Lesh, Western Union attorney, who told the court:

"Our rights are not invaded but our customers' may be. We very much prefer not to give up telegrams."

Bolshevik Professors

munism they are entitled to teach it, and "impose their ideas" on their pupils, whether Congress likes it or not.

This insolent and blatant agitator is on record, in a published pamphlet, as maintaining that: "The teachers should DELIBERATELY REACH for POWER and THEN MAKE THE MOST of their conquest."

He insists that teachers must be permitted to fashion the curriculum and the procedures of the school; that it is "NOT ENOUGH for them TO SAY that THEY ARE TEACHING THE TRUTH"; nor should they be "unwilling to wield power in their own right."

Throughout the writing and teaching of this man Counts there run the lust for disorder and the consuming desire to strike down our economic system by revolution and violence.

There isn't a soap-boxer of the Communist Party who goes to greater extremes in his incitements to riot.

WHEN these Red professors, however, take up the business of influencing legislation by their resolutions and recommendations, they are apt to reach the point, much sooner than they desire, where they must disclose WHOM THEY REPRESENT and from WHAT SOURCES, if any, they are receiving COMPENSATION or FINANCIAL SUPPORT.

It will be interesting then, to learn, for instance, whether a man like Professor Counts is representing the Union of Soviet Republics, the Third Internationale or Moscow State University, on whose American advisory committee his name was to be found.

A Congress which is asked to legitimize the teaching of Communism in our public schools and the use of taxpayers' money for this purpose, ought to know whether its members are being subjected to alien pressure to do this un-American and traitorous thing — whether, in short, the RED FACULTY OF COLUMBIA are speaking as American citizens or as functionaries of Moscow's systematic propaganda of Communism and world revolution.

Judging from the evil records of such Columbia professors as Tugwell, Counts and others, there isn't much difference between Moscow University and Columbia University—when it comes to hatred of the United States and disloyalty to American principles!

'RED' TEACHING BATTLE LOOMS IN CONGRESS

Washington, April 9 (US)—A finish fight on whether Congress will permit the teaching of Communism in the nation's schools is scheduled in the House of Representatives in a few days.

Incredible as it seems, congressmen who are battling to prevent such a condition are facing determined opposition in trying to prevent the passage of the Sisson bill, which repeals the law forbidding of Communism in the schools of the District of Columbia.

The Sisson bill was aprpoved by the House District of Columbia committee.

Opponents charge that if it is passed, it will open the way to the teaching of Communism not only in Washington's schools, but in schools throughout the nation, through the implied tacit consent of Congress.

Witnesses charged that passage of the bill will pave the way for teachers with Communistic leanings to impregnate school children with the same ideas now taught in Soviet Russia.

Representative Mary T. Norton (D.) of New Jersey, chairman of the district committee and advocate of the bill, said the measure will be called up on the floor of the House April 27.

During hearings on the bill its backers received support from members of the board of education of the District of Columbia, and from teachers who object to taking an oath that they will not teach Communism.

Washington citizens, fighting to retain in the district's laws the edict against teaching Communism, were brusquely treated when they appeared before the committee.

Opponents of the Sisson bill said they use every parliamentary device to prevent its passage by the House as a whole. All District of Columbia legislation probably will be held up at this session of Congress because of the acts of those representatives who are pressing for the passage of the Sisson bill at all costs.

Hanson Points Danger Of Federal Censorship

Washington, April 9 (INS)—Assailing the confiscation of private telegrams by the Black senatorial committee as "flagrantly offensive and illegal," Elisha Hanson, attorney for William Randolph Hearst, yesterday argued before District Supreme Court:

"The fundamental issue in this case, insofar as the committee is concerned, is whether a senatorial committee can commit acts which the Constitution forbids and reserve to itself the sole power to pass upon the lawfulness of its acts.

"The committee has no such power.

JUDGE OWN ACTS

"The motion to dismiss this bill of complaint as filed by the defendant members of the Black committee of the United States asserts their sole and exclusive right to pass upon their own acts.

"Nowhere in the Constitution of the United States are they given any such power. On the contrary, by the express provision of Article III, Section 2, that power is vested in the judicial department.

"The essential rights of the people as embraced in the Fourth and Fifth amendments are secured against legislative ambition. These rights include the right to be secure in one's person, property, papers and effects. No legislative agency can set aside these rights either by law or by the acts of its individual members or committees.

"There can be no doubt that the copies of plaintiff's messages obtained by the Federal Communications Commission and made available by it to the Black committee were made available to the committee in an illegal and improper manner.

"There is no authority whatsoever in the communications act of 1934 for the commission, in the exercise of its regulatory authority over the communications companies, to attempt to regulate the business of those who avail themselves of the service of the communications companies, nor is there any authority whatsoever for the commission, through the exercise of its regulatory powers, to make disclosure of the contents of messagees sent by the patrons of the communications companies to any agency of the government whatsoever. The commission itself, prior to its illegal and improper acts, as complained of in this proceeding, had refused the demands of two other agencies of the government to do the very thing it did at the behest of the Black committee.

NO LARCENY PERMIT

"The courts have held time and time again that stolen papers cannot be used by any federal agency in any proceeding whatsoever or for any purpose in such a proceeding and that it is proper to make inquiry into the manner in which the papers were obtained.

"The mere fact that the Senate of the United States authorized the members of the committee, defendants herein, to conduct an investigation into certain matters did not authorize the committee to comit larceny or to conspire with another agency of the government to commit larceny in its behalf or to make public the contents of plaintiff's messages in plain violation of the statutes and in violation of plaintiff's rights under the first, the fourth and the fifth amendments.

"The Federal Communications Commission has no authority whatsoever to examine the messages of newspapers or newspaper publishers for any purpose other than to determine whether or not they were handled in accordance with properly filed tariffs at lawful rates. Any other use of such messages constitutes a violation of the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States as an abridgment or restraint of the freedom of the press.

"If the Federal Communications Commission or any other governmental agency has the right to seize copies of press messages and make such a use of them as has been made by the Black committee, then it has the right to set up censorship in the offices of the communications companies throughout the country and inspect the messages as they go to and from the newspapers, the newspaper publishers and the newspaper editors each day.

"It is a settled doctrine in our jurisprudence that if two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution of the United States or by the laws of the United States, the carrying out of such a conspiracy may be restrained.

"Where it has been carried out, even in part, criminal penalties of fine not to exceed $5000, and imprisonment, not to exceed 10 years, are provided for. In addition, persons so convicted shall thereafter be ineligible to any office or place of honor, profit or trust created by the Constitution or laws of the United States.

"Likewise, unlawful searches are punishable by both fine and imprisonment.

"This shows with what care Congress has surrounded the constitutional guarantees contained in the supreme law of the land.

"Each one of these defendants is a government official. The answer to their contentions is to be found in one of the celebrated statements of Mr. Justice Brandeis:

"'At the foundation of our civil liberty lies the principle which denies to government officials an exceptional position before the law and which subjects them to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen.'"

It's Perfect Square Day

Edmonton, Alta., April 9 (AP)—Today, April 9, is a day of importance to persons with a mathematical mind, because it is a date with a "perfect square," George W. Robertson of the University of Alberta reports.

Robertson, after due study, submits the following: 1936 is 44 squared. Nine is three squared. April is the fourth month which is two squared. April 9 is the 100th day of the year which is 10 squared.

This combination will not occur again for 180 years. The next time will be on April 9, 2116, if you will take Mr. Robertson's word for it.

Judge Declines Role of Censor

Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster of the central municipal court, one of three members of the Boston board of censorship, will not be present at Monday night's opening performance of the much-discussed "Tobacco Road" at the Plymouth Theater.

The chief justice, the Boston Evening American learned, has returned the tickets sent him by the management. He has declined to discuss his reasons for not attending the momentous opening.

The other two members of the board are Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney and Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, who is generally represented at theatrical openings by City Censor Herbert L. McNary.

poison gas. That unfortunately is, and will continue to be, a part of modern war.

When gas becomes necessary, gas will be used; all European countries are preparing for gas war. England has ordered forty million gas masks. In one big continental city a regular air-bombardment drill was staged, trucks with loud speakers rushing through the streets, calling, "Air raid, go to the safety cellars." A great hole was dug in one street to show what big bombs would do. At the end of the demonstration, men in gas masks were seen sweeping into sewers the remains of heavy gas, that lies close to the ground, eating clothing and flesh.

104 TREMONT STREET—BOSTON

Fallon's Grit Leads Him to Top

POLICE "SUPER" AT HIS DESK, AND WITH FAMILY

NATURAL LEADER

SUCCESS AT 38 DUE TO ABILITY, CHARACTER

By ALAN C. FRAZER

If you could have seen two blue eyes opening wide, and two chubby arms reaching out, you would have thought, as I did, that Jane Fallon, 17 months, knew her father had been made Boston police superintendent. "Dadda, dadda."

The little blonde head nestled under Superintendent Edward W. Fallon's forceful chin, the tiny feet clad in white mocassins clamped a hold upon his knee, and Baby Jane just would not let her daddy go to that telephone, which kept ringing wildly.

It was a night for a little cozy family happiness, and for all those friendly handshakes at headquarters and an important initial conference with Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney, the new "super" hurried right home to 78 Waldeck street, Dorchester, to see his baby before she was put to bed, his "big girl," Norma Rose, 7, and his attractive wife.

You must not picture him bustling in, in full regalia, blue uniform, brass buttons and all, the pleasant-looking, sturdy brown-haired Irish-American who knocked all precedent silly by becoming superintendent at the age of 38.

This man in the grey-mixed suit might have been a salesman, a businessman or a lawyer, but there was something about him that said he knew how to handle men.

"I am very happy and very proud of my husband," his wife was saying as Superintendent Fallon arrived.

Says It With Hug

But after that she said it with a warm hug, and Jane and Norma Rose followed suit.

"And let's not forget that we are thankful to Commissioner McSweeney," said the "super," coming out of the embrace for a breath of air.

When a man has arrived at the top of his ladder at Superintendent Fallon's age, it naturally brings a glow of happiness to his home. Rose Kelley Fallon, like her husband a Roxbury product, was beaming. Her red tresses set off her cheeks, flushed with pleasure, amazingly well.

Norma Rose, a pupil at the John Marshall school, was grinning broadly and had to be instructed to keep her mouth closed for the photographs, because her first teeth in the upper front have taken their departure.

When Eddie Fallon was the age of his elder daughter he was romping about the Roxbury street district and watching the structural steel workers put red-hot rivets in the new elevated structure out around Dudley street terminal.

Son of Policeman

He was the son of Tom Fallon, a policeman, and that lent him some prestige with his chums, but nobody—least of all Patrolman Fallon—thought the boy was going to become the youngest superintendent in the department ever had.

Eddie Fallon had a yen for learning, both book learning and the mastering of practical affairs. After finishing at St. Joseph's parochial school and Dudley grammar school, he went to work at various jobs, generally clerical, but he attended Boston College evening high school. That started him up the ladder.

When the war came along he went into the coast artillery as an enlisted volunteer. The war proved a turning point in his life, for after it was over, in November 1919, he cast his fortunes with the police department.

He is the first of the "new Boston police force," built up since the strike, to rise to the rank of captain and superintendent. Being one of the new men meant, all along through the years, that he had to prove his worth conclusively to win his spurs and at the same time to receive the sincere approbation of the veteran policemen above him on the ladder. That he did both is proof that he had real merit.

Entering the department at the age of 22, he was a captain 12 years later. He broke in at the old station 5 on East Dedham street, South End, and then went to the old traffic division 20, seeing long service at High and Summer streets where he was a familiar figure to the crowds going to and from the South Station.

When he took the examination for sergeant in 1925, he stood 25th on the list, and was sent to the old station 4 on Lagrange street after his promotion. When he took the examination for lieutenant in 1929, he came out fourth on the list, and when he tried for captain two years later, he stood third.

The Back Bay traffic division, now long since abolished, and the regular Back Bay division, both numbered the rising figure in their crews, and he has served in the Bureau of Criminal Investigation at headquarters; division 18, Hyde Park; division 13, Jamaica Plain, and finally division 6, South Boston.

"Grit, Character"

Two South Boston divisions were consolidated into one as Captain Fallon took command in that district and he is credited in the department, and among the citizens as well, with "cleaning up" some sore spots there. His first task was the solution of a big chain store warehouse break and he accomplished it efficiently.

"The saturation point for liquor places has been reached in South Boston," said Captain Fallon before the licensing commission a year and a half ago.

South Boston liked that sort of a police captain and will be sorry to see him go.

Deputy Superintendent John M. Anderson described him in phrases which cannot be improved upon, when he said, in introducing him to police detectives, on October 19, 1931:

"This young man, a captain after a period of 12 years in the department, has a record for every man in the force to shoot for.

"He is an example of perseverance, grit and character, that all should emulate.

"He has made the most of his opportunity and will go higher. Within a period of 10 years, all the officers from superintendent down will be open to every one here."

Spectacular police episodes figure very sparsely in Superintendent Fallon's career. His has been a career of capable, efficient police work, largely executive in nature, and the old-timers say he had a quality which could not be named exactly, an apparently inborn ability to do the right things. But some say it was study, thought, attention to duty and sincerity.

Probably all are right, it is a mixture of native ability and willingness to apply himself to his job industriously.

He has shown his nerve although he dislikes to talk about it. Once he made a perilous leap from a bridge abutment to the railroad tracks in the Back Bay to capture an automobile thief, making his arrest in spite of a badly injured foot.

But it was his day in and day out ability that sent him on up the ladder. His rise was so swift, so sure, so unmarred by anything of a disquieting nature, that you could almost say he was predestined to come home some night to his family, still on the sunny side of 40, and on the top of the heap in his chosen field.

RICHARD V. MOONEY SUPERINTENDENT FALLON

Just a few minutes after Edward W. Fallon, the 38-year-old Boston superintendent of police took over his new police post, this morning, th is picture was made. Richard V. Mooney, a clerical aide handed Fallon the first report h e received in line of duty as superintendent. His office was well-filled with floral tributes.

NORMA ROSE SUPT. FALLON JANE MRS. ROSE FALLON

When a man arrives at the top of the ladder at Police Superintendent Fallon's age it brings a glow of happiness to his home. Mrs. Rose Kelley Fallon, like her husband a Roxbury product, beamed at the good news, as Norma Rose, 7, and baby Jane, 17 months, smiled as if they approved of their parents' happiness.

Smith Girls' Party Awry In Mystery

Northampton, April 9—A Smith College girls' party, which never took place, was the latest mystery to occupy attention here today.

The party-that-wasn't-given was revealed at the courthouse when three Smith girls appeared and asked if they could be sued for cancelling hotel reservations.

When they were assured they could not be sued because they were minors the girls breathed heart-felt sighs and departed.

But where the reservations were made, and why they were cancelled, and what the whole business was about remained a mystery, for the girls said nothing more.

Policemen Hunt Lynn Woman

Twelve policemen, headed by Sergeant Asa Darmey, searched along a mile and a half of the Lynn waterfront today for the body of Miss Anne Upham, 50, of Broad street, Lynn.

Finding of a bundle of letters, a pocketbook and a pair of glasses on a rock on Lynn beach yesterday gave rise to fears that Miss Upham may have drowned.

Her bankbook, cancelled checks and other papers were found on the piazza of a nephew's home on Baltimore street, according to police.

Miss Upham reported for work Tuesday at the Lynn plumbing concern

Reappoint Jenney U. S. Commissioner

United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, who lives in Hyde Park, was reappointed today for a four-years' term by Judge Elisha H. Brewster, senior justice of the Federal courts. The oath was administered by Federal Clerk James S. Allen.

Jenney was first appointed April 11, 1924, and has since held the job. He and his wife will leave tomorrow for a short vacation in Bermuda.

One-Boy Riot Ended

Firemen Crash Door In

New Orleans, April 9 (AP)—Two-year-old Terrell Cole's one-boy riot in the bathroom of his home here brought calls for police and firemen but it wes just another episode in his brief but stormy career.

He told his mother, Mrs. Henry Harrison Cole, as he locked himself in yesterday that he wanted to run water over the floor to create a flood, to wash himself with all the wash clothe in the room and brush his teeth with all the toothbrushes.

Nobody could get him out until Fireman Clarence L. Evans crashed in the bathroom door. The door hit Terrell on the head and he started crying. Nobody could stop his tears until Evans took him outside and showed him the fire engine.

A week ago, Mrs. Cole said, doctors had to be called to remove 18 pebbles he pushed up his nostrils experimentally.

Two weeks ago a woman drove her automobile into a tree to avoid hitting him.

And before that Terrell and his brother, Curtis, aged 3, scared relatives they were visiting by locking themselves in a bathroom and turning on both the water and the gas. Curtis opened the door that time.

$50,000,000 Flood Bill Passes Senate

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The Senate today approved a bill authorizing $50,000,000 of Reconstruction eCrporation loans under liberal terms to flood and stormtorn districts of the South and East.

It returns to the House for action on Senate amendments increasing the loan authority from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 and added authorization for more liberal flood insurance under the Housing Act.

Barbara Holmes is waiting for a visit from you. You will find her in the Free Rental Bureau, on the fourth floor of R. H. White's.

$42,500 for Hunting Fountain of Youth

Ithaca, N. Y., April 9 (AP)—A grant of $42,500 by the Rockefeller Foundation for a six-year study of ways to lengthen the life span of men and animals was announced today by President Livingston Farrand of Cornell University.

The riddles of the last half of adult life are the Cornell objectives. They are a new angle of attack on the problem of longevity.

"The purpose of this study," the outline of the work states, "will be the development of diets to retard the changes in the animal body that come with old age and senility in order to extend the useful fraction of life span of man and domestic animals."

Hunt Boy's Body

Taunton, April 9—Dragging of the Taunton river for the body of Francis Doucette, 12, son of Mrs. Grouge Doucette, of South street, will be continued by police, today. The boy fell over the rail on the Isdell street bridge.

STATE LANDON BOOM NOW IN FULL SWING

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

The Landon boom for President is in full swing in Massachusetts.

If there is any other choice among the Republican voters of the state it has not made its appearance.

Republican women and especially the young Republicans are flocking to the standard of the governor of the Sunflower State.

The simplicity, efficiency and record of the Kansas chief executive, it is increasingly evident, have caught the imagination.

Thousands of enrollment cards are being received daily at the headquarters of the "Landon for President Club of Massachusetts" at room 380, Parker House.

Seasoned political leaders in the party are frankly flabbergasted by the size and spontaneity of the movement. They declare that nothing quite like it has been seen in this state for many years.

G. O. P. SENATORS INVITED

As a follow up to the meeting attended by 56 Republican members of the House in the Hotel Bellevue, all designated as official Landon leaders in their respective districts, plans for a luncheon at the Parker House next Wednesday, to which the 21 Republican members of the Senate will be invited, are underway.

Ten of the 21 senators are already out in the open for Governor Landon. Those senators who feel they are not ready yet to announce their choice of a presidential candidate will not be subjected to embarrassment by attending the function, as the Landon movement is entirely a voluntary one.

Next Saturday, the first of two meetings of presidents of the various Young Republican Clubs of Massachusetts will also take place at the Parker House.

Invitations to attend this meeting are being sent to the presidents in the eastern part of the state. The following Saturday, the presidents of the Young Republican clubs in Worcester and the west will be held in Worcester.

BACON, SCHUSTER TO SPEAK

President Edwin F. Parker of the Landon for President Club of Massachusetts, will preside, and speakers will include former Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, Governor's Councilor Winfield A. Schuster and others.

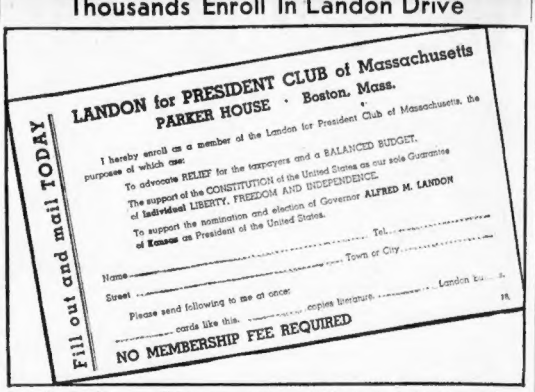

One of the most important points stressed at all meetings is that the Republican voters must be made to realize that they have an opportunity, nay a duty to perform, and that is the writing in of the name of their choice for President on the ballot in the June 25 primary.

While voters elect their presidential delegates, and these make the presidential nominations at Cleveland in June, Massachusetts voters have the unusual privilege of actually making their own choice.

For instance, majority vote for Landon, through the writing in of his name, would act as a mandate on the delegates who are running uninstructed.

Thousands Enroll In Landon Drive

Cards like the above, the official enrollment blank of the "Landon for President Club of Massachusetts," are being signed by the thousands by Republicans and Independents throughout the state, indicating with unmistakable emphasis the popularity of the Kansas Budget Balancer with Bay State voters. Purposes of the club are set forth on the card.

WORK FOR LANDON

Haverhill G. O. P. Clubs Organize

Haverhill, April 9—A number of "Landon for President" Clubs are in the process of formation here.

Representative Frank D. Babcock of this city, the sole G. O. P. survivor of the Democratic landslide here more than a year ago, is leading the movement in Haverhill for the presidential candidacy of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

Haverhill, normally a stronghold of the Republican party in this section of the Merrimack Valley, is becoming aware of the apparent "Landon sweep" throughout the country, and will be expected to throw a heavy vote for the Kansas Governor if he wins the G. O. P. presidential nomination, according to political observers.

Interest in the candidacy of Governor Landon here has increased with the announcement that the Kansas executive may visit Haverhill next summer.

He has been invited to address a meeting sponsored by the Haverhill Lincoln Republican club to be held in July or August at the American Legion farm on Main street.

MILK DEALERS FACE CHARGES

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Legal action against 28 alleged violators of a federal order regulating the handling of milk in the Boston market was decided upon today at a conference of representatives of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration and of the Department of Justice.

Bills of complaints against the 28 dealers have been drafted by AAA attorneys and will be filed by the Justice Department in the federal district court at Boston, probably within two days. Until that time the names of the alleged violators will not be made known.

Mother's Big Problem: It's Cats and Dogs

Oak Bluffs, April 9 (AP)—Complications threatened here today in the household of Joseph Silva—Tiger, his cat, mothering four Pomeranian puppies, now has kittens.

The cat, Silva says, is struggling vainly to oversee the supply of nourishment for her own as well as her adopted brood while Fluffy, mother of the Pomeranians, sits idly by offering no assistance.

The only explanation Silva can give of the scrambled maternal instincts is that Fluffy mothered Tiger when she came to the Silva home as a waif a few years ago.

Roosevelt Arrives In Warm Springs

Warm Springs, Ga., April 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt arrived at Warm Springs at 8:50 a. m. (central standard time) today in a heavy rain.

En route to Warm Springs, where the President maintains a "Little White House," the presidential special passed through the central of Georgia flood zone, one manifestation of wind and rain storms which have led to the allotment of $2,500,000 of Works Progress Administration funds to five Southern States for emergency relief.

A company of 150 Civilian Conservation Corps workers and about 125 townspeople gathered at the station here as the eight-coach special, pulled by two locomotives, arrived from Miami.

A presidential motor car was at the station for Mr. Roosevelt's drive to his home, where conferences with Georgia political leaders were scheduled.

Not a One

Lynden, Wash, April 9 (AP)—Little Geraldine Hannun wanted to bake her first cake to "surprise daddy and mother when they come home."

She did her best, but finally gave up, explaining to a neighbor: "It's no use. The recipe calls for 'ingredients' and I've looked in every can and jar on the shelf. Mother hasn't a single one."

Mrs. Heyer, Court Officer, Is Dead

Mrs. Lillian E. Heyer, 41, of 230 M street, South Boston, probation officer of the woman's division of the South Boston district court, died today at her home following a heart attack. She leaves four children: John, 14; Barbara, 13; Natalie, 12, and Jean, 11.

Funeral services will be held Saturday from St. Brigid's Church, South Boston.

Mrs. Heyer was the widow of John C. Heyer, former vice-president of the Federal National Bank. She was the sister of Herman Hormel, surveyor of the port of Boston.

Joins Scrubs

Chicago, April 9 (AP)—After paying $87.30 for a lamppost his automobile knocked over in suburban Wilmette, Harold Jones, 21, university senior, had only 65c left. His fine for reckless driving was $30.

Police Magistrate Peters fixed it. He assigned Harold to scrub the police station floors April 18 and 25—at $3 credit per scrub.

Borah's Battle Cry "On to Illinois!"

Washington, April 9 (USI)—Senator William E. Borah today changed his battle slogan from "on to Wisconsin" to "on to Illinois."

Having captured 22 of the Badger State's 24 delegates, he plunged into Illinois where the Republican voters next Tuesday will choose between himself and Colonel Frank Knox.

Girl Saves Eight, Warns 185 Orphans

Cincinnati, April 9 (AP)—Rosemary Wurzelbacher, a 15-year-old schoolgirl, spread an alarm today that enabled 185 sleeping orphan children to escape a fire in St. Aloysius orphanage. She then carried eight or ten kindergarten age youngsters from a blazing dormitory.

Giant Zeppelin Ends Long Silence

Berlin, April 9 (INS)—The Zeppelin Von Hindenburg today was speeding up the coast of northwest Africa at 74 miles an hour on her return trip from South America, she radioed to the air ministry here.

"All is well," her commander said, ending uneasiness felt over the dirigible's long silence.

FIGHT FOR FREDDIE

Aunt to Resist Mother's Suit

Hollywood, April 9 (INS)—A bitter court battle over custody of Freddie Bartholomew, child film star, appeared a certainty here today as the 5-year-old announced she would resist any effort of the mother to regain her child.

Through her attorney, Mrs. Myillicent Mary Bartholomew, the guardian-aunt, told the world that "any attempt to take Freddie from me will be resisted by every legal effort."

Meanwhile the child's mother, Mrs. Lillian Bartholomew, arrived in New York from London, stating she was in this country to seek custody of him.

The aunt was appointed guardian of the child star of "David Copperfield" and other pictures by a Los Angeles court last November. Attorneys said this court order could be modified within six months if the proper evidence were submitted.

In stressing the aunt's position, Attorney Felix Cunningham stated the sensitive boy had a great affection for "Aunt Cisie," who, the lawyer added, had cared for him for nine of his twelve years of life.

LANDON 'SURE' G. O. P. CHOICE, SAYS MOLEY

Los Angeles, April 9—Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas is "sure to get the Republican nomination for President" believes Professor Raymond Moley, former "brain trust" leader in the Roosevelt administration, and present editor of the magazine Today.

In an exclusive interview, as he stopped off here enroute to Santa Barbara to visit his family, Professor Moley, ardent student and critic of public affairs, told why he thinks the Republicans will pick the "budget balancing" chief state executive as the man to beat President Roosevelt at the fall elections. Professor Moley said:

"Landon is the answer to the Republican need for a candidate strikingly in contrast with Roosevelt. He is sure to get the nomination.

"As a true Democrat, I make this prediction after a careful study of public reaction throughout the nation. I make the statement, too, with the conviction, as a Democrat, that Landon will be an opponent to contend with.

"The drift of sentiment throughout the country is for a man with the elements of homely common sense and the background of economy, which Landon represents."

He said that it was "out of the question" to consider anyone but Roosevelt for the Democratic nomination.

Sharp criticism of the President for his corporate surplus tax plan was contained in the reply of the former Assistant Secretary of State to a question concerning the blast given the measure Tuesday by the National Chamber of Commerce. He stated:

"Such a tax plan would be very injurious to the safety of corporations in times of depression. A surplus is a disability insurance for a corporation, and this prohibitive tax would destroy such insurance."

High praise of William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst newspapers was voiced by the editor in regard to the publisher's stand on adequate tariff and his international policy. Said Professor Moley:

"I am very much in agreement with Mr. Hearst in his desire to maintain American markets for American products through an adequate tariff.

"In regard to the necessity of keeping this country out of foreign entanglements, Mr. Hearst has fought the battle of enlightenment almost alone. His policies are to be praised and admired."

Professor Moley said he was "definitely out of public office for good." The life of a newspaperman and editors suits him perfectly, he declared.

MAINE SEEN FOR G. O. P.

Brann's Plan Not Worrying Chiefs

Augusta, Me., April 9—Maine G. O. P. leaders are undisturbed over the decision of Governor Louis J. Brann to run for the United States Senate.

Jubilant claims of Democratic leaders that Brann's decision to remain in public life means continued success for the party in the Pine Tree State were dismissed as so much chaff today by the Republicans.

Secretary of State Lewis O. Barrows, who is looked upon as assured of the Republican nomination for Governor, said that Brann's choice can't help the bad situation which the Democrats of the state find themselves in.

"Out of the New Deal shuffle has come the decision of Governor Brann to run for the United States Senate," he declared. "Personally I don't think it makes much difference whether the governor runs as senator or decides to try for a third term in his present position.

PEOPLE AGAINST DEAL

"I welcome the contest. The people of Maine are sick and tired of the New Deal and I don't think there is any doubt as to what the decision will be next September. Maine will again lead the way, this time against the New Deal and for a return to sanity."

F. Harold Dubord, who had been an avowed candidate for United States senator, is now candidate for the Democratic nomination of governor, under the new arrangement.

Governor Brann will oppose Senator Wallace H. White of Lewiston, the present Republican incumbent. Both Brann and White come from Lewiston, and it is pointed out that the present governor will not have the advantage he has had in the past of the favorite son vote of that city.

SENATOR WHITE POPULAR

Senator White is a popular figure throughout the state, having served from eight to ten years in Congress prior to this promotion by the voters to the Senate.

Republicans are pointing out that Governor Brann and the other Democratic office aspirants will have to support the Roosevelt administration this time and that they will not be allowed to duck such issues as the ERA scandals and the Quoddy project.

It is also claimed by the Republicans that this year the G. O. P. will be united on a principle and that friendships will not count as they have in the past.

Dogs' Owner Freed In Newton Hearing

Failing to take proper procedure against the owner of howling dogs resulted in a victory for the defendant in Newton court today. Warren H. Conn of Arnold street, Newton Center, told the court William Duggan of Baker street, West Roxbury, allowed a pack of fox hounds to roam near the Conn home during the night. Howling of the dogs awakened the Conn family.

The court found Duggan not guilty, saying it was necessary for the police to notify an owner to restrain dogs before issuing a complaint.

Killed in Mine Blast

Morgantown, W. Va., April 9 (AP)—An explosion in the Cheat Canyon Coal company's mine, where 130 men were working, killed one miner and critically injured another today. Officials said a dynamite cap went off prematurely.

Cross Patch James!

CORRECTED EYESIGHT MADE HIM "SUNNY JIM" AGAIN—

"What's come over little James?" Nobody really knew until his mother had a bright idea and took him to an eyesight specialist. Corrected eyesight made him "Sunny Jim" again.

Eye defects may cause a lot of trouble to both little folks and big—nerves, headaches, even indigestion. Doctors, nurses and teachers all will vouch for this.

But don't wait for eyesight trouble to happen in your home! Help to prevent it now with better lighting. This means plenty of light, well shaded, free from glare, especially where reading, studying, or sewing is done. And the whole room should be lighted—not just parts of it . . . Guard your child's sight—and your own—with better light!

1. Wide opening at top throws light to ceiling, eliminates shadows.
2. Glass bowl softens light, prevents glare.
3. Wide shade plus extra height of lamp spreads light over wide area.

THE SENATOR

Fair-Haired Boys Wear Long Faces

THE SENATOR:

He sees all and knows all that's going on in Massachusetts, and best of all he tells about it.

Hear him below and listen in with him regularly in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"Timmy, worry is a dreadful thing."

"Ain't it the truth?" said Timmy. "Yes, sir, worry is a dreadful thing. Now, what's your particular worry, Senator?"

"Oh, it is not my worry that I'm talking about." The Senator hastened to explain. "I am only thinking of some of the boys. I just left a few, and their faces are so long it would cost them a dollar to buy a shave."

"They're not on the wagon," ventured Timmy.

"No, my friend," said The Senator. "They're not on the wagon. They are rather, as the poet said, between Scylla and Charybdis, or as you and I might put it, betwixt the devil and the deep. Some of them, in fact, are between Hurley and Hurley.

"James Michael's fair-haired boys, bidding state jobs, are scared lest they get a command to campaign for Joe, and Charley should win the nomination for governor.

"Besides, they're worried that a Republican will get in unless James Michael himself runs for another term.

"And now let us turn to the interesting case of Johnny Dowd, the Roxbury d'Artagnan.

"The parishioners around Dudley street and Blue Hill avenue, in the heart of his ward, want him to demand a revelation of that permit the street commissioners granted for a gas station at that busy intersection.

"The mayor signed that permit and Johnny's been friendly with the mayor. So what, I ask you, Timmy, is an aspiring politician to do? When you're planning to run for mayor yourself you don't pick a fight with a man who got 70,000 votes the last time.

"I suppose it sounds simple to you, but you don't know Johnny's constituents.

Boys Upset

"It doesn't take much to upset the politicians, anyway. I know three who are vexed because the state called off that road job between Hyde Park and Milton.

"Thirty-four of the men who expected to work there came from the Hyde square section of Jamaica Plain, and I hear a certain Dorchester Democratic leader had placed a few Republican followers on the project. Was his face red when the project blew up? Ah, me!

"I also hear Mayor Freddie's friends are thinking of putting Dave Shaw, the election commissioner, in the race for mayor next year. With Joe McGrath, Johnny Dowd and Morrie Tobin battling one another for votes, Shaw might slide in.

"Beneath the vest of many a politician is a heart beating just now with hope of preferment. Joe Cheever of Ward 17 wants to get in the Governor's Council in the place held by Joe Grossman, the Quincy plank and two-by-four man.

"And former Mayor William A. Hastings of Malden may run for the G. O. P. nomination for state auditor, but Frank Brigham Hall of Hingham is after that job, too. But I guess Tom Buckley, the Democratic incumbent, is not worrying."

"I hope not," said Timmy. "Worry is a dreadful thing. Or did I mention that before?"

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood, if they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

CURLEY BACKS COMMISSIONER IN PLANS

Kenney, secretary of the Boston Police Relief Association.

Reports that Andrew Gorey, secretary to Commissioner McSweeney, would be replaced, went unconfirmed.

In the case of Deputy McDevitt, whose retirement order aroused the mayor's displeasure, he continued active, under a special arrangement with the commissioner. Eventually, he was expected to be retired.

Over the critics of his swift and unexpected moves of yesterday—Mayor Mansfield and certain legislators were among these—the commissioner, with the backing of Governor Curley, appeared to hold the whip hand.

His appointment of Fallon to the superintendency was generally praised.

His appointments of new captains were both acclaimed widely and criticised, the criticism coming principally from those who were disappointed in the omission of certain names from the list. A political warfare was brewing over these appointments.

His move to retire Deputy Superintendent McDevitt, Captain Skillings and others, precipitated him into a clash with the mayoralty forces, but the McSweeney position was "no-compromise."

KING ON VACATION

There was still some question about the status of the erstwhile superintendent, King, who signed his application for retirement at McSweeney's request, preferring a $3500 annual retirement salary for life to demotion to a captaincy.

King began a 30-day "vacation." Mayor Mansfield said:

"I can't tell now if I will sign his retirement papers. I don't expect to receive them for 30 days."

Yet he appeared to have no alternative but to sign them. Refusal might result in King's demotion and his eventual retirement at $2000 instead of $3500.

In a similar fashion, McSweeney seemed to be in control of the controversy arising over his move to retire McDevitt, Skillings, a lieutenant, sergeant and one patrolman.

These men he relieved from active duty, giving the mayor the choice of putting them on retirement salary or paying them full salary for doing nothing.

SEES NO ROW

Mayor Mansfield denied that he and McSweeney had quarreled because the commissioner did not agree to promote Lieutenant Gaffney.

"There is no truth in that report," the mayor said. "It is true that Lieutenant Gaffney has been a friend of mine for many years and that his first wife, now deceased, was a friend of Mrs. Mansfield.

"Somebody is trying to pick a row between McSweeney and me. I do not know of any strained relations that exist between us. I know of no reason why our relations should not continue to be pleasant. We were very friendly yesterday when we discussed police retirements. As a matter of fact, I had held up those retirements before I learned that McSweeney planned changes in the police department."

Critics of the commissioner claimed a technical illegality in his promotion of nine lieutenants to captains.

These said he failed first to ask the state civil service commission for a list of eligible lieutenants as required by law.

He can still do so, however, because the appointments are not effective until Saturday morning. His friends described this as hair-splitting, pointing out that every lieutenant is on the eligible list and that the list is what is known as a "horizontal list," the eligibles not being graded.

Legislators disappointed at the omission or inclusion of certain names were talking loudly about reviving the dormant bill to restore power of appointment of the police commissioner to the mayor. One state senator, who expected a favor in an appointment and failed to receive it, led this move.

Commissioner McSweeney said:

"The whole thing was non-political. All promotions were made on merit according to my best judgment."

Most the new captains called at headquarters today personally to thank the commissioner.

Deputy Superintendent Claflin experienced the pleasure of congratulating four new captains who had worked under him in the bureau of criminal investigation. These were Tiernan, Wall, McCarthy and Haggerty.

All the new captains were ordered to report to the commissioner this afternoon.

Commissioner McSweeney was frank in admitting that he was forcing out of the department the men who are over retirement age. He also agreed that "he forced" retirement of Superintendent King.

S. S. Quincy Trials Planned Next Week

The U. S. S. Quincy, whose Navy test was interrupted last week when she was returned to Fore River ship yards for turbine repairs, will resume her trial runs off Rockland, Me., the latter part of next week, Harry E. D. Gould, general manager of the yard announced today.

The recent repairs which included windlass trouble in addition to heat expanded turbines, were the fourth since the ship has been under construction at the Fore River yards.

Dies Suddenly

Funeral arrangements for Louis Albrechtson, 63, of Medford street, Arlington, who dropped dead at the Arlington reservoir, will be announced today.

Vermonter Carried Out, So Was $110

The visitor from Vermont thought it was very nice of the two boys to carry him out of the Dover street tavern feet first—but when the visitor discovered that $110 had disappeared in the process he complained to police.

This complaint and several others were brought up before the Boston Licensing Board today. The board was hearing reports by police on conditions in licensed premises throughout the city.

Chairman David T. Montague of the board was absent because of illness, and the hearing was conducted by Miss Mary Driscoll and Edwin Gallagher.

The visitor from Vermont had gone into the tavern because he had noted it bore his own name, he told police of Warren avenue station, according to Special Officer Harvey Yates.

With high boots on and the money hidden in his boots, he thought it would be safe, the visitor said, but when he woke up in his lodging house across the street, the two friends were gone and his boots were unlaced.

Officer Yates told the board that one of the men who aided the Vermonter out of the tavern was found to be a brother of the proprietor. This man was arrested and charged with larceny. In superior court he was placed on probation on promise of restitution.

2 COUNTY FLOOD LOSS 3 MILLION

The loss to highways, bridges, water supply systems, and sewers in the Merrimac valley in Essex and Middlesex counties, due to the recent floods, was today placed at $3,000,000. A report to this effect was made to the legislative flood committee by Senator James P. Meehan of Lawrence.

Damage to private property in the two counties, with estimates still incomplete, was announced as $898,000 in Essex county and $600,000 in Middlesex county.

3 Workers Killed, 1 Saved in Cavein

La Salle, Ill., April 9 (AP)—A cave-in of 50 cubic yards of dirt today killed three Works Progress Administration workers employed in excavation for the foundation of an addition to the La Salle-Peru Township High School.

A fourth man, buried to his neck, was brought out alive.

Pop! And Fly Bites Dust

Minneapolis, April 9 (AP)—Dr. J. F. McClendon has the fly situation pretty well in hand.

The University of Minnesota physiologist, widely known for his goiter research work, keeps an air rifle by his side in laboratory or classroom.

The faintest buzz of musca domestica—that's what he calls a house fly—rouses him to action. He grabs the gun, takes careful aim and fires. The fly, students say, invariably drops.

Dr. McClendon quickly cocks the gun, loads another charge of pyrethrum concentrate and waits. The concentrate, he explained, is four times as strong as ordinary fly killing chemicals.

STRENGTHEN THE BLADDER

MAKE THIS 25c TEST.

Drink lots of boiled or distilled water, if irritation causes getting up nights, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning, or backache. You know what hardwater does to a teakettle. Drive out excess acids and deposits with buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., made into green tablets called Bukets, the bladder lax. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. In four days, if not pleased any druggist will refund your 25c. For sale by all Druggists. Distributed by Keller Company, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

ENDTROPIC TRIP IN BOSTON

Many Bostonians returned home from tropical vacations today aboard the liner Lady Radney.

The liner, in command of Captain A. I. Mackay, returned from a 19-day pleasure cruise to Bermuda, Nassau and Jamaica and docked at Commonwealth Pier to lnd the following Bostontians:

Miss Katherine McCarthy, Miss Mary E. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster, Miss Elizabeth Munroe, Mrs. Charlotte N. Green and Mrs. Grace Wilson.

Other passengers were Miss Marguerite Hogan of West Newton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Pitman of Belmont, Mrs. G. V. Sammet and Edwin C. Vose of Newton Center.

The liner is making one more south-bound sailing from Boston before entering the Montreal-West Indies service for the summer.

A total of 79 passengers disembark at Boston. The liner shortly after arriving sailed for Halifax to land 25 other passengers.

4-Year Rift Of Couple Up to Court

Judge Joseph W. Monahan has taken under advisement the divorce suit brought against Mrs. Grace Weymouth, of Malden, married in 1930 when she was 16, to Irving C. Weymouth of Medford.

Mrs. Weymouth, who is fighting her husband's attempt to obtain a divorce and gain custody of their daughter, attempted to show that they have had friendly marital relations since they separated four years ago.

"She told me she was sick of housekeeping and taking care of the child," Weymouth testified.

"After she left I found our baby at my mother's house, and I have cared for the child ever since."

Rain Falls on Biers Of Tornado Dead

Gainesville, Ga., April 9 (AP)—Cold rain poured down upon tornado-stricken Gainesville today, chilling refugees and relief workers and interferring with the burial of many of the 180 dead.

Rehalibilitation work was slowed and the streets were deserted except for the military and a handful of pedestrians.

Prospects, however, were that normal business would be resumed in steadily increasing volume when the skies cleared.

Red Cross authorities announced 3600 persons, made destitute by the twister Monday, had registered for help.

Several funerals set for today were postponed because of the rain. Every train took from three to five coffins to other cities for burial.

Sylvia Sidney Granted Divorce

Los Angeles, April 9 (AP)—Sylvia Sidney, brunette film actress, won an uncontested divorce decree today from Bennett Cerf, New York publisher.

She testified that he quarreled with her over the time she gave to her picture career.

2 Matrons Win Divorce Decrees

Mrs. Susan A. Tinkham, of South Hanson, and Mrs. Mary Walsh, of North Weymouth, were granted divorce decrees in Norfolk Probate Court by Judge James R. McCoole.

Business on Upswing

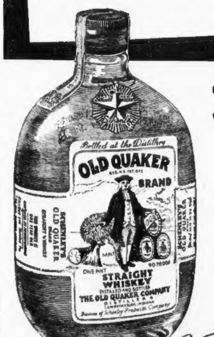

Business conditions on Washington street in the Broadway-Kneeland street district have shown improvement in the past year since the establishment of a two-way traffic and bus service, the Washington Street Improvement Association reported to Mayor Mansfield.

Pupils Unaware Of School Blaze

Pupils at the Thomas N. Hart school, H and East Fifth streets, South Boston, learned for the first time today that a fire broke out and was extinguished by firemen in the building yesterday.

DEATH PLANE'S RUINS BURNED BY WPA MEN

Uniontown, Pa., April 9 (AP)—Workers set fire to the wrecked hulk of the luxury air liner, Sun Racer, today after stripping it of broken instruments and other parts needed by investigators trying to determine the cause of the crash which killed 11 persons.

Works Progress Administration employes took measures to prevent the flames from spreading to the surrounding forest after the torch was applied by William Cunningham, state aeronautics bureau inspector. Several hundred sightseers were turned away.

Fire which broke out after the disaster Tuesday burned part of the nine-ton Pittsburgh-bound TWA liner, which tore through 200 yards of underbrush some 30 miles off course.

Investigators of the Commerce Department were ready to open a hearing this afternoon, at which mountain folk will tell what they know about the crash. At another hearing in Pittsburgh tomorrow testimony will be given about the radio beam and other technical phases.

P. G. Richter, Jr., vice president of TWA, said "flight checks" showed there was "no indication the radio beam is not functioning properly." Commerce Department officials made similar statements.

Stranger Than Reality

(Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

A strange coincidence of fiction and reality appears in the May issue of Cosmopolitan magazine where the cover picture, shown above, of an air stewardess bears a striking resemblance to Miss Nellie Granger, plucky heroine of the Uniontown crash. Moreover, in a story, is told the rescue of airplane passengers by an air hostess. Fiction becomes news.

PUNCHEE FIRES CHALLENGE AT LANGONE

That Bronx cheer which prompted Senator Joseph A. Langone, Jr., to swing a hard left to the jaw of one of his constituents in the State House yesterday was "only a joke."

But, said 22-year-old Samuel Pagliarulo today, if the Senator wants to make anything out of it, Sam is willing. Sam revealed himself as the "unknown" Langone adversary.

I bet is, that Sam, weighing in at 120 pounds, is not only willing but anxious to show that he isn't afraid of the 220-pound stormy petrel of the Legislature.

Pagliarulo suggests that the next meeting will be in a public arena and that the proceeds of the paying customers go to flood relief or some worthy charity.

"Why, the only reason I didn't poke him back was because there were three cops with him," Pagliarulo said. "I knew what would happen then.

"The senator makes me laugh. When it's election time he always smiles and shakes hands. Naturally, when he passed me in the State House corridor, I said 'Hello, Joe.'

"He didn't answer and thinking he could take a joke—he could always give one—I gave him the 'razz.'

"I figured he'd turn around, see who it was and laugh. Instead of that he takes a poke at me."

"All I have to say is that the reason he didn't get a return punch was because of the policemen. But I can take him anytime, weight and everything," the youth declared.

"He thought I was yellow. Here is his answer."

Spinal Victim Dies, Scan 1500 Pupils

Parents of 1500 Hyde Park high school students were torn with anxiety today, and parents of 30 boys waited to learn if any of their sons were spinal meningitis "carriers."

An autopsy disclosed that 16-year-old Francis D'Agastino of Birch street, Roslindale, who died yesterday, was a victim of the disease. Thirty-third to die, young D'Agastino had attended classes and had been in contact with 30 classmates on Monday.

Dr. James A. Keenan, director of school hygiene for Boston schools, dispatched a corps of doctors to Hyde Park to take cultures of the exposed boys.

He issued a statement to reassure parents, but warned that any suspicions of illness should call for immediate medical attention.

It was but an hour or so before the autopsy report that Mrs. Irene Baltz, 34, of Adams street, Roxbury, died at City Hospital from the disease.

Two more cases were also reported to health authorities. Both are in hospitals on the danger list.

One, six-year-old Salvatore Appalino of Richardson street, Brighton, is in the Children's Hospital.

The other is Michael Lyons, 48, of Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, who is at City Hospital.

Ex-Star Takes Poison After Love Rift

Detroit, April 9 (INS)—Mrs. James Edgar, the former Kathryn Crawford of the stage and screen and wife of the Detroit socialite-heir to the Edgar sugar millions, is in a hospital here recovering from an overdose of sleeping tablets after a reported rift with her husband.

Mrs. Edgar, who had returned from New York Tuesday morning with her attorney after a 10-day separation from her husband, was found ill in her suite in a downtown hotel.

Mrs. James Edgar

"I do not know anything about the circumstances surrounding the taking of the drug," Dr. C. E. Lemmon, the Edgar family physician said. "But her condition is not serious and she should be all right in several days."

Mrs. Edgar, once co-starred with Buddy Rogers in the films and a player in Marie Dressler's "Emma," was wed to young Edgar in 1934.

Cosmopolitan Art Glorifies Air Girl

By a striking coincidence, air transport stewardesses of the type of Miss Nellie Granger—heroine of the fatal crash at Uniontown, Pa.—are glorified in both art and story in the May issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

The cover portrait, a painting by Bradshaw Crandell, looks almost exactly like Miss Granger. The artist painted it after careful study of photographs of TWA stewardesses.

A thrilling rescue of airplane passengers by a stewardess is told in a story, "Remote Control," by Alfred Frederick Kalberer, master transport pilot of United Air Lines.

Kalberer's story ends with the words:

"It's a good thing we have stewardesses on this air line!"

60-Foot Leap Kills Desire To End Life

Springfield, April 9—An unidentified man who changed his plans of suicide during a swan dive of 60 feet into Watershops pond was being sought by police today.

The hunt for the man, who had left what police said was an uncomplimentary note to his wife, was being made by 12 officers.

According to the police, the man whose initials were given in the note as "M. P." walked out on a railroad trestle, carefully laid his note on the track beneath a stone, posed in a swan dive and then plunged the 60 feet.

He was later seen swimming to the shore and fleeing into the woods.

Former Medford Police Chief Dies

Former Police Chief William G. Ewell, for 28 years a member of the Medford police department, died today at the home of his son, Clarence M. Ewell, 188 Valley street, Medford.

Ewell had been in ill health since a shock two years ago. He is survived by a brother, Captain Charles H. Ewell, also of the Medford police department; three sons and five grandsons.

Joining the Medford force in 1887, he become chief in 1912 and retired in 1915.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 from the home.

Bomb Guard Over Baltimore Mayor

Baltimore, April 9 (AP)—The home of Mayor Howard W. Jackson was bombed early today in what was believed to have been a direct attempt on the mayor's life.

The explosive, apparently thrown from a passing automobile, landed about 40 feet from the house. Mayor Jackson was in bed reading when the blast shattered cellar windows and filled his room with acrid fumes.

A police guard was thrown about the Jackson home immediately, and officers were assigned to patrol the nearby streets. Neither Mayor Jackson nor investigating officers could give any reason for the act.

Had the bomb been thrown harder, police pointed out, it would have gone through a bay window directly beneath Jackson's bedroom, and "no end would have been left to the house."

Also in the house at the time were Mrs. Jackson, a daughter, Virginia; William Shehan, his grandson, and two servants.

Morrows Tour Chinese Cities

Chungking, Szechuen Province, China, April 9 (AP)—Mrs. Dwight Morrow and her daughter, Constance, came here today, completing their trip through the gorges of the Yangtse.

They will spend a short time here seeing the sights of this far West China city, then proceed to Peiping.

Wiley Honor Guest At Fish Dinner

A testimonial dinner in honor of George E. Wiley, president of the Boston Fish Bureau, sponsored by friends in the industry, will be given tonight at 6.30 in the Hotel Lenox.

Wiley, who began his career as an office boy, is today celebrating his 50th anniversary in the fish business.

Whittemore House Vandals Protested

Richard R. Coolidge of State street, Boston, agent for the Whittemore House on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, made a bitter protest to police today after learning that boys have been committing numerous acts of vandalism about the property.

He asked that the place be given more attention to "prevent them from tearing it apart, board by board."

Swan Song

"Well, I swan!" exclaimed a longshoreman at the Mystic docks in Charlestown, today.

He was just having his morning pun as he helped to unload 108 shipwrecked swans from the Furness liner, Newfoundland.

Eight of the swans were black, 100 white. They are en route to the Benson animal farm at Nashua, N. H. En route from Holland, they were aboard the freighter, Bilderdyk, which sheltered her radio at sea and was towed to Halifax. At Halifax they were transferred to the liner Newfoundland for the trip here.

U. S. Probes Death Crash in Midair

New York, April 9 (INS)—A Department of Commerce investigation was expected to be undertaken today into the collision of two private airplanes over Roosevelt Field late yesterday, bringing death to one man and serious injuries to two others.

The dead man was John Mendillo, 22, a student flier. He was flying in a dual control ship with Douglas Turnbull, an instructor.

Sidney Farrar's Ct. Estate Sold

Ridgefield, Ct., April 9 (AP)—Sale of the 40-acre estate of the late Sidney Farrar, father of Geraldine Farrar, famous opera singer, to Nelson Alcott of East Ridge, was disclosed today.

Miss Farrar as executrix has arranged for a public auction of household effects April 14.

Doctor 50 Years, Guest at Banquet

Completing fifty years in the post-office service as medical examiner, Dr. Timothy J. Sullivan, who has an office on the 4th floor of the Federal building, will be tendered a reception in Liederkranz Hall, Rockland street, West Roxbury, Saturday evening, May 2 beginning at 8 p. m. John A. McMahon heads the committee in charge.

WHIPPING IN PUBLIC

Delaware's Warning to Vagrants

Dover, Del., April 9 (INS)—On public view, a Virginian will be stripped to the waist and strapped to Delaware's celebrated whipping post Saturday.

The whistling rawhide cat-o'-nine tails as it swishes through the air and falls on the Virginian's bare back is intended to sound a warning to all vagrants to keep out of Delaware.

The prisoner, Charles Jackson of Norfolk, was convicted of stealing seven valves from a Lewes fishery plant. He pleaded that he was hungry and wanted to sell them to obtain money for food.

"The courts are tired of such characters, who force the taxpayers to keep them in idleness," Chief Justice Daniel J. Layton said today.

In addition to the public lashings, Justice Layton sentenced Jackson to six months in jail.

"We want to discourage your kind coming to this state," the court told Jackson. "The sentence would have been much greater had not the lashes been imposed.

"Let this be a warning to all Southerners who drift into Delaware for a few weeks and go on a stealing rampage, as many have done within the past few months."

Dressed Perfectly Yet Economically

ANY SUIT OR TOPCOAT
YES, EVEN CUTAWAYS $22.50

Don't let anyone tell you that you cannot dress to perfection at small cost. The truth is $22.50 is all any man needs to pay for clothes, no matter how particular he is about material, workmanship, style or fit.

Our garments are absolute proof of it, and our million satisfied customers are living evidence of it.

We've already told you in our advertisements why we can give you finer clothes for your money than anyone else in the United States. Truth will bear repetition, however, so here it is again. We make them in our own tailor shops, sell them in our own stores, and save you the middleman's profit.

We are probably the largest buyers of woolens in the country, and pay cash. We also sell for cash, and the savings in credit losses and credit expenses are even more than you'd guess. We have no wholesale selling expense, no delivery overhead, and no markups to allow for markdowns.

We've been making clothes for 57 years, and know how to deliver quality, style, fit, wear and lasting satisfaction. At $22.50, the answer is VALUE, AND THEN SOME.

CURLEY SCORES SALTONSTALL'S 'RAW POLITICS'

Poor and dirty politics are being played with the state budget, Governor Curley declared today in answer to charges of Speaker Leverett Saltonstall and the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers that he was using the flood emergency to jam through an "extravagant budget."

The governor pointed out that, in accordance with the law, the budget was submitted January 20 and that the ways and means committee, having it almost three months, had made no report as yet.

His assertion came after Speaker Saltonstall and Norman McDonald, executive director of the Taxpayers' Federation, had scored his radio address of last night in which he accused the Legislature of stalling on the budget and flood relief money.

In his address, Governor Curley stated that four temporary bridges were now being constructed over the Connecticut river and that federal and state authorities and the Red Cross were working in harmony on the flood situation.

He then expressed the wish that Republican legislators, particularly the ways and means committee, would co-operate in the same way and release money for reconstruction work to the public works department.

An hour after the governor's broadcast, Speaker Saltonstall took to the airlines to assert that the governor was seeking a "blank check" while the Legislature had already appropriated more money than could be immediately used for temporary bridge construction and highway repairs.

Easter Shopping Gains 25 Percent

Seekers after Easter finery thronged the shopping district today in numbers which merchants regarded as gratifying.

Sales statisticians estimated that this year's Easter business has been approximately 25 per cent greater than a year ago.

Sunshine, combined with the perennial challenge to seek bargains, were said responsible for the crowds.

CONTESTANT ON EDGE FOR EASTEREGG HUNT

Attention, X-9ers!

Time is growing short.

Saturday, April 11, is rapidly approaching—in fact, it is only 10 days away.

Promptly at 10 a. m. Saturday, the annual Easter Egg Hunt of the Secret Agent X-9 Club of the Boston Evening American will begin at the Playstead, Franklin Park.

There will be 1000 eggs hidden in and about the Playstead. Then will be 1000 prizes for the lucky boys and girls who find the eggs.

A PRIZE FOR EVERY EGG!

This is the first year that such generous prizes have been offered, and Big Chief X-9 expects the largest crowd on record to take advantage of the offer.

Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney has detailed a special squad of 160 officers and men to patrol the Playstead during the Egg Hunt.

NOTABLE GUESTS

The police will be under the direct charge of Captain Harry Grace, who is in command of Station 13, and whose officers patrol the district in which the Playstead is located.

There will be three lieutenants, 15 sergeants, two radio cruising cars, six motorcycles and four horses in the police detail besides the uniformed men.

In addition, there will be the Ampliphone sound truck, with William Spooner as engineer, with an announcer to keep everyone informed of the happenings.

Of course, Governor Curley, Mayor Mansfield, Manager Joe Cronin, Manny Fox and Al Schacht, of the Red Sox, and dozens of others will greet the X-9ers who attend the event.

If you are a member of the Secret Agent X-9 Club, bring your badge and identification card with you to the Egg Hunt.

BRING YOUR BADGE

If you are NOT a member, write your name, address and age on a piece of plain paper, enclose five cents for handling, and mail it to the Secret Agent X-9 Club, Boston Evening American, Post-office Box 2096, Boston, Mass., and your card and badge will be promptly mailed to you.

Remember—the first prize is $15 for finding the Golden Egg; the second prize is $10 for finding the Silver Egg, and there are hundreds of other prizes, ranging from roller skates to G-man Finger-print sets (and that's a long range) for everyone who finds an egg.

JOIN NOW AND JOIN THE FUN SATURDAY MORNING AT THE PLAYSTEAD, FRANKLIN PARK.

Crew of 8 Saved As Tug Founders

Saybrook, Conn., April 9 (AP)—The new tug Cayuga, out of New York for the United Petroleum Oil company, foundered off the breakwater near the outer light at the mouth of the Connecticut river today when she was careened by a racing current.

The master, Capt. Mattie Alven, and a crew of seven were rescued by the tug Celtic, accompanying the Cayuga.

No Excuse

Rochester, N. Y., April 9 (AP)—"Why were you speeding?" asked City Court Judge William H. Tompkins when Peter J. Hargather pleaded guilty.

"I had business with an undertaker," Hargather replied.

"Speeding makes business for undertakers," snapped Judge Tompkins. "Five dollars fine."

FRANCE AGAIN PROTESTS NAZI RHINE FORTS

Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press

Geneva, April 9—French ministers have informed British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that if Germany, continuing its violation of treaties, erects fortifications along the Rhine, France reserves the right to take any steps the situation may justify.

The French pointed out that building of fortifications in the Rhineland zone, already remilitarized by the Reich in defiance of the Versailles treaty and Locarno pact, would be another direct violation of the Versailles agreement which ended the World War.

What new steps France might consider were not disclosed, but Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin's attitude made it clear that France attached greatest importance to the question of fortifications.

The French stand was disclosed while the League of Nations, seeking to avert any Italo-Ethiopian settlement enforced by Fascist arms and alleged gas attacks, pressed both belligerents for definite statements of their terms for peace negotiations.

Wolde Mariam, Ethiopian minister to Paris, called on Eden and said Ethiopia was ready to talk peace with Italy, but only under the auspices of the League and within the spirit and the framework of the League convenant.

"Ethiopia absolutely refuses to negotiate alone with Italian plenipotentiaries," Mariam told Eden.

Italy to Demand More Territory in Parley

Rome, April 9 (INS)—Large territorial concessions by Ethiopia will be demanded by Italy before Premier Mussolini agrees to halt the advance of his victorious armies in Esel Africa, it was learned today.

The demand for an immediate reply, as pushed by Great Britain, was expected to be countered with a proposal that Salvador De Madriaga, the League's representative, visit Rome and lay at least a minimum offer of peace terms before Il Duce.

Among the terms Italy would approve, it was stated tentatively, is a promise by the League to reconsider Italy's complaints against Ethiopian aggression.

With Emperor Haile Selassie's army in flight and with Marshal Badoglio's troops speedily adding to the 50,000 square kilometers of territory already taken, the Italian view is that Italy already controls more territory than has been suggested in any previous peace plan, and therefore that a new offer must be made before the Italian campaign can be called off.

CHINA PROTEST LAID TO TOKYO

Moscow, April 9 (AP)—Official statements published today contained the blunt charge that the recent Chinese protest against the Soviet-Mongolian pact of mutual assistance was made under pressure by Japan.

These statements were made public at the same time that newspapers published a note by Maxim Litvinoff, foreign commissar, in which he refused to admit that there were grounds for the Chinese government's protest.

All the leading official newspapers printed the statements.

Fr. Ahern to Head 3-Hour Service

Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston College, will conduct the Good Friday service, known as the three hours' agony, beginning at noon and continuing until 3 o'clock tomorrow at St. James Church on Harrison avenue.

For those unable to participate in the three hours' service, the Stations of the Cross will be held after 3 o'clock. There will be the usual adoration of the cross service at 7:45 p. m., when the Rev. Albert J. Shea will be the preacher.

CHURCHES MARK HOLY SEASON

Catholic and Protestant denominations today began solemn observance of Holy Thursday and Good Friday.

At the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell celebrated a solemn pontifical mass and blessed the holy oils.

Members of St. John's Seminary choir sang.

In all of the Catholic churches in the archdiocese solemn high masses were celebrated with the Holy Thursday processions following.

In many Catholic churches special services, including benediction and the chanting of the Tenebrie, will be held.

Tomorrow, Good Friday, the mass of the pre-sanctified will be celebrated in the morning and the adoration of the cross will follow throughout the day.

Special services will also be held in Protestant churches tonight and tomorrow. Sermons based on the Crucifixion will be delivered from the pulpits.

Easter at Vatican

Pope Pius Opens Celebrations

Vatican City, April 9 (INS)—Pope Pius XI opened the series of Eastertide celebrations today with a pontifical mass in the Sistine chapel, the leading figure in a spectacle of great pomp and pageantry seldom matched anywhere.

The impressive ceremony, which lasted from ten o'clock until noon, opened with formation of a procession at the Pope's private apartments, whence the pontiff was escorted to the chamber of vestments. Three cardinal deacons assisted him with the pontifical mantis of ermine embroidered with gold, the tiregnum, and his jewel-studded mitre.

Shortly before the cardinals, dressed in their woolen cloaks, went to the apostolic palace of the Vatican and donned the uniforms of their respective orders. Over these they wore their "sacred phalli," or manties of white lamb's wool sheared from lambs especially bred for the purpose and blessed each year by the Pope.

REPEATS CUSTOM

Today's ceremony, strictly by invitation, was a repetition of a custom begun by Pope Pius in 1933.

In their ceremonial robes the Sacred College of Cardinals filed into their places in the chapel to await the arrival of the Pontiff, seated in his chair, the Pope was borne to the Vatican basilica by two sergeants of the Swiss guard and honorary chair bearers.

He was surrounded by his noble guard of honor and followed by the undersecretaries of the hall, the college of procurators, the confessors of the Pope's family, the Apostolic preacher, the pontifical chaplain and the secret chamber valets.

The audience rose as the Pontiff entered. Present were the Sacred College, members of the Pope's family, diplomats accredited to the Holy See, Italian nobles and privileged laity.

The men wore the prescribed starched shirts and tails; the ladies black costumes, modestly long, closed at the neckline and with long sleeves. Over their heads they wore black lace veils.

6 CHOIRS SING

The Pope assisted in celebrating the mass from his throne as a quartet of choirs sung Palestrina's Missa Brevis.

After the mass a second Host was consecrated and passed to the Pontiff in the Sistine chapel's priceless chalice, used only on similar occasions. It is a solid rock crystal studded with precious stones. The Pope carried it aloft for public adoration from the Sistine chapel to the Pauline chapel, the altar of which had been magnificently prepared.

As the first cardinal deacon took the chalice from the Pontiff, all present knelt in adoration. At a signal from the prelate of the office of ceremonials, thousands gathered in St. Peter's square also knelt.

The Pope made a similar act of homage before the altar on which the chalice lay

King Gives Gold On Holy Thursday

London, April 9 (AP)—King Edward today paid out shining specially-minted coins to 142 persons at services in Westminster Abbey commemorating the age-old ceremony to Maundy Thursday.

The ceremony was symbolic of the washing of the feet of the disciples of Jesus Christ at the Last Supper.

The money was doled out from special red and white purses carried on a golden salver which is among the historic relics at the Tower of London.

The new monarch was the second British ruler in 200 years to take part personally in the ancient ceremony.

Found in Water

John Swanson, 68, houseboat dweller off the South Boston strandway, was found dead in the water today under circumstances that started police on an investigation.

"CAGING THE LONE WOLF"

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Back Bay Women Terrorized By Bandit 'On the Prowl'

This is the 65th in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Frank C. McLean, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this gripping story of "Caging the Lone Wolf."

Other stories in the series will be written by reporters whose by-lines are equally familiar throughout New England.

By FRANK C. McLEAN

Stepping carefully out of her evening gown, Bessie smoothed the dainty garment's folds and placed it on its hanger in the closet of the little apartment's bedroom-sitting room.

Into the closet also went her high-heeled slippers. Chiffon stockings and filmy underthings she tossed on a chair.

Then, stretching luxuriously, she donned a pair of black satin pajamas and slid between the cool sheets of her bed.

She was tired, she had a hard day's work ahead of her and she fell asleep almost immediately.

A moment later, she awakened with a start.

There was a strange, scratching noise on the wall near her bed.

She snapped on the light—and almost fainted!

Seated comfortably on the floor by her bedside, his face almost level with her own, was a dark-haired, hawk-visaged, rather handsome young man.

He had a formidable looking automatic pistol in his hand, and the weapon's muzzle, big and black as a cannon, was pointed straight at Bessie's wildly-beating heart.

"Don't scream," the intruder ordered in a harsh whisper. "If you do, kid, I'll have to fill you full of holes."

Bessie couldn't have screamed, even if she had wanted. Her throat was paralyzed with sheer terror.

"Just take it easy," the gunman told her. "We're going to get along fine, you and me. Most girls, in your place, would let a rip or two out of 'em, anyhow. But you didn't, did you, beautiful?

"Now you lie right where you are, nice and quiet, while I attend to business. Then we'll have a talk, maybe."

Under the Bed

To the bureau, where Bessie had left her handbag, the intruder strode unhesitatingly.

"Sure, I saw you put it there, kid," he grinned at Bessie. "I saw everything you did. I was underneath the bed."

From the bag, the handsome burglar took a roll of bills. He also picked up, from the bureau top, Bessie's diamond-studded wristwatch.

Convinced now that she was not likely to be murdered at once, the girl ventured a plea.

"Be a sport, mister," she begged. "Leave me enough of that money to pay my rent tomorrow. And don't take the wristwatch. That's a present from my boy friend."

The gunman pulled a chair over to the bed and sat down, crossing his knees, but never for a second relaxing his grip on his pistol.

"That's a pretty ring you're wearing, kid," he commented. "Let's have it."

Bessie gave it to him.

Talked for Hours

"Your regular," he applauded. "Here's your watch back. I wouldn't want you to get in bad with your sweetie."

Putting the loot in a coat pocket the burglar lighted a cigarette, leaned back in his chair.

"Can't leave you just yet, beautiful," he told Bessie. "It's late, and there are too many cops around. So, if you don't mind, I'll make myself at home. I'll go in the morning, when people are on their way to work."

There was a box of chocolates on Bessie's bed-table. The gunman helped himself from time to time, as he talked.

Talk he did, for hours. He told stories of experiences all over the United States and in England and France. He told of his own underworld exploits. He complimented Bessie on her complexion and on her taste in pajamas.

"You're a funny kind of a crook," she said.

The burglar grinned at her engagingly.

"I'm a lone wolf," he chuckled. "And this my night to prowl."

It was almost dawn when Bessie's uninvited guest began to yawn.

"He Even Snored"

"I ain't bored with your company, beautiful," he said. "But I gotta grab a little shut-eye. You might get tempted to bang on the wall or start yelling, so I'm afraid I'll have to tie you up."

He ripped down two window curtains, twisted them into ropes and lashed the girl's wrists to the head rail of the bed. To the foot of the bed, similarly, he lashed her ankles. Folding one of her stockings into a gag, he forced it into her mouth, tying it in place with the other stocking.

Then he snapped off the light, tipped his chair against the wall and went promptly to sleep.

"Not only that, but he snored," Bessie told police afterward.

The sparrows were chirping and morning traffic was crowding through the street below the apartment window when the burglar stirred again.

His gun was still in his lap.

He waved it cheerfully at Bessie.

"Merry Christmas, kid," he greeted her as he took the gag out of her mouth. "Want a drink of water?"

The girl nodded, trying vainly, with swollen tongue, to moisten her parched lips.

The gunman brought a glass of water from the bathroom, held it to Bessie's mouth.

Then he washed his face, combed his hair, adjusted his necktie and hat in the mirror, pocketed his pistol.

Two Hours After

"Sorry, kid," he said, "but I'll have to leave you tied up. After a while, though, I'll telephone the janitor and tell him to come up and let you loose. So-long now, see you in the funny papers."

He stepped softly out through the apartment door, closing it after him and trying it, to be sure that the spring lock had clicked.

It was almost two hours before Bessie succeeded in working loose one of her numbed and aching hands. She was just freeing herself from the last of her bonds when there was a knock at the door and the anxious voice of the janitor's wife.

"Anything wrong, dearie? Can you let me in? Some man called up and said you were in trouble and for me to break the lock, if necessary."

Bessie was able to admit her rescuer. Then dropping limply back on the bed, she told her story.

She told it again, half an hour later, to Police Inspector James R. Claflin.

And she told it later, over and over again, to other inspectors, to newspapermen, to the apartment house management.

Her hearers, for the most part, were politely incredulous.

They tended to take stock in this debonair, candy-munching, conversational night prowler.

It seemed to 25-year-old Bessie that investigators gave more attention to her life history, her past employment as a model, her black satin pajamas, than they did to her description of the gunman.

Vindicated

Bessie's vindication, however, wasn't long in coming.

Her all-night ordeal with the burglar had been on January 5, 1935.

On January 20, just after midnight, two women occupants of a Queensbury street, Back Bay, apartment had an almost identical experience.

They were surprised by the dark-haired, handsome gunman, just as they were preparing to retire.

He tied up the older of his victims, a woman of 50, in one room, then tied her attractive young niece, 21, in her bed in the other room. After having made himself at home, even to the extent of preparing and eating a meal, he chatted boastfully and at great length to the younger of his victims, smacking his lips, from time to time, over a highball which he mixed himself from liquor which he found in a sideboard.

He left this apartment in the morning with $80 in cash, two fur coats and several articles of jewelry.

Police now recalled that, on January 17, an army lieutenant, living in an apartment house on Peterboro street, Back Bay, had reported an encounter in his home with an armed burglar who had locked him into a closet at gun-point and had escaped with money and jewelry.

The man victim's description of the prowler coincided exactly with the descriptions given by Bessie and by the aunt and niece on Queensberry street.

It was apparent now, both to the police and to the public, that a dangerous and perhaps maniacal marauder was, as he himself had said, "on the prowl," like a lone wolf, in the residential Back Bay district.

"Lone Wolf" he was promptly nick-named by the newspapers.

That he liked this title and that he followed closely press accounts of his exploits was soon made evident, when on February 3, he paid an all night visit to a third Back Bay apartment.

This was on Queensbury street again and the victim was a 40-year-old business woman. Having tied her to a chair, the gunman mixed her a drink which he told her frankly contained "knockout drops."

"A fellow gave 'em to me," the intruder explained. "I want to see how they work."

When the woman tenant, clad only in her nightgown, attempted to avoid swallowing the drug, her uninvited caller lost his temper and struck her on the head with his pistol butt. She finally was obliged to drink a part of the contents of the glass he held to her lips.

Dizzy and half dazed, she was forced to listen, as others had listened, to a recital of the burglar's past exploits.

In this apartment, too, the gunman raided the ice-box, found food and spread himself a bountiful lunch. He found a bottle of ginger ale, from which he helped himself liberally.

When he departed in the morning, he took jewelry, cash and a fur coat, all to the value of several hundred dollars.

Scrawled in Soap

Before leaving the apartment, he scrawled on a mirror, with a piece of soap, the words:

"Still the Lone Wolf"!

That vainglorious "signature" didn't trap the prowler, but he had unwittingly left another signature which was more valuable to police.

On the ginger ale bottle, from which the "Lone Wolf" had poured himself a drink at this last apartment, he had left a fingerprint or, more exactly, a thumbprint.

Photographed by police, the print was clear and distinct.

It seemed at first that even this clue wasn't going to bring results, although every principal rogues' gallery in the United States was combed for a corresponding thumb mark.

To the aid of the Boston authorities, however, came a jobless ex-soldier.

"A couple of weeks ago," he said, "I met up with a fellow who was in the army with me out West, for a while. Then he called himself Stevens, but now, I guess, he's going by the name of Walters.

"He showed me two loaded guns and he said, 'these are my business equipment. I'm a lone wolf, and I'm on the prowl!'"

The ex-serviceman tipster led to the "Lone Wolf's" downfall.

Back from Washington, D. C., came word that a man known variously as Frank Stevens and as James E. Walters had a record of enlistments and medical or "undesirable" discharges from both the army and the navy.

His right thumb print was identical with the print from the Back Bay ginger ale bottle.

With this start, Boston authorities soon knocked back on the career of James E. Walters, alias Frank Stevens.

He'd been in trouble, they found in Virginia, Oregon, New York and way stations. They obtained his rogues' gallery photograph and a full set of his fingerprints.

The photograph was shown to the "Lone Wolf's" Back Bay women victims—and they identified Walters as the gunman who had robbed and tormented them.

The arrest was effected as so many others had been effected before it—by the simple means of publishing the wanted man's photograph in the newspapers.

Within 24 hours after Walters' picture had been printed, the mother of a South Boston policeman told her office son:

"I've seen that man they claim to be the 'Lone Wolf.' He lives over somewhere on Wendell street."

The policeman took a good look at the newspaper picture which had caught his mother's attention. To him, too, it looked familiar.

That same forenoon, a squad of five officers, all heavily armed, tiptoed up a stairway and hammered on the door of a Wendell street, South Boston, apartment.

Shouldering past a young woman who admitted them, they rushed into a bedroom.

Walters, in pants and shirt but collarless, was just getting to his feet.

Walter grinned.

"I'm the Lone Wolf," he said, "but I'm no Gerald Chapman—and my wife is here! That's how i let you take me so easily. Now let me put on my collar, and I'll go with you."

He tried to reach for a bureau drawer, but Sergeant Flynn was too quick for him.

Handcuffing Walters, he directed a patrolman to get the "collar."

Loaded Guns

In the bureau drawer were two loaded guns, each cocked and each with a bullet in its chamber.

"A lucky break for you fellows," sneered Walters. "If I had laid hands on those guns, you'd all have been dead by now."

That boastful mood never deserted him during the months which intervened between his arrest, on March 25, and his sentence to life imprisonment after his conviction, April 16, on four counts of armed robbery.

He told and retold real and imaginary details of his Back Bay burglaries. He lamented the mischances of his capture which, he said, had interfered with his plans to raid the apartment of two "swell babies" whom he had marked as prospective victims.

In Waters' behalf, at his trial, Defense Counsel Peter C. Borre attempted vainly to win a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity. Alternately raging in the dock and mocking court proceedings with wild laughter, Walters did his best to sustain his reputation for abnormality.

But his antics failed to save him from a maximum sentence.

The "Lone Wolf" he boasted himself, to the last, and like a wolf he was caged.

His only prowling now is back and forth, back and forth, across the iron floor of a six-by-ten-foot cell.

Tomorrow in the Boston Evening American the true detective series will continue with "Mystery of the Headless Woman," by Arthur J. Quinn.

Taunted His Victims

James E. Walters, alias Frank Stevens, the "Lone Wolf," who terrorized Back Bay, was trapped by his own boasts and sentenced to a life term on four counts of armed robbery. Once after binding and robbing a beautiful model of cash and jewels, he sat by the edge of her bed, boasting of his exploits until dawn, when he made his escape.

First Evening Art Preview Proves Social Success

By BETTY ALDEN

"THERE'S NOTHING NEW under the sun" . . . but that doesn't say that we can't have innovations under artificial light . . .

When the Boston Art Club first contemplated holding a preview of an exhibition in the evening, rather than in the afternoon as is the usual custom, most everyone was intrigued with the novelty of the idea . . . but few realized until the affair was actually held last evening how popular and successful it would prove to be . . .

ZAYDEE DE JONGE

By far the greater proportion of those who attend the afternoon openings are women and even they have to take a hurried look at the paintings, then rush home to supervise the dinner and other domestic details . . .

In the evening, however, business men husbands can also attend, and both Mr. and Mrs. have much more time to examine the paintings in a leisurely fashion and enjoy a cup of after dinner coffee while chatting with other lovers of art . . .

Last evening's opening included paintings and sculpture by members of the Boston Art Club and the exhibit itself is so varied and large that it takes a good while to examine all the entries . . . We saw Barbara Bradford, who recently exhibited some paintings in the Junior League Members' Show, chatting with fellow artists and pointing out her landscape which hangs near Donald Gordon Squier's arresting portrait of Mrs. Gordon Preston Marshall of Hingham . . . and then we bumped into Mr. Squier, himself, discussing the pros and cons of certain entries with Mr. and Mrs. John Hilliard (Clyde Stafford), both of whom are local artists of note . . .

Mrs. David Sigourney, another socialite who spends most of her leisure time blending water colors, was unusually prophetic when she painted "The Flood" . . . and her painting, with its large leghorn rooster floating calmly with the tide, attracted a great many comments, for in spite of its title, there is nothing dull or drab in the way the artist has treated her subject . . .

Zaydee de Jonge dropped in to look over the exhibit, in which her "Rest Hour" is included, and looked very well in a flowered chiffon of black, white and orange, with a full pleated skirt and a beige brocade wrap . . . Mrs. Delevere King and Mrs. Anthony Thieme, the pourers, were both gowned in filmy black chiffon, contrasting sharply with the shiny white damask, heavy silver service and vivid spring flowers on the coffee table over which they presided . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Pierpont L. Stackpole, Mr. and Mrs. John Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. Chicherley Waterson, Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor Watson, Miss Charlotte Lamson, in an attractive outfit of black with touches of red and a small black turban, Mrs. Robert Ware, and Lester Hornby were others we noted wandering about the gallery . . .

Symphony's Sponsors Gather

"FRIENDS" OF THE BOSTON Symphony Orchestra, the organization is called . . . but anyone who dropped in at the annual meeting of this group in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon, expecting to find a stiff, solemn "Friends," or Quaker meeting, would have been greatly surprised . . . For the gathering was more like an old New England town meeting than anything else . . .

Different members rose from their seats about the hall and offered their opinions upon problems which have presented themselves to the society, and the whole gathering discussed the pros and cons in a friendly, open manner . . . typical of the informal town meeting . . .

Cabots, Saltonstalls and Frothinghams stood and made suggestions for improving the policies of the society, and even tiny, quiet Mrs. Daniel de Menocal raised her voice to suggest a motion . . .

After Edward Taft, chairman, had given the friends several chances to register their favor or opposition to different suggestions, the business meeting ended and the gathering heard a splendid address by Olin Downes, well-known music critic, whose first musical assignments were right in Symphony Hall . . . Following his address, Dr. Koussevitzky and members of his orchestra presented a brief musical program and then everyone gathered for tea in the foyer . . .

* * *

Fullers Loan Paintings

AMONG THE OUTSTANDING MEMBERS of the society present were, of course, Madame Koussevitzky, Mrs. Frederick Downes, mother of the speaker; Mark deWolfe Howe, historian of the society; Edward Burlingame Hill and Miss Mabel Daniels, both composers of note . . .

Mrs. Edward A. Taft, wife of the chairman of the organization, wore a beet red dress and velvet beret for her role as pourer, and was assisted by Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole and Mrs. Henry Cabot, as well as Mrs. Ernest B. Dane and Mrs. Bentley Warren . . .

Among the many who dropped in for the interesting meeting and lingered for tea were Mrs. George H. Swift and her daughter, Lucille; Mr. and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and Lydia Fuller, who had very generously loaned their collection of oil paintings to make the meeting even more enjoyable; Mrs. Chester Humphries, wearing an attractive navy blue wool dress trimmed with rows of fine pleats and a heavy antique silver belt . . . Also Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bird, Jr., Miss Rose Nichols, Mrs. George Saltonstall West, Mrs. Bernard C. Weld, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. Samuel P. Sears, with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Roland Nickerson; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes and Mrs. Charles Gaston Smith . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Slayman, Mrs. William Stanley Parker, Isabella Grandin, Elizabeth Hammond, Mrs. Richard P. Waters, Mrs. Samuel Newmann, Miss Elizabeth Leland and Mrs. Frank Stewart were also present.

BOOKS ON PARADE -:- By Luther Conant, Jr.

MAIN LINE WEST—Paul Horgan—Harper and Brothers.

This should have been a better novel. The story of it was there to be written—the story of an American restlessness born of one track lines, and drummer's sample cases and cheap railroad hotels.

The author has clearly recognized that underneath this urge for wandering, for train whistles by night at lonely crossings, lay a "nostalgia for places dreamed of but never seen."

With such a start it seems a pity that a fuller richer novel did not result, for despite isolated passages of high emotional intensity, the great body of the work is dull—true yes—but with little life breathed into it.

TALE OF DRUMMER

Briefly, it is the account of a mid-western drummer, in love with his land and trade, and a card with the ladies. Marriage brings to his life a momentary balance which is lost when he deserts his wife just before the birth of a boy.

With that, the story leaves the father and follows the son Danny, born over a cheap Chinese restaurant in San Francisco, raised always within sound of the switching engines, and fated to spend his youth with an evangelist troupe.

At the end, Danny's mother has just died where she lived, in the day coach of a train. Danny, scorning the offer of a kindly couple, who wanted—and needed—a boy, hops a freight the day after his mother's funeral.

The author says of him—"The wheels began to roll and when they pulled him along in the half-empty box car, they tore no roots from under him."

Had the novel been stronger there should have come with that phrase a feeling for country, for prairies, for small cities, for the life of restless adventure ahead of Danny.

But instead there is a sense of pity, an impression of futility, which is a shabby ending for the story of a growing continent.

DIANE THE HUNTRESS—The Life and Times of Diane de Poitiers—By Grace Hart Seely—D. Appleton-Century.

Diane de Poitiers, who made a fine art of breaking the conventions in an epoch of unconventionality, symbolized the Renaissance.

A woman of such enduring beauty, cleverness, intellect and natural aptitude for engaging the attention of so many people gives any author unlimited scope for his talents.

Married at 15, widowed at 30, Diane entered the court of Francois I as the Queen's honor matron. Thoroughly enjoying the heady court life, Diane devised countless schemes to make her presence there permanent.

Diane's prime champion during this gay yet troubled period was Prince Henri, who became her lover and, upon becoming king, created her Duchess of Valentinois.

Firmly entrenched as shadow queen of France, Diane, by reason of her mature experience and thoughtful judgments, was of invaluable assistance to Henri. Knowing how little Francois I, his father, had taught him of statesmanship, the two lovers diligently studied Machiavelli's "Prince," the bible of statecraft of their day. Dianne also counselled Henri to fight the encroachment of Protestantism in his kingdom.

When Henri is killed in a tilting match, Dianne retires to D'Anet, where she proves the full measure of her character by living graciously and simply for the rest of her life.

The biography is perhaps more entertaining than exciting but it is a complete and satisfactory account of a fascinating and important woman.

North Shore Benefit

Through the social season on the North Shore is still in the first blush of infancy, the energetic committee for the Thrift Shop of the North Shore Babies' Hospital has already launched its program of summer activities.

Mrs. Arthur W. West opened her home on Chestnut street in Salem yesterday afternoon for a bundle tea. Guests brought all sorts of discarded yet usable things for resale in the Thrift Shop.

Mrs. Charles F. Ropes, Mrs. Walter L. Harris, and Mrs. Charles A. Cook, were the official custodians of the tea tables and were assisted by Mrs. William Hutchinson, Miss Ruth Ropes, Miss Sylvia Smith, Mrs. H. F. Field, and Mrs. Robert B. M. Barton

Young Voters Form New Club

Mrs. John Barry Maguire President of Group

YOUNG BOSTONIANS are enrolling in the new club of the Massachusetts Young Women Voters whose primary purpose is to acquaint its members with the intricacies of voting.

Mrs. John Barry Maguire, of Jamaica Plain, daughter of former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry, is president of the club which will be strictly non-partisan in its policies.

Last Tuesday, she entertained the group at her home and election of officers was in order. Dr. S. Williams of Jamaica Plain was chosen vice-president, Evelyn Dunston of Brookline was selected as the group's treasurer and Mrs. Joseph A. Barry, Jr. of West Roxbury was elected secretary. Mrs. Barry has just returned from a fortnight's visit in New York.

The next meeting of the group will take place at Mrs. Maguire's home, Tuesday, April 21, when an election of an executive board will be in order. The entire group will be entertained at an opening tea at Mrs. Maguire's home, April 24.

Aristos Bowlers End Season

Aristos Club has had a heap of fun bowling for spares and strikes during the long winter evenings and the activities of the bowling league will be brought to a close Tuesday evening at a dinner at the Fox and Hounds Club.

Ethel Padden of Winthrop, who is chairman and treasurer of the group, will present prizes to the trio of high scorers, Charlotte O'Donnell, Marguerite Kelly . . . who obtained the highest averages, and Kathleen Kendrick, who bowled the highest score in both single string class and the three string group.

Among those making reservations for the dinner are Catherine Monahan and Mary Harrington, past presidents of the Aristos Club; Carol Murnane, Edwina Strong, Edna Padden, Alma Kelly, Eileen Crowley, Gertrude Mooney, Marion McDermott, Marion McAuley, Jane Kennedy and Alice Reilly.

Others include Alice Reilly, Catherine O'Connell, Margaret Lee, Margaret O'Connell, Marjorie Lynch, Bernardine McCusker, Helen Joyce, Alice Brandsfield and Helen Ezekiel.

Easter week plans of St. Joseph's Guild sound interesting.

Monday, Mrs. Thomas Meade, president of the guild, will be hostess for a bridge and whist at the Hotel Victoria. Assisting her are the board of directors.

On Tuesday evening, the regular weekly bridge and whist will be held at the home at 8:30 in the evening. Mrs. John Boyle will be hostess.

The newly-formed Caritas club, junior guild of the organization, will holds its first dancing party at the Hotel Victoria, Friday evening.

* * *

Notre Dame Grads at Dance

Reservations for the Roxbury Notre Dame supper dance at the Friday evening, April 17, at the Hotel Somerset are in charge of Mrs. Joseph Leary of Milton.

Mrs. Leary is assisted by Margaret Barry, Mrs. Norman Fermoyle, Charlotte Esdale, Katherine Hern, Mrs. George Fayetty, Carol Brady and Mary Hartigan.

Mary Merrigan of Brookline, chairman of reception committee, will welcome past presidents of the organization and their guests, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Hickey of Peabody and their daughters, Mary and Eleanor; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ellis of Brookline, Mrs. James J. Phelan, Mr. and Mrs. Neal J. Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Donnell and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Markey.

Assisting Miss Merrigan on her committee are Miss Barre Malone, Mrs. Arthur O'Keefe, Helen Stout, Helen Barrett, Dorothy Berghaus, Eleanor Mahoney and Margaret O'Hare.

Picture taken Saturday, March 28, showing the throngs along Fifth Ave. near Smithfield Street. Eager buyers crowd into what a few days ago was the flood zone but now the beehive of business.

Pittsburgh is SPENDING its Way forward!

Here is a typical crowd of buyers around one of the main floor counters in a large downtown department store.

Diamond Street is one short block away from Fifth Ave. and here is part of the crowd going places, seeing things and buying.

Pittsburgh people are buying. Watch them as they inspect and select from a counter in a Golden Triangle Department Store.

THE flood is over. Its passing has added new impetus to the business life of Pittsburgh. Today the streets of the steel center of the world are filled with a glorious symphony of sound—the thrilling song of countless, colorful crowds on a buying spree—the deep-throated roar of steel furnaces and factories back to normal—the staccato sound of rivets and hammers driving forward at terrific speed—building, rebuilding, restoring—moving on to a Greater Pittsburgh!

For Pittsburgh is spending its way forward! Spending its way to the tune of millions for reconstruction—many more millions for restoration—and still more millions for the everyday necessities of life—for life goes forward in Pittsburgh!

Today, the Golden Triangle is jammed with hundreds of thousands of buyers.

Stores and factories have launched a $200,000,000 reconstruction program! More food—more cigarettes—more furniture—more automobiles—more everything is being bought in a terrific buying surge!

On every front—along every line—in every direction, Pittsburgh—rugged Pittsburgh—is spending its way FORWARD!

WHAT THE FACTS SHOW

Ninety-nine per cent of grocery chain units in the area are open, with exceptionally good business reported.

* * *

Sales of new automobiles are more than twenty-five per cent above normal. Dealers say: "We have scores of people waiting for new cars and we expect to fill all orders soon. All indicators point to a tremendous up surge in buying."

* * *

All Pittsburgh department stores are open for normal operation and are daily crowded with customers.

* * *

All Pittsburgh hotels are offering completely restored service. All restrictions on liquor sales have been removed, with business as usual.

* * *

On March 31, Pittsburgh bank clearings were $20,100,000, as compared with $13,700,000, the previous week, and $19,000,000, one week of 1935. Total clearings for the month of March 1936 were $349,585,000, as compared with $312,405,000, in March 1935, an increase of 9%.

* * *

Electrical appliance dealers are already showing increased sales resulting from the heavy replacement demand for refrigerators, radios, vacuum cleaners, motors, fixtures, lighting equipment and many other electrical items that were damaged by water.

* * *

Tobacco wholesalers expect the present remarkably increased sales to continue.

* * *

Pittsburgh steel operations have crossed the 52% mark. Heavy schedules now in effect, plus emergency replacement orders arriving daily, indicate a continuing increase in operations. Steel ingot production is now running 58½ per cent, the highest so far recorded this year. One steel company has announced an immediate $30,000,000. expansion program.

Mystery, Comedy at Loew's

Two first run pictures, both heralded as especially fine productions, are to be shown at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters as features of their Easter Festival program for the week starting Friday.

One of the films is "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," which stars Jean Arthur and Gary Cooper. The other is "The Garden Murder Case," co-starring Edmund Lowe and Virginia Bruce.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" relates a story of a young man's experiences following his inheritance of twenty million dollars. Longfellow Deeds, the wealthy lad, is played by Gary Cooper. When he goes to New York to claim his fortune riotously funny adventures follow.

"The Garden Murder Case" is the screen translation of the S. S. Van Dine's thriller dealing with three mysterious murders which appear accidental. The famous character Vance is present in this film and uses his [illegible] knowledge to trap the guilty person. His results are [illegible] surprising and exciting to say the least, 'tis said.

Isabel Jewel in one of the frocks she wears in "The Leathernecks Have Landed," which is the screen feature on the new bill that opened at the Boston today. [illegible] supplies much of the love interest in this film.

Yowsah! Ol' Maestro Acoming

Ben Bernie will begin his first engagement in a Boston dinner-and-supper club on Saturday when the "ol' maestro" with the talented bandsmen he calls "his lads" come to Levaggi's for a brief visit.

The policy instituted by John Levaggi, proprietor of the uptown bright spot, with the engagement of Ted Fio-Rito and his expensive organization is to be continued. The Fio-Rito Orchestra is concluding its stay this week.

While Ben and his boys are playing at Levaggi's, they will continue their weekly broadcasts over a national network.

Quints' Film At Uptown

The Uptown Theater will have "The Country Doctor," featuring the famous Dionne Quintuplets in their first full length picture, and "Desire," starring Marlene Dietrich and Gary Cooper, as their screen attraction starting Saturday.

"The Country Doctor" is a dramatization of the famous Quints' birth. Its supporting cast includes Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Slim Summerville and Michael Whalen. Jean Hersholt, fine character actor, has the title role.

Charles Boyer Sought For Universal Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, April 8—Charles Boyer should have been born quintuplets what with every company in the business bidding frantically for him and Walter Wanger, who holds his contract, sitting back and smiling at the struggle to get Boyer's name on the dotted line. Now it is Universal who would like to have the handsome Frenchman for "The Phantom of the Opera."

How he can do it I don't see, but Charles Rogers isn't in the least discouraged because he has engaged Boyer's close friend, Anton Litvak, to direct the picture and it was Litvak who directed Boyer abroad in "Mayerling" which has been so much discussed these days.

Louella O. Parsons

W. P. Lipscomb, who wrote the adaptation of "A Tale of Two Cities," "Richelieu," "Les Miserables," etc., has been borrowed from Darry Zanuck to write the adaptation and just between you and me I doubt very much if Marta Eggerth will ever play in this picture.

When Fred Astaire registered his million dollar objections to "Never Gonna Dance," Ginger Rogers sat quietly by and never uttered a word. Now Ginger is putting in her complaint and asking that her part be rewritten to give her a better break. She has become one of the top box-office bets in the last few years and will probably not go into "Never Gonna Dance" unless RKO listens to her ultimatum which has been presented by her agents, the Myron Selznick office. It seems more than likely that the trouble will be ironed out since Ginger is much too valuable to lose and her demands are modest.

Regardless of Grace Moore's arraignment of Hollywood and her declaration that she would never set foot in the Columbia Studios again, Harry Cohn is going right ahead in preparing her next picture, which is scheduled to start in August. Curiously enough, the whispers around the Columbia lot are that, in spite of Grace's peeve about milking the cow, the director and other things on the lot, the picture, "The King Steps Out," is really swell. Grace has sailed for Europe on a concert tour and it will be interesting to see when she gets back just what will happen.

Chatter in Hollywood: James Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, and Joe Louis, too, might as well be prepared. Bob Montgomery, Chester Morris and Reginald Denny are grooming one Ralph Odell and getting him ready to meet all champs, present and future. They found Odell on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer labor gang, a 21-year-old football player from Ohio State University, and they have turned him over to Mike Cantwell, who trained both Braddock and Baer for the usual routine.

The Faith Baldwin serial, "The Moon's Our Home," was widely read in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. That is why it was so important for Walter Wanger to make a fine picture of it. He had a waiting list of self-appointed critics among the many readers, ready to pass judgment, but I can say that when they see what he has done with Miss Baldwin's story, they are going to give their approval. Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda, the stars of this Wanger opus, will present scenes from the picture on the "Hollywood Hotel" hour tomorrow night.

One of the last letters Marilyn Miller wrote before she went into the hospital was sent to Mecca Graham, one of her dearest friends. Ironically enough she wrote: "Everyone says I look so swell when I'm sick, that I've decided to have a nervous breakdown." With the letter were some beautiful photographs, the last ones she ever had taken. Clifton Webb also received the pictures and a note saying that she wished they could do a show together. They had been in "Sonny" and "As Thousands Cheer" for months and months. From the tone of both letters she had little idea of the serious nature of her illness.

Snapshots of Hollywood

MRS. LEO CARRILLO'S mother and aunt, aged 78 and 81, respectively, stepping off the train wearing big picture hats, all set for a Hollywood career. DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., has been really quite ill . . . now past the crisis. CLAUDETTE COLBERT arriving here bringing plenty of swank . . . from New York. FRANK FAY, who left here discouraged with the world, back in town a radio celebrity. LEE TRACY flying East to keep a radio engagement; he will be back within a few days; COLONEL TIM McCOY, Western movie actor, opens at Madison Square Garden as one of the stars of Ringling Brothers Circus; he returns here in November after touring the country. ANN SHIRLEY dining with one of the young sons of Franklin Mayor. MRS. PAT O'BRIEN putting on a fashion show at the Warners Beverly Hills Theater the 14th, 15th and 16th. PAT has been entertaining his father, mother and aunt, all of them his guests at the "Hollywood Hotel" program. HOUSE PETERS, important star of the silent days, here with his wife; one of the swankiest new floor shows getting a good play and especially JOAQUIN GARAY, soloist. That's all . . . See you tomorrow!

Al Jolson On Met Screen

A real treat is in store for patrons of the Metropolitan Theater for the next week, what with Al Jolson's latest starring picture, "The Singing Kid," on the screen, and Ray Noble and His Orchestra making their first American stage appearance on the Met's boards.

Jolson's newest vehicle is reported to be the most ambitious of the musical spectacle films to date. "The Singing Kid" presents drama, romance, comedy, spectacular song numbers, catchy songs, hits and outstanding performances by well-known stars of stage and screen. Its plot is concerned with the adventures of a famous singer who becomes disillusioned by the woman he loves and his struggle fighting his way back to the top as an entertainer.

"The Singing Kid" has many lavish scenes depicting New York show life, a great many lovely dancers, scenes in the night clubs and fifty strutters from Harlem. Some of the famous players featured with Jolson in this film are Sybil Jason, The Yacht Club Boys, Cab Calloway and His Band, Edward Everett Horton, Allen Jenkins, Lyle Talbot, Claire Dodd and Wini Shaw.

Ray Noble and his famous orchestra will make their stage debut here in a smart and sophisticated revue which is highlighted by Noble's own arrangements and compositions. The versatile company of entertainers who support the brilliant band leader are headed by Al Bowlly, known as "England's Prince of Song." Some of the organization's best renditions include Noble's own compositions, "Good Night Sweetheart," "The Very Thought of You" and "Love is the Sweetest Thing."

TOWNSENDITES FIGHT REVOLT

Los Angeles, April 9 (US)—Increasingly bitter controversy continues in Townsend Old Age Pension ranks in Los Angeles.

Developments are:

1 Plans by orthodox Townsendites to call a general meeting of the 20,000 members of Townsend Club 93 in an effort to repudiate George C. Highley's dramatic move to divorce the club from the Townsend organization and head a separate national old age pension drive.

2 Declarations by Highley, deposed president of the original Club 93, that for a year politicians and orthodox Townsendites had attempted to break up the society because of its strength as the largest in the country, and that an offer of $50,000 as well as a lucrative position in Washington had been promised Highley if he would retire.

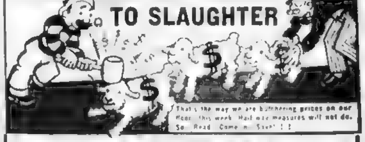

3 Indications that Robert E. Clements, who resigned as secretary-treasurer of Old Age Revolving Pension, Inc., would join Highley in leading a nationwide movement for the McGroarty Transaction Tax Pension bill in opposition to a bond issue measure now being prepared under the direction of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the movement.

'RIGHT SIDE UP'

Oakland, Cal., April 9 (US)—Two-and-one-half-year-old Gary Roethiger was released from Peralta Hospital here 29 days after surgeons had operated to right his upside down stomach.

Ten more days of observation were required to determine the success of the operation.

Gary, until about a month ago, was thought to be perfectly normal, although rather slight of stature. After recurring attacks of [illegible] he was taken to a doctor's office for X-ray examination. It was then learned that practically all of his abdominal organs had [illegible] region and [illegible] diaphragm [illegible].

Fashion Congress Selection

DIVINELY SLIM lines of grace, tiered with Vionnet's genius for lovely proportions, topped with an ingenuous jacket, and done in a brand-new fabric called linen shantung—who wouldn't acclaim this Fashion Congress selection, chosen with an eye to the bright modern girl's trousseau! Miss Jessie Fay, Milton post-debutante, models it.

Vivid blue, green and white is printed in a pattern close as the overhead interlacing of tangle foliage, with spaces unexpected y filled in pat with the blue of the sky, but with velvety black!

There's a furore on for the unexpected these days. And this dinner ensemble neatly turns that kind of a trick by revealing under its naive jacket a camisole decolletage that's very woman-of-the-world. Naturally, this change of mood is a grand trick for the girl who has to make one gown do the work of two, and even more! It's the rare sort of outfit that takes foggy weather and frequent packings as a matter of course.

For shopping information on the linen-shantung dinner ensemble, a Vionnet copy from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening Ameri...

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

IF you have been slighted on curves, you may be inclined to believe that "thinness runs in the family."

Like the overweights, you may be convinced that it is your nature to be abnormal weight, and that there is nothing to be done about it.

You cannot blame your scarcity of curves on your ancestors, or even on your basal metabolism, for experiments have shown that most healthy underweights have normal basal metabolism.

Your basal metabolism, you know, is the number of calories you require at rest and in extreme underweight this factor is ignored, efficiency in the exercise required for body function ing and repair.

In spite of your underweight tendencies you can gain weight by persistently taking calories above your energy needs. It is true that constitutional underweights extravagantly burn up calories rather than store them, but if you will regularly take more food than you use up in activity, you will gain weight. As the overweights will tell you, the scale climb on calories!

You probably think you are eating enough food but one thing is certain. Underweight means that you are getting insufficient calories to provide surplus for curves.

Caloric Deficiency

Your underweight will be interested to know that a recent experiment conducted by Katherine Jones and Kingsley Bayer at the University of Chicago on 19 college girls whose weights ranged from 11 to 26 per cent below age-height-weight standards. Even with a liberal allowance for basal metabolism, normal activity and a moderate amount of exercise, these girls were found to be taking in fewer calories than they required to maintain their weight.

On a planned high calorie diet these girls made satisfactory weight gains and proved that even so-called inherited leanness can be turned into curves!

Food Habits

A check would probably show your calories to be sufficient only for your daily needs. Your food habits are no doubt in the wrong direction, that is you like the foods which keep your weight down, and do not care particularly for fattening foods.

You must make an effort to change your food habits. Use more bread and butter, cereals creams, scalloped vegetables cream desserts and milk.

Of course you must make this increase in the quantity of food gradually. Otherwise you may upset digestion and retard your progress. It is also important to remember that calories are not the only consideration in the weight problem. Diet for vitamins, minerals and protein must be kept at an optimum level. The weight-gaining material will aid you in balancing your menu.

Yours for curves!

This experiment ultimately proved a calorie deficiency to be responsible for the underweight of every girl. The girls had been themselves to be getting enough food and contended that it was the family" to be thin. However, an accurate record of their calorie consumption, as compared with their requirements, showed them to be eating barely enough food for their daily needs certainly not a sufficient number of calories to provide a surplus for gaining weight.

WEDDING RECEPTION

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to be married very soon ... on a Sunday. My parents have been married before and I have two children. I think we should go to the church parsonage and be married and have the reception in our home as I have only a small living room. Please tell me what to expect.

The decision about this does not depend on whether or not it is to be a big wedding. It depends first whether or not the church wedding is permitted in a subdenominative. And second if the ... removes may be held in ... changes the coming in an 12 o'clock ... between you and your ... Usually such decisions are left to the bride-to-be and it is her preference that holds.

Where taste does enter into such questions is concerning the holding of the reception in your fiancé's home. This should be avoided. It is much better not to have any reception unless you can plan to have it in a private room of a hotel or club-room.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Readers Counsel Woman Who Lacks Courage To Have Baby

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The woman who has a baby is serving God and country.

This is the beautiful thought expressed to me today by Mrs. M. E. R. of Boston, who counsels those mothers who wilfully prevent the birth of children. Of course, I am sending her the five dollars for the best letter of the day.

This is what she says:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

May I stand up and cheer for your courageous article on birth control? You are one of the very few to preach the doctrine of live and let live, pointing out to young married couples the true way to happiness in marraige.

As for the young woman, Jane, who wrote you, there is no need for her to ruin her health and happiness by worry over the baby she expects. If she lives in Boston, she may have her baby at home with attendance and care by the best doctors and nurses in the world—ABSOLUTELY FREE.

There are clinics where she can obtain wonderful prenatal care, which every expectant mother should have. There are also hospitals which will give her free board and room for at least ten days.

Unfortunately, there are some women who are too proud to take this free treatment. This false pride leads to many baby deaths each year — and countless troubles and [illegible] women's lives. There should be no such pride when a baby's life and health are involved.

Nothing on earth is as precious as one tiny, helpless infant, born in or out of a hospital.

I believe every mother is doing a sacred duty in having a baby. [illegible] is serving God and country [illegible] her country and city should [illegible] her the best possible care, if [illegible]annot afford the attention to [illegible] she is entitled.

[illegible] baby she has may one day [illegible]is country as Lincoln and [illegible]ington did. He may help [illegible]tire world as famous men [illegible] in the past. More power [illegible]se who see that each baby [illegible] the world with its rightful [illegible]tage.

[illegible] husband never earned more [illegible] $22 a week, but he has [illegible]d steadily from the day of our marriage. When my first child was born we had $54. That was adequate to pay all the bills. Eighteen months later, when [illegible] sister arrived, we borrowed [illegible] which proved more than [illegible]ent. My two other children di[illegible] cost any more.

[illegible] my children and I am [illegible] to have as many babies a[illegible] sends me to have.

MRS. E. R.

MY [illegible]AR FRIEND:

[illegible] letter is one of the most [illegible] I have ever received. [illegible] every woman in New England [illegible] especially those women [illegible] convinced themselves [illegible] justifies [illegible]

[illegible]

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Another interesting letter on birth control comes from "Marmee," a dear Boston friend. She writes:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have just read the letter Jane wrote you. I do hope she heeds your advice and does nothing to kill the life that is to be.

I have seven small children, all under eight years. Five of them were born during the depression. Of course, folks who pretended to be my friends told me not to go through with it, and, though I am ashamed to admit it, I was often tempted to take their advice. But I never did, and I shall be eternally grateful for having the strength of character to resist.

I have less money than Jane, whose husband earns $22 a week. Nevertheless, I am able to keep my family healthy and happy. And not even a million dollars would make me give up one of my babies.

MARMEE.

DEAR MARMEE:

That is what your babies call you, isn't it? What a grand and glorious name! And how I would like to meet you and your wonderful family!

Your contribution to your God and your Country is so great that no feeble words of mine can ever pay tribute to it. You are richer today than the wealthiest woman in the world. Heaven cannot but smile on mothers who serve as you have served.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

My third letter comes from Brighton. The writer, who signs herself A HAPPY WIFE, gives us these truly Christian views:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Women should return to the ideals of their grandmothers, but I am very much afraid many of them lack the courage. Mothers today want everything but babies. I don't know why some of them ever thought of marriage.

It is true that even the poorest mother today receives better care during childbirth than the richest woman received two or three decades ago.

My mother had ten daughters and three sons. Only two were born in a hospital. The others were born at home, without even a doctor.

Today 12 of the 13 are living and my mother is about the happiest woman in the world. She always says, "God never put one in the world without providing for him."

My one desire in life is to be as good a woman as my mother proved herself to be.

A HAPPY WIFE.

DEAR HAPPY WIFE:

What a beautiful tribute you have given your mother! How truly wonderful it is to live to a great age and hear one's daughters say, "Mother, if only I can be as good a woman as you are!"

When your mother dies, she will go to her God with the knowledge of having done her duty, and of having done it well. How different will be her position from the woman who did not want children and goes alone and unsung to the Creator who intended that we women should have children!

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

From Jamaica Plain, Mrs. S. writes this fine letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I think you are right when you say that women who prevent the birth of children are just as guilty as Bruno Hauptmann. I am only 25, but I am the proud mother of five children. In July I am going to have another. You can not imagine the joy with which we count the days.

My husband earns only $15 a week on a relief job, but, nevertheless, we are determined to fullfill our mission in the world.

Miss Fairfax, I would never prevent children. I regard such a thing as murder. Jane should have her baby. The friends who advise against it are not really friends.

MRS. S.

Another splendid letter is this from my dear friend, Mrs. M:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read Jane's letter and my heart went out to her. I do hope she takes your advice. You see, before my little girl was born, I had the same fears Jane has. Friends urged me not to go through with it. I listened to them, but my conscience bothered me. My baby was born and how glad I was!

Soon I shall be a mother for the second time. Though money is scarce, we have resolved to fight as all Americans should. All the babies God sends will find a welcome in our home.

MRS. M.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a boy who is two years younger than I. We attend the same college. Until I met him, I had been going to college functions with several other boys. Since knowing him, I have refused all other invitations because I do not wish to hurt his feelings.

Also, I am afraid I might lose him.

Miss Fairfax, do you think I should continue going with this young boy, or should I seek security with an older and more dependable man?

COLLEGIATE.

DEAR COLLEGIATE:

If I were you, I'd stick to my studies. You can't be a good student and an expert lover. It's just not possible.

And, if I were you, I'd go about with several young men. Don't tie yourself to one. You're far too young.

Your letter convinces me that this boy is by no means your "ideal." You'd better keep looking. The right man will come along. BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a widow with five children and find it difficult to make ends meet. I am getting state aid, which is hardly enough to buy food and clothing for myself and my five children.

My oldest daughter will be graduated from high school in June and I want to give her the things the other girls will have. But I just cannot raise the money.

Please give me some suggestions.

WORRIED.

DEAR MOTHER:

Buy your daughter an inexpensive dress and accessories. She will find that a goodly number of her class will have no more.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Skin Radiance For the Adolescent

Complexion Ills of Youth Can Be Overcome by New Home Treatment

By DONNA GRACE

THERE are any number of beauty problems that may be [illegible] otherwise, but whatever the nature of the malady may be, it is our own personal handicap with which we are concerned.

We are not anxious about things that may be corrected with thorough shampoo and some of the numberless facial treatments, but there are some disorders that may be most depressing. Skin blemishes, we believe, bring more annoyance and real heartaches than any other beauty ill.

We speak of this malady from time to time as it is one that is with us always, not in the sense of being incurable at all, but because there is always, as it seems, a new group of young persons who must experience some form of skin infection.

We would like to assure these young [illegible] that there is nothing [illegible] about skin blemishes during their adolescent years and that nearly every case —even very severe ones—may be completely removed. But when one is almost disfigured with these unsightly eruptions, there is likely to be a condition of mental depression. A feeling of unfitness or inferiority is common among young persons who are often ridiculed and scorned by their associates, and it is a mistake for parents to ignore this situation.

[illegible] their young, sensitive skins. The [illegible] specialists tell us [illegible] on the surface of the skin, and that it is seldom necessary to give internal treatment.

We know that blackheads and blemishes are not found on skin that is kept thoroughly cleansed. We may feel that washing the face once or twice a day will keep it in good condition, but some skins [illegible] the oily types — need almost surgical cleansing.

The complexion brush or sponge used frequently with a creamy soap lather and followed by thorough rinsing will help a great deal, but the treatment that has been used successfully by thousands of persons throughout the country will be sure to show a marvelous improvement immediately. It is inexpensive and can be made up at home.

If you would like to have this method it will be mailed to you without charge if you will enclose a [illegible] envelope for your replay and address [illegible] Boston Evening American.

MADGE DEMANDS ULTIMATUM BE WITHDRAWN

CHAPTER 619

EVEN in the righteous fury which was mine at Edith Fairfax for the atrocious accusation she had flung at me, I could not help feeling sympathy as she heard Dicky's pronunciamento that he never would work with her again.

I knew, no one better, what that partnership had meant to Edith, not only for its enforced close association with Dicky, but because of the independence which the venture had given to her.

"Don't let her out of your sight until I have talked to Dicky," I muttered in a tone audible only to her. Then I spoke aloud to my husband.

"You musn't do this thing, Dicky," I said vehemently. "Come out on the veranda. I want to talk to you."

Once there, he faced me sternly.

"I might have known you'd pull something of this sort," he said. "You'd tie up the paw of a tiger that clawed you into ribbons, if he'd hurt the paw in the process. I never saw so forgiving a person, but here's one time where it doesn't go. I've stood a lot from that dame, but when it comes to her insulting you like that in your own house—well! I promised to 'cherish' you when I married you, didn't I? A hell of a cherisher I'd be to let that hyena get away with a thing like that! Nay, nay, dear! What I said goes."

He tried to pull me back into the bungalow, but I stood my ground, and grasping his [illegible] looked up steadily into his [illegible]

"I do believe you're [illegible] jealous of her, and have been all the years," he said. "That's worth a lot to me."

"Of course, I've been jealous of her," I said with apparent calmness, but with my pulses pounding. "But that doesn't mean that I want to see her dive from the top of a building."

He stiffened, and his eyes bored into mine.

"What makes you think that?" he asked thickly after a second.

"Her eyes," I said. "If ever abject, hopeless defeat and a determination to get out of life looked out of a woman's eyes they looked out of Edith's just now. I'm sure Lillian will tell you the same thing. We can't have that on our souls, Dicky. We can't. I couldn't—couldn't—bear it."

And then to my horror, I broke into a storm of hysterical sobbing.

Ham, Salmon Are Old-Time Favorites

By MARTHA LEE

EASTER, when we celebrate officially the arrival of spring, is an occasion for rejoicing.

Here are some s[illegible] at cooking school, suitable for luncheon parties.

HAM PANCAKE AND CHEESE SAUCE

- 1½ cup flour
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ⅔ cup milk
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- Deviled ham spread

Mix flour and salt, add milk and egg slowly, stirring until smooth. Make the pancakes one at a time. Butter a small frying pan (5½ inches in diameter) and pour in quickly a little batter, turning the pan to spread the batter very thin over bottom of pan. Brown cakes on both sides. Place a tablespoon of deviled ham spread in the center, roll and place in a baking dish. Cover with cheese sauce and place in a hot oven until delicately browned.

CHEESE SAUCE

- 2 tbsps. butter
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 1 cup milk
- ½ tsp. salt
- Pepper
- ½ to ¾ cup grated cheese

Melt the butter; stir in flour. Remove from direct heat and pour in the liquid. Stir slowly but steadily over direct heat until the sauce boils. Add grated cheese. Melt. Pour over pancakes.

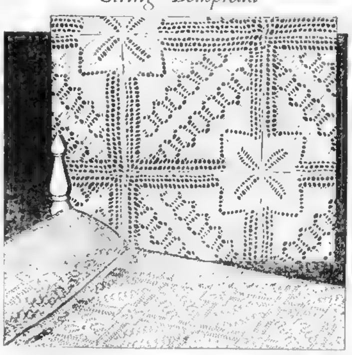

CREAMED SHRIMP AND EGGS IN RICE RING

- 1 cup milk
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 2 tbsps. butter
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 small can or 1 cup shrimp
- 4 eggs, hard cooked
- 1 cup rice, cooked
- Broiled peaches

Make white sauce of milk, flour, butter and [illegible]. Add shrimp and sliced eggs to white sauce. Pack cooked rice into well greased mold. Place in a moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) until heated through. [illegible] on serving dish and place creamed mixture in the center. Garnish with broiled peaches. To prepare: Drain the halves of peaches, place in shallow baking pan, fill the cavity of each peach with mayonnaise and sprinkle with paprika. Place in broiling oven about five minutes or until the mayonnaise browns.

Lindy Case Secrets

German Passed Bills in Bronx

In the fourth chapter of his personal inside story of the "Crime of the Century," Lou Wedemar, star reporter who covered the case from its inception, tells of the pursuit of the child's murderer.

By LOU WEDEMAR

(Copyright 1936, by Universal Service)

Trenton, N. J., April 9—"There's the man now!"

The store-keeper pointed to a German who was passing. I ran to the sidewalk and, trying to keep out of sight, followed him.

We had known for some time that the Lindbergh baby's kidnaper was spending ransom money, although the newspapers in a plan of co-operation with the police, did not make the fact public for fear of warning the fugitive.

A bank-teller friend had told me about one $10 ransom certificate which had been turned over to the police, and nothing out on an investigation of my own. I had traced it through a peddler to his uncle, and thence to the storekeeper in Yorkville.

The storekeeper had described the customer who gave it to him remembering because the customer had bought only a nickel's worth of sauerkraut and demanded change of $10, and just as he was finishing the description German, five feet ten, brown hair, blue eyes—the customer himself had passed.

I followed him to a subway station and aboard a train, always keeping at a safe distance. I was certain he did not know I was "shadowing" him. At a crowded Bronx station he got off the train, and I followed him to the sidewalk, and, walking faster now to a house not far from Third avenue. He entered, and I waited out side.

He never came out, so far as I know. I stood in a cold drizzle for twenty-four hours, and then searched every apartment in the house, despite rather angry objections by the tenants. But my quarry was not there, and no one seemed to know him.

I don't know whether he was Bruno Richard Hauptmann. I do know he resembled him, and that I may have been within arm's reach of the world's most widely sought criminal—only to lose him.

This was only one of scores of adventures, pleasant to read about but nerve-wracking while under way, that I and other reporters had during the search for the ransom-money passer.

Three Confessed

I had three different persons confess the kidnaping to me during this period, and, much to my disgust, managed to disprove each of their stories as the product of a twisted mind.

There was no progress in trying to determine the meaning of the prints found outside the Lindbergh home. The one of a woman was explained away as having been made by Mrs. Lindbergh on an afternoon stroll before the kidnaping; the other, which resembled the imprint of a heavy-ribbed stocking over a man's shoe, seemed inexplicable.

Back to the chemists went the authorities, with one of the most amazing physical clues in the case. That was a handkerchief—a cheap one which had never been laundered and so was untraceable. It had been dropped by a man outside the cemetery when the ransom was being paid to "Ransom John" inside the walls, apparently as a signal. Col. Lindbergh had seen it dropped, and the authorities had recovered it. It led nowhere and the identity of the second man is still shrouded in mystery.

In May, 1933, the ransom money was appearing in restaurants, motion picture theaters, stores and banks at the rate of several bills a week. We raced madly to each place, and fought with the confused memories of scores of storekeepers, cashiers and tellers, without doing more than build up a synthetic picture of one man.

Last Day a Shock

That picture was too vague to be of value then for there were thousands of men who resembled it. The only hope was to catch the money-passer red-handed, so the net was tightened, new lists of ransom bills were circulated, rewards were offered to bank tellers who found any of them.

It was incredible that the monster who murdered the Lindbergh baby was walking carelessly along the crowded sidewalks of New York city, seemingly completely safe from arrest. Hundreds of bank tellers worked overtime to check their money against ransom-bill lists.

And then the investigators at the Federal Reserve Bank had a shock. Among the gold certificates turned in on the last day allowed by law, there was $2400 Lindbergh ransom money.

The criminal, daring as always, had walked right into the center of the net spread for him—and walked right out again, and now he had $2400 in unlisted bills to spend!

(The Lindbergh baby's kidnaper defied his pursuers by exchanging ransom money under their very noses. In the fifth chapter of this unusual document Lou Wedemer tells the "inside story" of how the authorities intensified their search and captured Bruno Richard Hauptmann.)

GRANITE STRIKE BY 60 ENDED

Essex, April 9—The strike of 60 men on granite cutters, employed by the Rockport Granite Company, was settled peacefully today following a conference between a union committee and Vincent Shea, president of the company.

The men walked out late yesterday after being informed by Constantin Pazzo, executive council member of the Granite Cutters' International Union at Quincy, that the wage rate in this city is far below the union schedule. The strikers demanded a flat rate of $1 an hour to replace the piecework rate.

Curley to Debate On Radio Tonight

Governor Curley will leave Boston today for New York where he will participate in a nation-wide radio debate, tonight.

He had originally planned to go from New York to Washington for a conference with President Roosevelt, but this trip has been postponed until April 15.

Federal Building Speeds Elevators

In an effort to improve Federal Building elevator service, officials have inaugurated restrictions in down service on each floor.

Even numbered floors have down service on the Milk street side while odd numbers will have it on the Water street side.

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO —"IT'S TOASTED"

MOISTURE CONTROL

The most important single attribute of cigarettes, other than the tobacco itself, is moisture content. To its influence we owe the ability to make uniform cigarettes, to control combustion, and to govern quality of smoke. Excessive moisture interferes with proper combustion, and makes cigarette smoke unpalatable. Insufficient moisture permits dry, dusty cigarette smoke to impinge upon the delicate mucous membrane of the smoker.

SWAN SONG: -:- IT OUGHT TO BE GOOD!

"Well, I swan!" exclaimed a longshoreman at the Mystic docks in Charlestown, today. He was just having his morning pun as he helped to unload 108 shipwrecked swans from the Furness liner, Newfoundland. Eight of the swans were black, 100 white. They are en route to the Benson animal farm at Nashua, N. H. En route from Holland, they were aboard the freighter Bilderdyk, which shed her rudder at sea and was towed to Halifax. At Halifax they were transferred to the liner Newfoundland for the trip here.

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

Somehow, there is a glamour about a dancer that belongs to almost no other kind of stage entertainer. The annals of the 19th century are full of the tales of the stupendous and continuing popularity of beautiful dancing women—Grisi, Taglioni, Fanny Elssler (L'Aiglon's girl friend), and Kate Vaughan, the skirt dancer. Today all these are forgotten and the contemporary balletomania hardly goes back beyond Diaghileff and the Ballet Russe.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Marilyn Miller, who helped enliven and make lively so many popular entertainments of the Ziegfeld and the Dillingham tradition, was a very beautiful and charming girl, but she was not, I suspect, a great dancer. I mean that she was much more of a musical comedy entertainer than a dancer. She could sing pretty well, she was little of a comedienne, she was undoubtedly very beautiful in the classic English mode of pink and white and dazzling blonde, and people always remembered her with aesthetic pleasure and a certain kind of mild affection. Further than that, I suspect, her personality did not carry her.

But her dancing was only one of her many talents; it was not her life work, so to speak. Her portrait is not included in the two pages that the Britannica gives to famous modern dancers. I doubt if she bulks large in Mr. Lincoln Kirstein's book of the ballet.

Fitted Pleasantly In Old Tradition

She danced in the classical tradition, of course, but as modified by Longacre square. Of that tradition Adeline Genee was perhaps the last of the great ones, even in such a Broadway entertainment as "The Waltz Dream." At present the most distinguished exponent of the old school of the Paris Opera and Covent Garden is Harriet Hocter. Marilyn Miller fitted pleasantly into that tradition, young and brilliantly blonde—even without Genee's fragile and Dresden china quality—with a healthy, unspoiled, magazine-cover quality to her beauty, shapely even in that most trying of costumes, the traditional tarlatan kilt of Degas's ballet figurines, pleasant and gemuthlich enough.

She had no truck with the mystical Oriental posings of Ruth St. Denis. She made no attempt to learn the ugly geometrical barbarisms of the Wigman school. And the ardent improvisations to the music of Chopin and Beethoven and Brahms by the stoutish Isadora Duncan, whom most modern commentators seem to consider an inspired fake, found no place in her repertory. Perhaps that was because Ziegfeld and Dillingham were better showmen than were Isadora and Maude Allen and their prototype, "Little Egypt."

Her most ambitious gesture and her one failure was her impersonation of Peter Pan in Barrie's play. It was thoroughly justified, because the English have always made more of a Christmas pantomime kind of show out of it than the poetic and symbolic piece that Maude Adams taught America to love. But those who remembered the old version would have none of it.

Dance Dicipline Robbed Marilyn of Her Youth

She was only 38 when she died untimely, but she had lost something of her girlish quality even a decade ago. One suspects that the discipline of a great dancer was beyond her powers. And it is probably true that in her last important success, "Sunny," she was at something of a disadvantage in playing opposite to that really great dancer, Jack Donahue. One is almost forced to wonder whether even the best of women dancers can be as great as a man. Certainly Jack Donahue was great in a sense beyond Marilyn Miller's talents. Query: Was even Pavlova in her prime as great as Nijinski?

Most of us will probably remember her best and most affectionately in "Sally," that almost perfect blend of appealing story, melodic music, and a part which seemed created just for Marilyn Miller. In a later show I seem to remember one affecting reprise—"Won't you come back to the alley, Sally?" The world of make-believe has lost a very charming and likable figure. Only in memory, that limited immortality of the theater, she still lives.

POLICE RESCUE 12

Victims Overcome at 2 Fires

Eleven persons, overcome by smoke and one suffering from burns were rescued by police at fires in the South End and Everett today.

Seven persons were found overcome in a five-story apartment building in Columbus avenue and were carried to safety by members of the special safety squad.

The other four, including Miss Anne Tuttle, who is under treatment for serious burns at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett, were rescued as a two-alarm fire swept through the home of Webster Tuttle in McKinley street, Everett.

The South End blaze, which was discovered by officers led by Sergeant Joseph V. Condon, apparently started in the rear of the first floor.

Damage was estimated at $1500 and investigation by the police arson squad was ordered.

Officers were forced to break through doors to arouse the residents and found them overcome when they reached their apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Douglas and their three children, Myrtle, 10, Doris, 7, and Ethel, 3, were carried to safety.

Officers also found Mrs. Etta Mead, 77, and her son, Frank, 54, overcome. As officers carried Mead to safety she insisted that her pet parrot and money box be rescued.

After turning back into the smoke-filled apartment, police located the bird and money box and carried them to safety.

Mrs. Rena Poulos rescued her pet parrot Jo Jo and also saved several suitcases which she had packed for a trip today to Washington, D. C. The fire did not delay her departure.

In Everett, police on duty in a cruising car discovered the blaze in the Tuttle home.

Tuttle, his daughter, a son, Woodward, and the housekeeper, Miss Elsie Eliza Pike, were carried to safety. All were overcome by smoke and Miss Tuttle was found to be seriously burned on the head, face and arms.

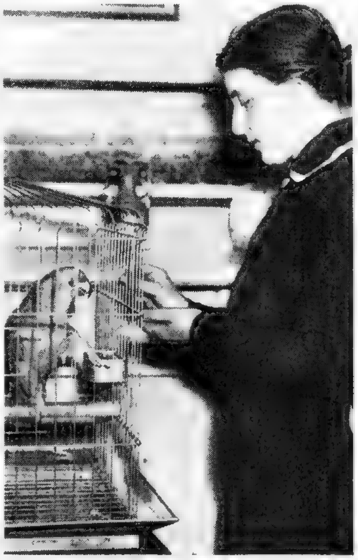

Investigation is to be made of the blaze, which caused damage estimated at $4000.

Clean Sweep

It isn't enough that the lettering of the huge automobile sign behind the Park Street Church be removed—the framework must be removed, too, Assistant Attorney General James G. Ronan ruled today.

For many years Bostonians had been accustomed to tell the time by looking at the clock on this Beacon Hill landmark. In February it was ordered removed. The automobile company paying for it did remove the clock and advertising.

Escape South End Fire

Mrs. Rena Poulos and her pet parrot, Jo-Jo, are exchanging good-byes as Mrs. Poulos prepares to leave Boston for a week's excursion to Washington, D. C., in spite of a fire today which drove her from her Columbus avenue home. She carried Jo-Jo to safety. Seven persons were overcome by smoke.

2 Brockton Girls Sought by Police

Brockton, April 9—Disappearance of two high school girls was revealed today after their parents had conducted a secret all-night search with the aid of local and state police.

The girls are Margaret Hawley, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Hawley of Watson street, and Josephine Brainard, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Brainard of Brookside avenue.

Both girls are freshmen at Brockton High school.

They attended classes yesterday and left for their homes at 2 p. m. They did not reach home and police assistance was requested after darkness fell with no word from them.

Bill Waits Signing

Governor Curley today has before him for signature the bill to provide for approval of medical schools by a State board, enacted in both branches of the Legislature.

13 HIS LUCKY NUMBER

Record Wins Western Union Honor

Number 13 isn't generally associated with luck and lack of accidents . . . to but George H. McKinley well he'll take that number any time.

Today he was presented with a gold star card by the Western Union Telegraph Company for his perfect non-accident record.

Glancing at the card he realized that it bore his lucky number 13. It read:

"In recognition of 13 consecutive years' service with a perfect safety record."

It was [illegible] the first time 13 figured [illegible] life.

Over [illegible] he served in the 13th [illegible] Corps. He came back to Portland, Maine (13 letters) February 13, 1919.

His wife, Elsie McKinley (13 letters) was born on February 13. After eight years of married life [illegible] this was the luckiest for him.

The McKinleys have a four-year-old daughter, Elsie Mae. They live at 38 Lakehurst avenue, Weymouth.

McKinley says that it isn't all luck in the matter of averting accidents. There are a few rules.

"When I started working for the Western Union I realized that accidents in driving the trucks and installing the equipment could be considerably reduced, if not entirely prevented, by thinking of the other fellow on the job as well as of oneself," he said. "In driving on the road today that's true, too . . . You can't just think of yourself."

His gold star safety card, the first in a series which the Western Union plans to present annually to honor record employes, represents an award for ten or more consecutive years' service for not sustaining a personal injury, or causing an injury to another."

Mean Thief Takes Boys' Easter Cash

Cleveland, April 9 (AP)—A confidence man cheated two small boys out of $2.50 with which they were going to buy their mother Easter flowers, police reported today.

Chester Koziel, 12, and his brother Richard, 8, told Patrolman Roy Wieland they had earned the money selling magazines.

The boys said the man asked Chester to do an errand. The man offered to put the $2.50 in an envelope for safekeeping while Chester was gone.

When the boys opened the envelope later they said they found only a blank slip of paper.

TRAFFIC FACES WPA CENSUS

A traffic census by which the state hopes to save $10,000,000 in its road construction program in the next [illegible] years is to be commenced next week by 900 white collar WPA workers.

The [illegible] will be state-wide and [illegible] months for completion. Maps are to be prepared to show the flow of traffic on principal streets in 300 cities and towns, Boston excluded.

The federal government will contribute $722,432 for the cost of labor and the State Department of Public Works will furnish $30,920 for supplies.

Race Bettor Wins $3.75, Calls Police

Peter McLaughlin, investigator for the New England Watch and Ward Society, bet 50 cents in a horse betting parlor, won $3.75 and called the police.

The story came out in Woburn court today. Patrick Costello was fined $25 for registering bets. Harry Warren was fined $75 for maintaining a gambling establishment in a smoke shop in Main street, Woburn. Seven men customers, convicted of being present at the nefarious goings-on, were discharged.

McLaughlin, whose complaint to police resulted in a raid on the place yesterday, produced his winnings in court as evidence of the betting.

Braintree Club Event Tuesday

The Braintree Catholic Women's Club will hold its annual Presidents' Night next Tuesday at Cochato Club House, Braintree.

The committee in charge of program is headed by Mrs. J. Francis Halloran, president. Mrs. Edward J. Lane and Mrs. Lester J. McCusker are hostesses for the evening.

Primary Bill Dies

The House has refused to reconsider a bill which would give Boston run-off primaries for the nomination of candidates for mayor and City Council. The vote was 98 to 109.

Port Pact Delayed

Settlement of several controversial points concerning working conditions is delaying preparation of a contract between union longshoremen and steamship interests, it was indicated today by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

THE MORNING MAIL. At last a man has declared himself, in a nice long letter, about women and their fashions. We feel that you should know about this, so you'll be able to ponder upon whether or not it's the general male opinion.

ANN MARSTERS

He is a Mr. D. A. (not the district attorney) of this city, and he writes:

"It is a generally accepted theory that women wear pretty clothes to please the men. However, I am inclined to believe that the modern young woman is not making favorable impressions on us. When I view the modern girl's garb and makeup, I have to sigh out, 'How long will ye vex my soul?'

"With women's styles going topsy-turvy, it would seem to me that there is a deliberate effort to overawe the male. Hats this year are marvelously funny. I'd call them mantle-piece ornaments sitting on a woman's head . . .

"Makeup is also going streamlined. Scarlet lips and narrow fringed eyes stare out of their faces to frighten bewildered males.

"And their long red fingernails seem to threaten the young man's throat as they reach for his cigarettes."

Red Fingernails Inspire the Muse

We think Mr. D. A. is wrong, on a few counts, and we are still feeling very happy about our new Easter bonnet. And furthermore, we LIKE red fingernails—even though we have never yet met a man who admitted a preference for them. We like them because, for some rather obscure reason, their appearance makes us feel quite gay (at so slight a cost) as they trip over the typewriter keys.

Mother was puzzling over the race results—which she has just begun to read, these days. After a while, she looked up with a light of revelation in her eyes. "Ann," she said, solemnly, "There's a horse here that you ought to pick in your selections sometime. He's always coming in fourth and hadn't he ought to win soon?" It developed that mother's horse was "Also ran."

Anyway, she has promised to tune in on her radio tonight at 8:30, because Jimmy Foxx, Joe Cronin, Bob Quinn and myself will be heard over WNAC and WEAN. I'm planning to tell you (and mother) about the subject nearest my heart, nowadays—racing and betting—and what I have learned, so far, in my experiences as a handicapper.

Did you know that the coloring of Easter eggs is supposed to represent the Aurora Borealis and the dawning of the Easter sun? It was long, long ago, of course, that the idea originated—and it is quite evident that modern candy manufacturers have capitalized on it.

Many Old Easter Customs Lost

But many of the old Easter customs have become completely lost. One, for instance, that the Norsemen used to practice. At Easter, they kindled bonfires on the hills, dispersing germs of evil so far as the fire shed its light. And around these fires, young men and maidens who intended marriage during the coming year, sang and danced and leapt three times over the fire. (We know this is true because we have just read about it in a very large book.)

• • •

In the Easter parade, we should wear orchids with tailored suits as well as with the dressier ensembles. They should follow the line of the left lapel, and it's a neat trick to have the orchids tied with ribbon the same color as the suit or to match your contrasting accessories.

(Incidentally, father has been making plans for his new spring outfit, too. He says he's going to have his old gray suit cleansed and his felt hat refurbished. And to top it off, he's hoping someone will give him a new Easter tie—or maybe he isn't.)

HEARD ABOUT TOWN—Smelling salts, milady, are coming back into vogue. Tiny bottles of them are available for your purse—to sniff at when you feel tired and hungry. Maybe swooning will make a comeback, too . . . Guy Lombardo and his boys are tentatively booked for an August engagement at Levaggi's Showboat . . . Dartmouth College is considering the idea of dispensing with professional football coaches. If it does, seniors who were sophomore and junior varsity players will serve as instructors . . .

Somerville Arms to Demand Red Sox Do Right by Skinny

SOMERVILLE'S CIVIC PRIDE, which appears to be the loftiest kind of municipal pride on record, is wounded. Bleeding with outrage because the Red Sox swept a hometown idol off its pedestal, President of the Somerville Board of Aldermen, is raising an army to march on Fenway Park next Tuesday with banners and petitions.

Austen Lake

The Town's No. 1 Alderman, Mr. G. Edward Bradley, has held indignation meetings and roused the taxpayers to such a froth that they plan to storm the Jersey Street ramparts and demand why Eddie Collins has exiled such a popular, local hero as young Skinny Graham to a Kansas mountain hamlet, instead of a Class AA metropolis. The least he could have done, they say, is to haul him home for temporary display in the club's gala opening.

In case you weren't listening, Skinny is not really skinny, but a blocky kid outfielder with lots of professional polish, who inherited his name from a lean and athletic father. And though a naturally snappy-looking and intelligent youth, he seemed a little confused in the go-as-you-please tempo of the Sox training camp this spring.

So Joe Cronin, haggard with the cares and worries of planning for 35 men and being loaded a large stable of veteran outfielders who had cost several thicknesses of Tom Yawkey's wealth, decided to check him with Little Rock, which is a kind of check room for the Boston club's surplus. Joe said he would call for Skinny later when he was ready.

* * *

SKINNY SURE TO COME BACK

THIS IS WHAT MAKES the Somerville citizens sore. Because last year Skinny was checked for the time being in Syracuse, a sub-major league city, where he hit baseballs away so lavishly that the cost of lost balls was like to bust the management. So they hollered for the Red Sox to come and get him, which they did late last season. But this spring the Sox were over-bought in outfield stock, having added Heinie Manush and Roger Cramer to Almeda, Cooke and Miller, several of whom were slightly shopworn but still tough and grizzled.

So Cronin decided, what with this a pennant year, and wishing to lean on the side of experience, he would put Skinny out to soak a while longer. But the Sox have broken the old engagement with Syracuse and have taken up with a little wilderness wench named Little Rock. And Joe gave the kid a friendly pat on the pants, said, "I'll be seeinyuh," and off he went, a little sore in the soul, but with his chin up and hopeful.

It occurs to me now that Somerville's townsfolk are spending their outrage prematurely. Because, though it doesn't make any difference how many of Little Rock's fences Skinny busts down with his long shots, because the natives cut their timber right off of the forest's virgin heart which borders their outfield, it won't be long before he is losing so many baseballs that the management will yell again for the Red Sox to come and get him. Which will make both Somerville and the Red Sox very happy.

SLIGHT CASE OF MURDER

MOST NAIVE FORM OF SPORT literature is the wrestling brochures with which ambitious managers pepper the journals of the country. In an eight-page flier, describing the rough-house virtues of Dean Detton, the "Mormon Flash," a shirt-tail paragraph speaks modestly of his manager, "Toots" Mondt, reading:

"Mondt has done his best to stay in the background and has never cared for publicity that comes to the front man—but as the old saying goes, 'Murder will out.'"

Yes, and sometimes it comes out in the queerest places. As when, recently, after Dick Shikat pilfered O'Mahony's championship, Toots, the shaggy old rapscallion, turned up as Dick's manager, murder broke out like the measles.

* * *

THERE IS A SLIGHT STRAIN of hysteria in the memoranda which the Olympic Committee is mailing to its branch officials, querulous, almost tearful appeals for greater action in collecting funds. Having, at the moment, only $30,000 of a required sum ten times that figure, the U. S. team will have to be trimmed to a skeleton or the athletes will be asked to foot part of the expense.

A rumor, discredited in sensible circles, says that Germany, in its anxiety to gain the benefits of international propaganda, is prepared to advance the shortage, via underground route, and feed it to the Committee disguised as loyal native donations. This smacks strictly of hokem.

POORHOUSE OLYMPICS

RESOLVED TO HALT the pernicious practice of open friendship between players of rival teams, the National League has a standing fine of $10 for any athlete detected in friendly chat, banter or horseplay with a member of the opposing club. The idea is to foster an illusion of hostility between the rival firms and give the patrons a bigger dollar's worth of grimness.

Now to heighten the phantasy, the management of the Cincinnati Reds adds another $10 fine to that of the league for each offense, which officially is called "Fraternizing."

This strikes me as a mild form of hypocrisy and a bit of weak theatrics. Because day in and out the players of both sides hobnob under the stands in the twilight, cutting capers in the tunnels, and only straightening their faces to pretended snobbishness when they come into the daylight of the playing field, where scrutiny by the customers begins.

MISS MARSTERS TELLS SYSTEM

By Jack Conway
(Sports Editor)

Baseball and racing on the air!

Between 8:30 p. m. and 8:45 p. m. tonight over stations WNAC of Boston and WEAN of Providence under the auspices of the Boston Evening American.

The all-star cast:

Miss Ann Marsters, girl race horse handicapper and feature writer.

Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox home run hitter.

Joe Cronin, manager of the Sox.

Bob Quinn, owner of the Bees.

Miss Marsters will reveal some of the secrets behind her handicapping system. She will tell you how she picks the winners.

Bob Quinn

Miss Marsters is in the midst of a sensational winning streak. Listen in, and hear all about her racing system.

Jimmy Foxx is glad to be with the Red Sox. He is ready for the opening of the city series with the Bees, and for the start of the American League season in Boston against the Athletics next Tuesday.

Foxx will tell you all about his baseball plans, and his hopes for the future.

Joe Cronin will tell the story of the 1936 Red Sox.

Bob Quinn has been watching the Bees get ready for the National League pennant drive. Quinn knows baseball, and will give you the "inside" story on his new club.

Don't fail to tune in on this brilliant sports program.

SOX BEST. Jimmy Foxx, left, and Manager Joe Cronin will both be on the air tonight over Stations WNAC and WEAN at 8:30 in the most important local sports broadcast of the year under the sponsorship of the Boston Evening American.

MacFayden To Oppose Ferrell

Goldsboro, N. C., April 9—Deacon Danny MacFayden, former Somerville high school star, automatically assumed the rank of ace of the Bees' pitching staff, today, when he was named as Wes Ferrell's opponent for the opening game of the city-series at National League Park tomorrow afternoon.

Deacon Danny was a surprise selection, the more unexpected because McKechnie withheld Ben Cantwell from yesterday's final exhibition game with Wake Forest College.

The assignment to the opening game of the city series also indicates that Manny, barring any mishap tomorrow, will pitch the opening game of the season in Philadelphia on Tuesday.

Because the Bees have had only a single day's work during the past week due to the inclement weather, MacFayden will not pitch the entire game as Ferrell is listed to do. He will be relieved at the half way mark by Jim "Tiny" Chaplin, 30-year-old rookie from Nashville.

That Bees put much, however, that the Bees pitching will suffer by the switch. For all the two score pitchers the Bees had in camp this spring, Chaplin's record is the best, surpassing even Deacon Danny's.

Rushing homeward the Bees took back on their 15th successive spring training season in St. Petersburg, as one of the most successive and most disastrous in many years

FOXX WRITES

Free Advice To Crusaders | Red Sox Look Like Champions

By JIMMY FOXX

Washington, D. C., April 9—Home at last! As far as I'm concerned, the training season lasts much too long. I was as ready to start the pennant race two weeks ago as I am today.

But I suppose there are players who require six weeks or more to get in shape.

Anyway, it's sure a grand and glorious feeling, after a weary week of barnstorming, to be in Boston with the opening of the flag hunt right around the corner.

We have four games to play before we take on the Philadelphia Athletics at Fenway Park next Tuesday in the inaugural of a season which, we are confident, will see the Red Sox bring Boston its first major league championship since 1918.

Today we go to Worcester to play the Holy Cross nine. Tomorrow we begin the annual three-game city series with the rejuvenated Bees. Always assuming, of course, that we are not snowed, rained or frozen out.

STRONG CLUB

Every year Holy Cross has one of the strongest college nines in the land and this spring, I understand, my old pal, Jack Barry, has his classiest collection of diamond talent ever.

I'm glad to hear that it means we'll get a good workout to put us on edge for the clashes with the Bees. We can use one, judging from the trouble we had winning in Richmond yesterday.

Speaking of Holy Cross, it occurs to me that more than one member of Coach Barry's squad could enter fast pro ranks today if they desired.

I compliment them on their good judgment in gaining a college education before thinking of taking up baseball as a career.

With a college degree in their pockets, they'll have a future in other lines if they fail to make the grade in pro ball.

Altogether too many youngsters pass up a chance to go to college so that they can enter pro ranks as young as possible. That's a serious mistake.

And I would advise the Holy Cross players and all other college stars who do gain big league fame not to spend more than three or four years after graduation trying to reach their goal.

If they can't do it in that time the odds will be against them ever succeeding and they'll be smart if they turn their hand to something else instead of going on struggling to get by on a meager minor league salary.

WELCH HURLS

Long John Welch will pitch against the collegians today. Manager Joe Cronin can afford to give "Sleepy Boy" a needed workout in Worcester for we know now we have four hurlers on edge for the three games with the Bees.

Wes Ferrell, who'll start tomorrow, has had a week's rest following a fine showing against the Cubs. "Lefty" Grove's effort in Knoxville on Tuesday last showed he was primed for the Saturday game.

"Rube" Walberg and Fritz Ostermueller qualified for Sunday service when they led us to a 3 to 1 victory over Richmond yesterday.

Walberg continues to prove our most effective flinger to date. He went four innings and didn't yield a solitary hit. He's now worked 16 frames and hasn't permitted an earned run and only one that was unearned.

He'll be a starting pitcher from the opening gun.

THE WHOLE TOWN IS TALKING over the selections which are being made by Ann Marsters, above, feature writer for the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser. She is the only girl handicapper in New England. She will tell about her handicapping. Jack Conway, sports editor of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, and Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, will also appear.

Price for Players Exaggerated, Says Prexy

New York, April 9 (AP)—If it's not asking too much, Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of the Boston Red Sox, would like to spend his money as he pleases without too much criticism from the other owners in the American League.

Yawkey doesn't want to make anything of this. He merely wants it made clear that (with the exception of the deal for Joe Cronin) every price I have been quoted as paying for ball players has been grossly exaggerated and even if they hadn't it would be my own private concern. It is generally accepted that Yawkey has spent $3,500,000 on the club since 1934.

Complaints

"Everybody's worrying about my going broke," Yawkey said. "And while I appreciate their interest, I don't think there's much of a chance of that. I'm not kicking about paying and unless I completely upset the balance of power in the league I don't think this adverse criticism is justified."

Yawkey admitted that "two or three officials of other clubs in the league" had complained about the policy of the Red Sox.

From now on Yawkey hopes to be able to bolster the Red Sox without having to rely too much on his fortune. He said that the club was planning to take on additional working agreements with other clubs whenever Billy Evans, who is in charge of this work for the club, can effect satisfactory deals.

At present the Red Sox have working agreements with Syracuse in the International League, Little Rock in the Southern Association, Danville in the Bi-State League, and they own the Rocky Mount, N. C., club in the Piedmont League.

Follow Club

As a sample of the type of facts in the trading relations of the Boston club, Yawkey pointed to the club's deal for Heinie Manush. He said that the deal was announced as a straight player deal: Manush for Carl Reynolds and Roy Johnson, but that the deal seemed to pick up more cash every time he read about it.

Yawkey left here today for Boston to see the exhibition series between the Red Sox and the Bees. He said he hoped to see his club play over 100 games this season, and think more than likely he would fly around the league to watch them on the road.

He is still dreaming about a pennant for Boston, he admitted, and thinks that with good breaks he might realize his dream this season.

Red Sox Meet H. C. at Worcester

By Bill Grimes

Worcester, April 9—One of the largest crowds ever to trek to Fitton Field will be in attendance when the Red Sox and Holy Cross clash this afternoon.

Manager Joe Cronin will field a strong aggregation against the Crusaders. Roger Cramer and Eric McNair, who detrained at Philadelphia last night, may be here by game time, but "Lefty" Grove, Rube Walberg, Billy Werber, "Bing" Miller and "Dusty" Cooke will be absentees.

Johnny Welch is Manager Joe Cronin's selection for mound duty this afternoon. "Sleepy" John is slowly rounding into form and he'll be obliged to bear down against the Crusaders, for Coach Jack Barry has a well-balanced hard-hitting veteran aggregation representing the Mt. St. James institution.

Coach Barry plans to open with Roy Bruninghaus, a right hander, but Al Jarlett, another veteran, will see service as will Wilfred Le Fevre, a sophomore of much promise.

Captain Joe Cusick will do the receiving and he'll come in for

Bees Consider Canton Club

Zanesville, O., April 9 (AP)—Officials of seven clubs of the mid-Atlantic baseball League had hopes today that the Boston National League club would establish a farm in Canton, giving them an eight-club loop this season.

At a meeting here last night, the seven posted $900 forfeits each and planned to go into session again Monday at Canton to draw up a six or eight club schedule. The season probably will start May 7.

A decision of the Boston possibility was expected within two or three days. Joe Carr, minor league promotional director, of Columbus, told President Elmer Daily of the Mid-Atlantic that he had been in touch with Boston officials yesterday and that they were favorably inclined toward establishing a farm club in Canton.

Lyscusion indicated that if this possibility fell through the Mid-Atlantic might consider bearing one-third of the cost of financing a Canton club, or readmitting Beckley, W. Va., or dropping Johnstown, Pa., to make a six-club league.

Mr. Boston Mat Body To Name Referee

By Jack Conway

THE AMERICAN Wrestling Association will be asked to name the referee for the world's heavyweight championship wrestling bout between Danno O'Mahony and Yvon Robert at the Garden a week from tomorrow night.

Joe Alvarez, pinch-hitting for Paul Bowser who is at the Forest Hills Hospital recovering from a gall bladder operation, tried to get Jack McGrath and Eddie Quinn, rival managers, to agree on the third man in the ring.

Mr. Boston

McGrath asked that Ted Tonneman be named as referee.

"Tonneman is the most capable wrestling referee in the country," said McGrath. "He is fair and will not favor either man."

Quinn protested against Tonneman.

"Robert pinned O'Mahony 15 times in their last bout at the Garden," exclaimed Quinn, "and Tonneman didn't allow him a single fall. I won't let Robert enter the ring if Tonneman is picked as referee.

"My choices for referee of the coming bout are Al Morelli and Charley Donnell."

McGrath wouldn't agree to the naming of either Morelli or Donnell any more than Quinn would to the selection of Tonneman. Neither would McGrath and Quinn consent to permitting Alvarez to name the referee.

After a lengthy conference it was agreed that the dispute over the question of the referee be referred to the American Wrestling Association. The parent organization of the mat game has been asked to name the referee for the title bout and it is expected to do so.

* * *

Dr. Francis F. Henderson, who operated upon Paul Bowser, states that the wrestling promoter's condition is good. He says Bowser will still be confined to the hospital when O'Mahony and Robert clash at the Garden but that the promoter should be well enough to be moved to his home in Lexington in two weeks.

SHARKEY 201

JACK Sharkey scaled 201 pounds after stepping through four lively rounds with Don Petrin and Freddy Fiduca and doing some bag punching and rope skipping at Buckley's Gym.

Sharkey showed great spirit during his workout as a result of the relaxation he gained during his recent fishing trip to Maine. Fiduca boxes much like Tony Shucco whom Sharkey meets at the Garden on next Tuesday night. As a result his new spar mate should be of much value to him.

Sharkey is satisfied with his physical condition and openly states he believes he will stop Shucco inside of six rounds.

"I feel like the old Sharkey," the former champion told me. "My muscles are hard, my punching sure, while I move around the ring with precision."

* * *

Pal Reed, former middleweight boxing star, watched Sharkey train. He was impressed by the former champion's condition. Reed fought Harry Greb, Johnny Wilson, Tommy Loughran, Mickey Walker, Tiger Flowers, Jack Delaney and many other great fighters of his period.

Lou Brouillard dropped into Sharkey's dressing room while the latter was talking with Reed.

"I am glad you have such long arms," Reed told Brouillard after they exchanged greetings. "A good reach is of tremendous value to a boxer. When I was boxing, I was handicapped by short arms. I was all right once I got into a clinch, but I took many a punch getting to close quarters.

"When they passed the rule, requiring a boxer to step back a foot after being ordered to break by the referee, I was in trouble. I would have to take more punches to get back at close quarters."

Crimson Set to Go

MEETS N. U. at HOME

B. U., TUFTS IN CLASH

By Will Connell

College baseball rolled into town today, with Boston University at Tufts and Northeastern at Harvard in the first games here this season.

The home team in each case had the edge. A new Terrier nine, shaken together by Mel Collard after cold weather handicapped work all spring, expected trouble at Tufts Oval.

Coach Judge Ken Nash had little in the way of pitching strength but the remainder of his Tufts team was fairly strong and after steady work in the open is figured to be in better condition than B. U.

LACK TRAINING

Izzy Hart's left hander was the mound choice of the Jumbos with Van Sandercock starting for the Terriers. Sandercock wasn't expected to go more than five innings because of lack of conditioning. Leo Sotz and Bob DeGuglielmo, the latter a promising sophomore left hander, were due to follow Sandercock.

Harvard had the benefit of two games on its road jaunt to bolster it against the invaded Huskies. The Crimson a few days ago opened against Fordham in New York and set by a fine showing considerable hitting strength against the strong Rams.

A. McCoy intended to start Gus Book, former Mechanic Arts ace, against Harvard. Ed Ingalls had the Crimson hill assignment.

ROOK GOOD

Book, who may develop into a college pitching standout, was in for a tough afternoon. Harvard while losing to Fordham, and later on to Temple appeared exactly as coach Fred Mitchell forecast a few weeks ago.

The Crimson had plenty of hitting but its pitching was ragged. The team must depend on heavy hitting this year with few capable tossers in sight. Capt. Dick Mazutte, Tom Bilodeau, Johnny Adzigian and the other veterans are first class college batters.

Perhaps they can make up for the pitching weakness. At any rate they will try to open the home campaign auspiciously by barraging Book back to the showers in short order. The result may be the first real indication of what may be expected from the Cambridge clubbers.

Picard Has Lead in Money Race

Richmond, Va., April 9 (US)—Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa. is the leading money-winner among the professional golfers in tournament play since January first, according to figures announced by Robert E. Harlow, tournament bureau manager for the P. G. A.

With only the Richmond open of April 10-11 to complete the winter and spring tour, Picard is assured of first place.

Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.—$1623.
Jimmy Hines, New York—$3373.
Horton Smith, Chicago—$3263.
Willie Hunter, New York—$3175.
Harry Cooper, Chicago—$2973.
Gene Sarazen, Brookfield, Conn.—$2880.
Johnny Revolta, Indianapolis—$2509.
Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.—$2130.
Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh—$2109.
Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J.—$2090.

Paskell Favored In Cathedral Run

Anthony Paskell of Revere, who won the race in 1930 and has been a consistent place winner in other road races, is one of the favorites in the annual Cathedral ten-mile plod on Saturday.

Other entries received today included: Ray Eland, Andre Brunelle and Clarence Sabin, of the United Shoe; Roger LaBonte, Linden Dempster, Paul Miller and Oliver Pelky of the Norfolk Y. M. A.

Entries are open and may be made with Joseph P. Monohan, race manager, 75 Union Park street, Boston.

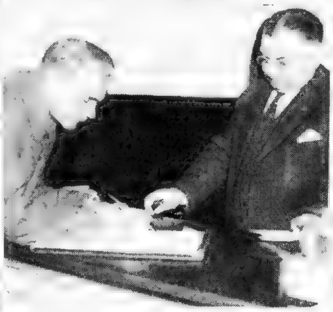

Yale Loses

New Haven, April 9—Springfield College defeated Yale baseball 8-2 in the Elis' first game of the season.

RED SOX ROOKIES GET FIRST PEEK AT NEW HOME

Lee Rogers, new Red Sox twirler, reaches for a towel his first day home from training camp.

Doc Bowers, Sox recruit pitcher, registers at hotel as Paul Ercolam, clerk, looks on. The Sox arrived home this morning.

"Dear Ma, Boston is a great town," writes Manuel Salvo of the Red Sox upon his arrival here.

Johnny Kroner, young Red Sox star, unpacks after long training grind. He is ready for the opening of the season next week and the city series with the Braves which starts tomorrow.

The Squire Under Fire

SHUCCO Pledges BEATING

TONY READY FOR FRAY

Squire Jack Sharkey, former boss of all the heavyweights, had better be ready to absorb a lot of punishment next week Tony Shucco warned him today.

"This science business may be all right but nobody ever won a title just blocking," the North End battler growled during a letup in his training grind.

"I'm starting out at the first gong to give Mr. Sharkey the belting he deserves. He's going to think he is fighting the whole Garden audience when I go after him April 14.

TONY UNAFRAID

"They've been trying to build him up as unbeatable and scare me off with wheezes about knocking me off in five rounds.

"But that won't work. I beat Sharkey once. I know I can beat him again. He knows I can beat him again. And before next week is over fight fans will know that Shucco is on the way up."

After delivering himself of that oration Tony went back to his job of smacking the bags and dusting off a few sparring mates.

His speed and zip is such that Matchmaker Rip Valenti was forced to suggest that he slow up a bit lest he get down too fine.

Sharkey followers had little comment to make on the Shucco blast. They were content to coast along with a polishing up routine.

Sharkey himself declared that his old time skill is almost all back. He added that his five round K. O. declaration still goes.

The match assumed increasing importance today as it was indicated from New York that Valenti was meeting with some success in his efforts to match the winner of the forthcoming Louis-Schmeling go with the Sharkey-Shucco victor.

Such a bout staged outdoors would jam the spot to record proportions.

Holy Cross Has Chance With Sox

some close scrutinizing by Manager Joe Cronin and Eddie Collins for big league timber.

The Holy Cross infield will be composed of Nick Morris, who starred on the football eleven last Fall, at first base, Charlie Brucato, another sophomore, second, Spies Kenney, short and Bob Daughters, who is "tops" among college third sackers.

Pete Dowd and Jim Hobin will divide the left field assignment and Jim Canty will be back at his old center field berth with Joe Conway, who was forced by illness to remain out of baseball last season, starting in right field.

Due to the fact that the Crusaders have had but five outdoor practise sessions and engaged in but one game Coach Jack Barry has not had an opportunity to get a real line of his talent.

But as Eddie Moriarty and Con Laird are the only missing players from last year's team, which was one of the best that has worn the purple in years, Holy Cross will offer a far stiffer brand of opposition than many minor league clubs.

Long Announces League Plans

Commissioner William P. Long of the Boston Park Department announced today that the Park Baseball League will swing into action the week of May 11.

Applications for membership are now in the mails and teams will have until May 5 to file their applications, according to the official announcement.

In 1935, 23,000 boys were registered for participation in the national pastime.

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield again will act as president of the league, with Commissioner Long as chairman of the board of directors. Other members of the board are Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, and Eddie Collins of the Red Sox. William Mullen is league director.

Colony Named

John J. Colony, Jr., 37, of Keene, N. H., will head next year's Harvard varsity swimming team, it was decided by his teammates at the annual election.

League

Catholic Schools Open Tuesday

The Catholic High School League baseball schedule was completed today by Rev. Michael Durant of St. Mary's in Brookline, league director.

The games open next Tuesday with all 10 teams in action, and the schedule includes five-game programs on Tuesdays and Fridays, and holiday contests.

The opening list has St. Mary's, Brookline, at St. Clements in Somerville; Mission at Immaculate, Revere, Lynn St. Mary's at St. Charles in Waltham; Malden Catholic at Our Lady High in Newton and Waltham St. Mary's at Cathedral, Boston.

Final Olympic Tests Go to New York

Eastern Olympic tryouts will be staged at Harvard stadium on June 26 and 27 according to an announcement by William J. Bingham of Harvard, chairman of the Olympic track and field committee.

Final tryouts are to be staged at New York's Randall's Island Stadium on July 10 and 11, Bingham added.

DOUBLES Mark Is BROKEN

By Walter Kiley

Herbert Dodge and Clarence Heathcote hit a par shattering pace to maintain the record smashing barrage in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser candlepin bowling tounrey.

[illegible] team [illegible] Callahan's Needham [illegible] batted them [illegible] which broke the men's [illegible] of 695 as set by [illegible] and Don Henderson of the North Shore and Frank [illegible] of Corendon [illegible]

[illegible] amateur bowling [illegible] by virtue of his 112 [illegible] but 152 [illegible] his first string added 125 in his [illegible] and needed only 112 in his [illegible] to become a shining light of the great event.

But try as he might, the breaks failed to come and Norwood's pride [illegible] 5 in his third effort for a total of 372 which left him far short of the promised land.

His total, however, added [illegible] which gave it [illegible] Webster five with its 1627 [illegible] second [illegible] of the Elks [illegible] total of 1622.

The tournament committee announced today that the American-Advertiser event would definitely wind up on Saturday night, that all entrants must complete their bowling by that time or forfeit.

HUGH MATHIESON likes his pipe tobacco Mild and Tasty!

HERE'S A GOOD PICTURE of Hugh Mathieson smoking a pipeful of fragrant, mellow Prince Albert tobacco. Mr. Mathieson has liked Prince Albert for thirteen years, and at the time this picture was taken he said: "I like to show my friends that Prince Albert is cut different—'crimp cut,' it's called—so P.A. burns slower and cooler and every pipeful lasts longer."

"REMEMBER THIS ONE?" (Above) Hugh enjoying some of the old tunes and a pipeful of Prince Albert as a friend tickles the ivories! "I've learned from long experience that there's no 'bite' in P.A.," Mr. Mathieson says. "And I'm sure all the tobacco in Prince Albert is as choice as Nature can produce."

THE LAST PIPE OF THE DAY (right) is just as pleasant as the first one in the morning. Prince Albert does not bite! It is economical to smoke P.A. Mr. Mathieson says: "Those big red tins hold around 50 pipefuls of swell-tasting tobacco."

MAIL TIME! (Left) Note the after-breakfast pipe of Prince Albert. "I've introduced a lot of men to Prince Albert in my time," Mr. Mathieson says. "And a lot of men around here have changed to Prince Albert since the makers advertised their money-back offer." Below, we print the offer Hugh Mathieson refers to. Take us up on it! Smoke 20 pipefuls of P.A. at our risk!

WE ARE SURE YOU'LL AGREE WITH WHAT HUGH MATHIESON SAYS ABOUT PRINCE ALBERT...TRY IT ON THIS NO-RISK OFFER!

Smoke 20 fragrant pipefuls of Prince Albert. If you don't find it the mellowest, tastiest pipe tobacco you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. (Signed) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

"Makin's" Cigarette in 8 Seconds

JACK WAGNER is fast—rolls out a neat cigarette in 8 seconds. He says: "I'm bound to say that Prince Albert rolls easier and stays rolled right. I'm rolling about 70 cigarettes from every tin. That's a lot of swell smoking."

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

It's getting to be more than fun, this handicapping the ponies. Going into the eighth day of play, the original bankroll of $500 is now $543.10. That is a PROFIT of $43.10 and veteran handicappers tell me this is very good.

SAILOR BEWARE at $9.20 and JOHN P. W. at $4.20 were my winning choices yesterday. PLAYMORE ran third while KIEVA and CROFTER finished out of the money. A $10 flat play on my five selections returned $13.40.

Down at Bowie this afternoon Alfred G. Vanderbilt is starting BALKO'S MAID in the first event. Clockers report that this two-year-old can run faster than the sensational AIRFLAME. So it's $2 to win on the Vanderbilt entry of BALKO'S MAID and BERGERE.

PLAYFOLE in the third and LONE HAND in the sixth at the Maryland track are well spotted. Both should lead their respective fields home. I'm betting $2 to win on each.

Today's late specials are LOLSCHEN in the sixth at Arlington Downs and the daily double of BALKO'S MAID and BOOCORD at Bowie. It's $2 to win on each.

ANN MARSTERS BETS
$2 Win Balko's Maid, Bowie 1st.
$2 Win Playfole, Bowie 3rd. (Scratched)
$2 Win Lone Hand, Bowie 6th.

LATE—$2 Win Lolschen, Arlington 6th—SPECIALS
$2 Win Balko's Maid—Boocord, Bowie Double
BANKROLL IS NOW $543.10. DAY'S PLAY $10.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative betting can yield an attractive profit, or, at worst, small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the eighth day of the experiment.)

WILSON LIKES NIGHT PLAY

VANDERBILT ENTRY GOOD

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for slow track)
BEST BET—NIGHT PLAY, FOURTH RACE.

Bowie Race Track, Md., April 9—Night Play, a smashing third in the Rowe Memorial Handicap last Saturday, shapes up not only as the probable winner of the featured Single Foot Purse at six furlongs, but as the outstanding hazard on another difficult card of seven races here today.

FIRST RACE
Vanderbilt Entry, Drowss, Lady Day

BALKO'S MAID at 1 1/16 BERGERE are expected to be the choice of the eight starters in the 4½ old juvenile sweepstakes, a Alfred G. Vanderbilt entry. Both are from the Preakness Stable and have been handled by Trainer Tom Healey. The two Vanderbilt colts are expected to be heavily backed by the crowd, which will see Walter Miller up on the favorite.

LADY DAY may be held to a place by Balko's Maid, while DROWSS, the other representative of the Vanderbilt stable, is also expected to be in the money. Lady Day has been working well since her last race, and is due for a good performance.

SECOND RACE
Sang Froid, Apprehend, Dowdy Dell

SANG FROID, a new King property, is expected to be the choice of the crowd in the second race, a dash of five and a half furlongs for maidens. APPREHEND, a recent Fair Play winner, and DOWDY DELL complete the field.

THIRD RACE
Abbots Last, Boocord, Vanda Cerulea

ABBOTS LAST, a recent purchase from Isaac Bell, Jr., is expected to be a strong favorite in the third race, a mile and 70 yards event for maiden 2-year-olds. BOOCORD is also picked to win, and should be given a good workout. VANDA CERULEA was entered only as a starter.

FOURTH RACE
Night Play, Captain Jinks, Undulate

NIGHT PLAY, held to Bright Laddy and should be a strong favorite in the fourth race. Unless he is crowded in early, he should be a winner. CAPTAIN JINKS, UNDULATE, Tom Piper and Class at 1 should share the place.

FIFTH RACE
Red Badge, Coming Back, Mad Prump

RED BADGE, a sprinter down several notches, and must be conceded another victory. COMING BACK was a recent winner at Bowie, but has been unable to duplicate his performance since. MAD PRUMP, developing the mile and a quarter specialist, should be the class of the field and a dangerous performance on Monday.

SIXTH RACE.
Lone Hand, Playfole, Wand, Tenless

LONE HAND will be tried for the first time in the colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney, Phipps Florida farm sensation that he won third a week ago today in the Rowe Memorial. PLAYFOLE, WAND, Agnes Kent and Don Oakley complete the field.

SEVENTH RACE
Fudes, I Demon, Sun Way

FUDES, Cashel Hue & Cry and other colts and fillies are expected to start in this event, a dash of one mile and 70 yards for maiden 3-year-olds. Fudes should be a strong favorite in this race, with I DEMON, Sun Way and Ben Brush also expected to start.

The Missing Hero

Concord Girl's Account of the Rescuer Who Got Away

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

A 14-year-old girl is our Distinguished Adventurer today. She is LILLIAN HANSEN, of 6 Elsinore street, Concord, and she's going to tell the story of the boy that got away.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Not that one boy more or less makes any difference to a girl Lillian's age. That isn't the point. But when said boy saves your life, you'd at least like to have him hang around long enough so you can thank him. That's just what this one didn't do.

And if he reads this well Lillian wants him to know that she thinks it was pretty swell of him.

It all came about as a result of a peaceful Sunday afternoon walk. Lillian set out with two other girls, both about her own age, and they strolled along until they came to the railroad tracks. That's where they made their first mistake. Railroad tracks are for trains to run on, and you can't beat a locomotive at its own game.

At that, those three kids might have been all right, if they'd stuck to just plain track walking. But after they had gone just a short distance, they came to the Concord River. There, a trestle carries the tracks across the water, and Lillian and her two little friends decided they'd walk over that trestle.

Well, you know what generally happens on trestles After reading some thirty thousand of these adventure stories you boys and girls have sent me, I am firmly convinced that nobody ever stepped out on a railroad bridge yet but what at least one train came along. Sometimes it's two trains, and one of these days I know I'm going to get a yarn in which all the trains on the line start to hold a convention on a trestle just as one of our Adventurers Club members is in the middle of it.

* * *

But Lillian and her friends got off easily. They had only one train to worry about, though Lillian will be the first to admit that one train can worry you almost as much as a whole roundhouse full of the things.

Lillian and her pals were almost to the middle of the bridge when they heard a train whistle behind them. Then their hearts sank as they realized that this was the hour when the Minute Man Express went by. That big, rocketing iron monster would be on them in a few seconds—and it was a long way to the end of the bridge.

Lillian's two girl friends ran straight ahead, toward the opposite side of the river. Lillian hesitated just a moment, looking wildly one way and the other. It seemed to her that the other end—the end her self had just come from—was a little bit nearer. She turned and started to run back.

That was another mistake. In her panic she had forgotten that she was running TOWARD THE TRAIN and the big chuffing monster would have her cut off from escape long before she could reach the end. She didn't realize that until she saw the engine's nose poking itself around the curve. It was too late to turn back for she knew she'd never make it.

Then, just at the moment when it looked as if things couldn't be worse, they DID GET WORSE. As she turned to run in the other direction her foot caught between two ties. She tried to wrench it out again, but the foot wouldn't budge. The train was within 50 feet of her now.

It was too late to do anything. Down at the other end of the bridge Lillian could see her two friends scurrying to safety, and how she wished she'd gone with them! The only thing she could think of to do was fall over sideways.

* * *

She did that. The strain on her imprisoned foot made her cry out, but the foot wrenched loose at last. The next thing Lillian knew, she was falling over the side of the trestle. As she went over, she caught hold of something and hung on. Then the train was roaring over her head, grinding to a slow stop

She found herself hanging to the projecting end of a tie. Under her were sharp rocks that lined the bank of the river. There was a road somewhere down below and Lillian could hear people screaming to her to hold on. And hold on she did, for she knew full well that she'd be killed if she landed among the rocks beneath

Up to that moment, Lillian had been so bewildered that she hardly realized she was hanging from a tie. But now she went almost mad with panic. Looking down at the ground had made her dizzy. Her arms were beginning to ache and she knew they wouldn't hold her up long. Her head was spinning and her grip on the tie was weakening, when suddenly a head—a boy's head covered with a thatch of red hair—thrust itself out over the edge of the ties.

* * *

He was a young lad—not much older than Lillian herself. He grasped her by the arms and pulled her upward. It was a tough job, lifting a girl almost as big as he was, but the boy was strong, and in another ten seconds Lillian was standing on the ties again.

The train had stopped, and trainmen were running from the engine and climbing out of the cars. In an instant Lillian was surrounded. Her clothes were torn and there were a few bruises on her body, but outside of that she was all right.

And when she looked around for the red-headed boy who had rescued her—well—HE JUST WASN'T THERE.

That kid had been so embarrassed that he just naturally sneaked away. If he reads this, though, he'll know that Lillian is grateful.

Ten bucks for that yarn. Ten bucks for yours, too, Mabel. And don't tell me you haven't had an adventure. Everybody has.

Tomorrow, we'll have another great yarn. Meanwhile, STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN!

Tell FLOYD GIBBONS about YOUR adventure. America's great Headline Hunter, author and adventurer on four continents wants to give other adventurers a chance to tell their stories and other people a chance to hear them.

FARE Cut Sprague PLAN

CARRIERS MAP RATE BATTLE

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

New York, April 9—In ordering a cut in Eastern rail passenger rates by June 2, the Interstate Commerce Commission took a leaf from the book of O. M. W. Sprague, Harvard sage and erstwhile adviser to the United States Treasury and the Bank of England.

Although ironmasters differed with Dr. Sprague's thesis that they would do better profitwise if they slashed steel prices, the I. C. C. takes the view th[illegible] the carriers will get superior net revenues from a lower rate schedule.

It has some factual basis for its decision in the relatively better passenger showing of Western and Southern roads since 1933 when they brought their schedules down to the level now ordered for all railways in the United States.

Some of the Eastern carriers are fighting against the verdict, though the decision of the Baltimore & Ohio to proceed as directed may force her competitors into line.

The tendency of the Eastern carriers to ignore the economic change of the last 16 years and stick to the [illegible] established in 1920 [illegible] good example of what [illegible] Sprague meant [illegible] effect of inflexible [illegible] which are out of balance w[illegible] general [illegible]

In keeping [illegible] were moving [illegible] ly American busine[illegible] that increased net p[illegible] be found in [illegible] expanding volume. [illegible] rates stood [illegible] ing at a spectacul[illegible]

Accordingly, b[illegible] bought and paid for [illegible] ter as many rail p[illegible] as in 1920. In prosp[illegible] pressions alike the dema[illegible] such service declined every year except 1923.

In 1933 western and southern roads inaugurated lower passenger fares, and there have been some moderate net increases in passenger miles [illegible] whole, with the weste[illegible] ern roads gaining [illegible] eastern.

Incidentally the rai[illegible] whole lost out to a [illegible] in passenger than in [illegible] ume. In the depres[illegible] tween 1929 and 19[illegible] revenues fel[illegible] 62 p[illegible] freight by 48 per cent.

In ordering a basic passenger fare rate in coaches of 2 cents a mile, from 3.6 cents, and in Pullman cars to 3 [illegible] cents, with [illegible] charge, the I. C. C. [illegible] dorses the ra[illegible] been in effect in the W[illegible]

Although the low rate policy admittedly improved net passenger revenues in the West and South, the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, and the New Haven, which oppose the decision, argue that conditions are different in the East, where passenger revenues bulk larger in respect to total revenues.

Moreover, the eastern carriers contend that a larger share of the eastern business is [illegible] character, and woul[illegible] spective of the rate.

The practical quest[illegible] vestors is whether [illegible] bullish or bearish.

New Information On Trade Area's

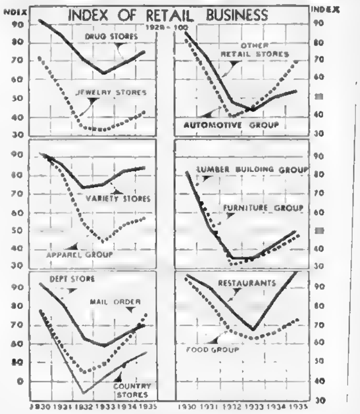

Washington, April 9 (INS)—The United States logically can be divided into 37 "economic states" with a trading capital in each of these areas, a newly-completed NRA survey reported today.

The study completely revises the nation's business map and is designed to give industry new information concerning markets for goods and commodities.

In its new economic map the report showed the city of Chicago as the most influential trade [illegible] of the United States. As [illegible] city in its peculiar economic district, Chicago is bounded [illegible] primary trading centers and 24 secondary trading centers.

Boston was second with 29 primary and 20 secondary trading centers. Other key cities and their primary and secondary areas include New York, 22 and 8; Philadelphia, 17 and 11.

Restaurant Receipts Jump

This composite chart gives a comprehensive picture of retail business throughout the country since the beginning of the depression.

Retail sales in the United States in 1935 are estimated by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to have totaled 32.6 billion dollars, an increase of 14 per cent over 1934.

The most complete recovery of any of the retail stores has been enjoyed by restaurants, eating and drinking places, the index for which rose to 99 per cent of its 1929 level. Other notable increases were made over 1934 by the furniture and household group (21 per cent), the lumber, building and hardware group (20 per cent) and jewelry stores (15 per cent).

Variety stores registered only a 2 per cent gain, but are nearer their 1929 level than any other group with the exception of restaurants.

The rails have been acting better recently and are not far from their year's highs. A movement into new high ground on the part of this group and the utilities would complete the bull picture given in the past few days by in industrials.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The proceeds from the sale of the Debentures to the Underwriters will aggregate $68,862,500 (exclusive of accrued interest), and will be applied to the redemption on May 15, 1936, of the above $50,000,000 Twenty-Year 5½% Gold Debenture Bonds at 103½% ($51,750,000) and accrued interest, and to the redemption on July 15, 1936, of the remaining $20,000,000 of the above Twenty-Five-Year 5% Gold Debenture Bonds at 103% ($20,600,000). The balance required for such redemptions plus the Company's estimated expenses in connection with the sale of the Debentures, together aggregating approximately $3,983,300 (exclusive of accrued interest on the Bonds redeemed), will be obtained from the Company's current cash.

DEBENTURES The Ten-Year 3¼% Debentures, Series due 1946, and the Twenty-Year 3½% Debentures, Series due 1956, will be issued under a Trust Agreement dated April 1, 1936, between the Company and City Bank Farmers Trust Company, as Trustee. The Debentures will be unsecured. While no further Debentures may be issued thereunder, the Trust Agreement will contain no limitations on the creation of similar debenture issues or of other securities by the Company.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions, the Underwriters named in the Offering Prospectus have severally agreed to purchase from the Company $35,000,000 Ten-Year 3¼% Debentures at 99¼%, and $35,000,000 Twenty-Year 3½% Debentures at 97½%, or a total of $68,862,500, plus accrued interest. The Ten-Year 3¼% Debentures are to be offered to the public at 101%, and the Twenty-Year 3½% Debentures are to be offered to the public at 99½%, or a total of $70,175,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discounts for the Ten-Year 3¼% Debentures and the Twenty-Year 3½% Debentures are 1¾% and 2%, respectively, or a total of $1,312,500.

PRICES

Ten-Year 3¼% Debentures 101% and Accrued Interest
Twenty-Year 3½% Debentures 99½% and Accrued Interest

The Underwriters have agreed to purchase these Debentures when, as and if issued, and subject to the approval of Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Underwriters, and to certain further conditions. The validity of the franchises of the Company and its subsidiaries and certain other matters have been passed upon by their respective counsel. It is expected that delivery of Debentures in temporary form, exchangeable for definitive Debentures when prepared, will be made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. on or about April 15, 1936, against payment therefor in New York funds.

Further information, in particular financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable only from such of the undersigned as are registered dealers in securities in this State.

N. E. TRADE

Continues TO GAIN Over '36

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Despite curtailment due to the flood the total volume of business transacted in the New England area in the latest week, for which complete figures are available, exceeds last year's figures.

This is a really remarkable showing and is indisputable proof that the forces underlying recovery hereabouts are vigorous indeed.

The Dun & Bradstreet report features the upward climb of electrical output, which the agency believes is the most sensitive barometer. For the week ending March 21 a gain of 2.8 per cent was registered and for the week ending March 28 an improvement of 1.4 is shown. Carloadings, the index measuring the flow of trade, are well maintained, indicating the high rate of industrial operations offset many partial and complete shutdowns in the New England district.

The sugar market presents one of the most tangled situations that has ensnared a commodity since the advent of the raw deal. Prices are advancing on talk of tight quotas regardless of the fundamental fact that were it not for governmental control the market would be glutted with sugar. B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists, believe Washington can hardly look with favor on the sharp speculative movement. They feel it is one thing for prices to advance to remunerative levels for producers on quota talk but still another for the same quotas to be made the basis for a rapid speculative advance. And while the situation may not change it seems to us that inherent danger of any artificially controlled market faces those speculating in either raws or sugar equities.

Notebook: City Auto Stamping boosters are gossiping about a big fillip in first quarter earnings . . . It earned $1.27 in 1935 . . . And they say that before write-offs the company earned that sum in the initial 1936 period . . . Goodrich looks like the laggard in the rubber stock division . . . Once across 21 on good volume a four to six-point swing should take place . . . Speaking of rubbers naturally brings U. S. into the gossip . . . Those marveling at its strength overlook the fact the company has had the advantage of many years grooming by du Pont interests.

* * *

We find ourselves, along with many other observers, in the peculiar position of thinking the market can reach higher in some directions, while feeling the extraordinary length and breadth of the upswing, together with the high level of prices, precludes an expansion of commitments. Thus we must suggest again that only 50 per cent of funds be kept at work, and if certain new situations prove appealing that accounts be lightened to make way for them. Our ideas on tops were outlined yesterday and if they prove correct there is not much allowance for a further broad rise.

* * *

Odds and Ends: General Electric is such a new situation as noted above . . . And a danger signal that is likely to prove sure-fire, we are reminded by a State streeter today, will be a series of "glory days" such as we have described before . . . With appropriate pardons we pass on the word for our informant that Cleveland Graphite first quarter earnings will not exceed those of last year . . . Full allowance was not made for the advance in auto production dates . . . The outlook for the company, however, is unchanged by the altered production schedule.

G. E. Orders Up

Orders received by the General Electric Company for the first quarter of 1936 amounted to $59,-169,879, compared with $49,379,932 for the corresponding quarter of 1935, an increase of 21 per cent, President Gerard Swope announces. This was the largest quarter since the third quarter of 1931.

PROFIT TAKING IN EVIDENCE

New York, April 9—Selected stocks were given a quiet upward ride in today's stock market, while many of the recent leaders were restrained by profit taking.

Bullish sentiment, spurred principally by further signs of industrial progress, seemed to predominate, but typically quiet pre-Easter dealings were the rule.

Utilities, rail and specialties gave a good account of themselves. Isolated strength was exhibited by J. I. Case was a gain of around 7 points.

Near the beginning of the fourth hour issues up fractions to a point or so inclinded Consolidated Edison, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Columbian Carbon, Greyhound and Phelps Dodge.

On the other hand, Baldwin Locomotive preferred dropped 3, and Johns-Manville, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem backed water.

Bonds and commodities were fairly steady and the dollar was a bit firmer in relation to leading foreign currencies.

Phelps Dodge and some of the other coppers steadied upon the report that the domestic price of the metal would be boosted Monday to 9½ cents a pound.

The outlook in the machinery and machine tool field was reported as particularly bright. The American Machinist estimated activity in this line during the first quarter was well above the level of the same 1935 period.

Heavy purchases in the tooling division were said to be under way by the automobile companies that are planning substantial changes in their 1937 models, which will make their appearance in the fall.

Of interest to the equipment makers was the announcement that the St. Paul Railroad had adopted a $4,800,000 construction program involving 1500 freight cars, 37 new passenger coaches and one streamlined locomotive.

REYNOLDS Tobacco Sales Up

The business of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company during the first three months of 1936 has shown a nice increase over the similar period of last year, it was stated at the annual meeting of stockholders.

Camel sales are "undoubtedly" keeping pace with the 13 per cent rise in total cigarette sales for the first two months of 1936, it was stated in answer to an inquiry. Prince Albert smoking tobacco sales are making a decided gain this year over last.

Out of 800,000 shares of common stock to be voted after deduction of 200,000 shares in the pension fund, 791,422 shares, or 98.9 per cent, was voted for re-election of directors.

Share WORK AIDED Job Lag

By B. C. Forbes

Why has increase in jobs lagged behind the increase in industrial production, trade, security values, general economic conditions?

Here is the main explanation:

Most employers obeyed the injunction to "share the work" during the depths of the depression. They kept on their payrolls far more men than were needed to fill orders. They cut down working hours drastically in preference to cutting down working forces drastically. Thus they kept many hundreds of thousands of breadwinners off public relief.

When demand began to expand, they naturally gave their employes more work. They lengthened the work-week—from two to three days in many cases to four or five days or more.

The Department of Commerce reports that, while national income in 1932 was less than 49 per cent of that in 1929, the total income of labor was fully 60 per cent of the 1929 peak. A similar trend was repeated in 1933 and 1934. (Later figures have not yet been compiled.)

* * *

Employers were prompted by humane motives when they kept on as many work people as possible during extremely lean times. When things got somewhat better, it was entirely natural that employers should want their own workers to reap the full benefit. Thus it came about that the total of work hours increased more than the total number of workers.

Should fault be found with such a policy?

Surely the nation would have been more imperiled had employers dismissed every employe they could get along without.

Although not all wage-earners are today receiving full-time work and wages, the total has substantially increased. The next, and it is to be hoped early, movement will be generous engagement of workers now performing "made" work paid for by taxpayers.

No matter how politicians may act, the chances are that the nation's inherent resiliency will continue to assert itself. But how much more rapidly could jobs be provided were there in Washington an administration concentrating its main attention on solving the unemployment problem, the most vital, the gravest, the most ominous of all our national problems.

LEWIS HANEY ON FARMERS

Full Revelation OF U. S. CROP CONTROL Payments Urged

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, April 9—The investigation that Senator Vandenberg stirred up by insisting upon a revelation of "benefit" payments made by the Roosevelt administration to agricultural producers is both interesting and worthwhile.

The figures, grudgingly released by the Department of Agriculture, already show that some very large sums were paid to various farming organizations. But the information given thus far is quite incomplete, and it is to be hoped that we will get a full revelation.

The New Dealers have sought to pillory those in industry who receive large incomes, and have put many thousands of income tax payers to great inconvenience. Why not force them now to account in similar detail for their waste of these taxes?

In reality there is more reason for this than for the pink slips, green sheets, and publication of corporation salaries. As Secretary Wallace himself states, these bonuses, benefits, etc., have been drawn from public money and paid out of our public treasury.

We, from whom the money has been taken, are entitled to know who gets it and why. We are entitled to that much protection against waste, graft, and political vote-buying.

* * *

One fact brought out by this revelation of large sums paid out under the AAA, is that in reality the main purpose of the scheme is no relief, but government control over farming operations. The big payments are "justified" by Mr. Wallace, not on the ground that those who received them were in want, but on the ground that they had to be bought off in order to induce them to come along with the crop control scheme. They were the price of regimentation.

Wallace says the bonuses paid were a reward for sacrifices made. But just what sacrifices on the part of the recipients did these big payments call for? It seems to me that if the scheme was a benefit to the farmers, they did not deserve any reward for curtailing acreage. And by the same logic, if it was in reality a sacrifice on their part, they should not have been forced to make it. Which was it?

* * *

Another point brought out is the fact that great differences exist among all producers, agricultural and industrial. In all cases, there are efficient and inefficient, big and little, wealthy and poor, strong and weak.

In taxing we load extra heavy burdens upon the strong, big, and wealthy. Why then, in distributing government tax money, should we not give it according to need? Wallace says he did not have any right, even if he wanted to, to refuse big bonus payments. Well, what right, then, has his government to soak big incomes and surpluses?

As Senator Vandenberg suggests, why not a graduated scale of payments according to ability to stand sacrifice?

* * *

More fundamental than this, is the fact that the whole scheme of crop control fails to shut off production in an efficient way. If any production is to be curtailed, it should be the production of the least efficient. The high-cost farmers should be the ones to quit farming.

To try to control crop production by keping farmers going who never were able to make any money is not sense. To bribe efficient, low-cost farmers not to produce is nonsense.

This suggests another point. Why not demand that the Roosevelt administration tell us just what it has cost per pound or bushel for each pound or bushel of crops that they have kept from being produced? What price have we paid for crop curtailment?

Debenture Issues Offered Today

New York, April 9 (AP)—Two debenture issues totaling $70,000,000 of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York were offered today.

The first issue of $35,000,000 in 10-year 3¼ per cent debentures, series due 1946, was offered at a price of 101 and accrued interest, and the second issue of $35,000,000 of 20-year 3½ per cent debentures, series due 1956, was offered at a price of 99½.

Underwriters handling the securities for Consolidated Edison, formerly the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, are headed by Morgan Stanley & Company.

Proceeds from the sale will be applied to redemption of $50,000,000 principal amount of 20-year 5½ per cent gold debenture bonds and $20,000,000 principal amount of 25-year 5 per cent gold debenture bonds.

PITTSBURGH Operations Higher

Steel-making in this district has jumped three points since Monday and is now at 56 per cent of capacity, the highest in six years. This is a rise of six points since last Saturday.

A further gain is anticipated before the end of this week as the leading independent, which is now at 58 per cent, expects to be at 60 per cent before Saturday.

The 58 per cent compares with 36 per cent a year ago and 37 per cent two years ago. The leading interest is operating at between 57 and 58 per cent of capacity.

OLDSMOBILE Sales at Record

Retail deliveries of Oldsmomile cars in March established a new monthly record, exceeding the previous record of April, 1935, by 11 per cent and were 19 per cent ahead of March, 1935.

April production schedules have been set for a record outturn of cars. The Olds plants at Lansing have been placed on a six-day week schedule operating two shifts.

Meeting Saturday

Annual meeting of stockholders of Industrial Rayon Corporation scheduled for today was adjourned until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

RUSH SEMINARY REBUILDING

Plans for immediate reconstruction of the partially destroyed philosophy building at St. John's Seminary in Brighton will be completed today and the rebuilding work will probably get underway next week.

The structure, through which a four alarm fire spread with a loss of $75,000, served as a dormitory and class room building for first year seminarians.

Besides the 38 students, five priests also lived in the building.

All were at mass in the chapel when the fire broke out. The building was erected 45 years ago.

Charlestown Trio Face 'Loop' Charge

Three 15-year-old Charlestown boys, arrested after a chase over the "loop" on Bunker Hill street, will be arraigned today in Charlestown court.

They gave their names as Robert T. Walsh, of School street, and Edward Lamont and Leo Stickney, both of Carney street.

Japanese Officer Killed in Clash

Harbin, April 9 (INS)—Manchukuo charged officially today that 14 members of the Soviet secret police had attacked a Manchukuoan patrol of four soldiers and a Japanese officer on Manchukuoan territory, killing the Japanese officer.

Lynn Girl, 16, Missing

Lynn police were notified today that Alice Somers, 16, of Neptune street, has been missing from her home since yesterday morning.

F. W. Woolworth

F. W. Woolworth Company declared regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents, payable June 1 to stock of record April 20.

Activity on Radio

Gala Sports Broadcast

By N. F. T.

At the barrier and at the bat, with radio bringing the voices of Ann Marsters, ace pony picker and the only outstanding girl with such a rating, as well as Joe Cronin, Sox skipper, Jimmy Foxx, heavy stickswinger and Bob Quinn, the big brains of the ambitious Boston Bees, that's the Hub "mike treat for listeners (WNAC) this evening between 8:30 and 8:45 p. m.

"N. F. T."

There is to be a gala sport salute in the four winds through WNAC and WEAN waves, meaning that Providence is also pulled into the hookup.

Leading sport figures of this all agog town can and will have their say and make their not to be scoffed at predictions as to what will be what while the forthcoming summer holds forth. It's one more athletic year under way, but this time to be about the biggest Boston has experienced, which is saying a lot to be sure. Hear these above named personalities tonight and see if the good old Hub isn't due to resume it's rightful place in the American sport realm sun.

SHINING STAR

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, beloved figure of radio and the concert stage, whose singing of "Stille Nacht" is now an American tradition every Christmas, will institute another seasonal tradition this evening in the "Music Hall" airing some of the best known Easter songs. With her in the "Music Hall" setting as Bing Crosby's guests will be Joan Crawford; Rudolph Ganz, well-known concert-pianist; and Florence Gill, versatile animal imitator. The studio show will be broadcast (WEEI) as usual at 10:00. p. m.

* * *

The Hon. James M. Curley, governor of Massachusetts, will be one of the speakers in a two-way discussion on the topic, "Does American Prosperity Depend on Foreign Trade?" during "America's Town Meeting of the Air" to be held at the "Town Hall" program in New York city tonight (WBZ) from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m. The meeting, conducted under the auspices of the League for Political Education in co-operation with the National Broadcasting Company, will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network.

BROUGHT BACK

Eddie Green, the Negro comic who has entertained Rudy Vallee's "Variety Hour" audiences (WEEI) with his characterizations of Jonah and Napoleon in recent weeks, will be back on the program this evening at 8, in another sketch by John Tucker Battle. This time Green will throw all his histrionic talent into a portrayal of John Alden while he conducts an embarrassed suit for the hand of the famous Priscilla, on behalf of Captain Miles Standish.

Best Bets Tonight

8:00 p. m.—WEEI—Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees with Richard Barthelmess, Eileen Barton, Joe Di Maggio, Eddie Green, Tom Howard and George Shelton as guests.

8:00 p. m.—WNAC—The Variety Airshow with Alexander Gray, Charles Hanson Towne and Mark Warnow's Orchestra.

8:00 p. m.—WBZ—Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra with Reed Kennedy, baritone, as guest artist.

8:30 p. m.—WNAC—All Star Sports Salute featuring Jack Conway, Ann Marsters, Joe Cronin, Jimmy Foxx and Bob Quinn, under the auspices of the Boston Evening American.

9:00 p. m.—WNAC—Glen Gray's Casa Loma Orchestra with Kenny Sargent.

9:00 p. m.—WEEI—Lanny Ross, Winifred Cecil, Conrad Thibault, Capt. Henry and Gus Haenschen's music.

9:30 p. m.—WNAC—Ed Wynn, comedian, in role of "Gulliver the Traveler."

Best Bets Tomorrow

9:30 a. m.—WBZ—The Breakfast Clu, orchestra and soloists.

10:15 a. m.—WBZ—Edward MacHugh, the Gospel Singer.

11:00 a. m.—WAAB—Martha Lee Cooking School Council under the auspices of the Boston Evening American.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

"Buddy" Rogers, motion picture star and band leader, who headlines the bill opening today at the RKO Boston Theater, will award the RKO Boston trophies to the three victorious Junior Birdmen at informal ceremonies at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The three Junior Birdmen are Bruno P. Marchi, Medford; Frank A. Barrett, Jr., Brighton, and Torrey L. Capo, Quincy. Their model planes established longest total time in the six indoor monthly flying meets held at South Armory during the 1935-1936 series for Junior Birdmen.

Bruno's planes registered a total of 26 min., 54 1-5 sec. Frank's planes registered 19 min., 13 3-5 sec., and Torrey's models stayed in the air for 17 min., 27 4-5 sec.

In addition to receiving the trophies donated by the RKO Boston Theater, the winners will be guests of the management at the show which includes the "Studio Scandals," featuring Jeannie Lang, and topped by "Buddy" Rogers and his California Cavaliers.

On the program also are Cookie Bowers and the film "The Leathernecks Have Landed," with Lew Ayers and Isabel Jewell in the feature roles.

Each of the three boys is a Junior Birdman champion of the Boston wing. Marchi was sent to Detroit as the indoor champion of 1934; Barrett won a trip to Los Angeles as the 1935 outdoor champion and Capo got a free trip to Washington, D. C., to represent the Boston wing in the national outdoor contest of 1934.

In the last monthly meet, Capo's hand-launched stick model set a national record of 4 min. 51 4-5 sec. in the first seaplane event ever held for the Boston American wing.

The two have received certificates attesting to their records and have had their names posted on the record board at national headquarters in New York.

Moonshine Kills Boy, Youths Held

Huntsville, Ark., April 9 (AP)—Two youths were jailed here today accused of the "whiskey slaying" of a six-year-old boy.

Sheriff Virgil Weathers named the prisoners as Russell Beavers, 19, and Dennis Davidson, 17, and said they were arrested on complaint of Inman Estep, father of the dead boy. Estep said his son died a few hours after telling his parents he had been lured from home and forced to drink about a half pint of moonshine whiskey.

More than $16,000,000 to Massachusetts Shareholders Last Year

Did You Get Yours?

The "miracle" of compound interest and co-operation, working for every shareholder in every Co-operative Bank in Massachusetts, paid that dividend in 1935—and most of those thousands of thousands helped to whittle down mortgage-loans for home-owners.

It was pure profit, paid to people who chose the quicker way, the easier way, the surer, more economical way to build, buy, modernize or re-finance their own homes.

A Co-operative Bank pays profits to nobody but its shareholders. You become one of those shareholders with the first dollar you pay. Quicker saving—easier home-buying! CALL or WRITE for new booklet—"FREE and CLEAR."

The Roosevelt War on Prosperity

FROM two quarters simultaneously the Roosevelt Administration is warned that a continuation of the Raw Deal's competition with private enterprise will lead to a DISASTER which, in comparison, will make the depression of 1929 look trivial.

The National Manufacturers' Association makes the statement that because the crackpots at Washington persist in the importation of European "rejected ideas" there are from FIFTY THOUSAND TO EIGHTY THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS available for INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION which are now lying IDLE.

These billions are tied up because, in the language of the Manufacturers' Association itself:

"EXPANDING GOVERNMENT COMPETITION WITH PRIVATE INDUSTRY IS NOT ONLY A DETERRENT TO EXPANSION OF PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT, BUT IS ACCOMPANIED BY METHODS OF COMPETITION WHICH GOVERNMENT ITSELF PROHIBITS BETWEEN PRIVATE COMPETITORS."

THE second condemnation of the Roosevelt raids into the activities of private enterprise comes from the Committee on Government Competition with Private Enterprise, and it is signed by George L. Berry, co-ordinator of industrial co-operation.

This report, MADE TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, should be conclusive evidence that the depression is BEING KEPT ALIVE BY THE ADMINISTRATION ITSELF.

The statements which follow are NOT out of the mouth of one of the beneficiaries of Mr. Roosevelt's mythical "intrenched greed," but are THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN WORDS:

"The intrusion of government into competition with private enterprise, except in situations where the public welfare can only thus be served, is WHOLLY DESTRUCTIVE.

"IT INVITES AND CULTIVATES A GROWTH OF BUREAUCRACY.

"IT necessarily INCREASES GOVERNMENT EXPENDITURES while DECREASING TAX REVENUES, and it operates to DRY UP THE SOURCES OF GOVERNMENT INCOME.

"The government's function is to protect and promote the economic activities of its citizens, NOT TO SUPPLANT THEM.

"Under normal economic conditions, government competition with private enterprise is conducive to the destruction of the nation's established profit system and CONTRIBUTES TO THE DEVELOPMENT OF A SOCIALIZED INDUSTRY."

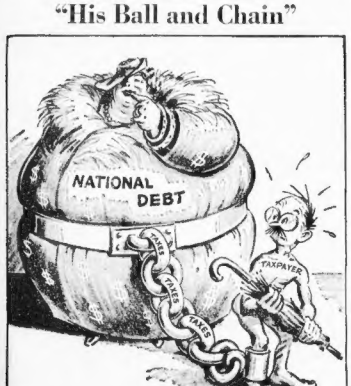

THE business men of the country thus agree with THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN INVESTIGATORS that the trouble with the country is "EUROPEAN REJECTED IDEAS" and "SOCIALIZED INDUSTRY."

Thus alien-minded policies strike at the very vitals of American life—INITIATIVE, DARING, INDIVIDUAL EXPANSION.

The apprehension implanted into the minds of our business men by the Red, Pink and Yellow experimenters at Washington has not only sterilized FIFTY TO EIGHTY THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS of employable capital, but has resulted in keeping MILLIONS OF OUR WILLING WORKERS out of legitimate work.

To make a Farley-Tugwell-Frankfurter holiday, the legitimate American business man and worker are being devoured by the imported beasts of STATE OMNIPOTENCE.

"His Ball and Chain"

Will There Be a Separation in November?

A good cartoon speaks for itself. It needs no explanation. No attempt will be made, therefore, to explain this.

Especially to TAXPAYERS. They will understand it AT A GLANCE. And hope for a permanent separation on Election Day next November.

The cartoon was drawn by John F. Jordan, Jr., brilliant young artist of New York, who, like all ambitious youth, has felt the greedy hands of the Tax Grabber reaching out for 30 cents of every dollar he earns or spends.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 8—That lower tip of Manhattan island known as Battery Park erupts a noontime activity that suggests circus day in Pomeroy, O. There are balloon sellers, ice cream, hot peanuts and lemonade vendors and hawkers of emblem flags. Pitch men set up tripods and even the shell and pea game artists whisper comeon subtleties. Newsboys make a killing with noon editions. For two hours the spirit of a usually bleak area takes on the whoop-la of the carnival. Somerset Maugham likened it to Trafalgar square.

The overflow is caused by the suddenly released army of stenographers and clerks from the Wall Street section, who occupy the benches and grass plots for luncheon spreads and use the walks for a promenade. Office boys play ball, leap-frog and otherwise skylark.

And even great figures, such as the late George Baker, in finance take a turn or so there. Just as quickly as it erupts, it dries up and back seep the human flotsam who sit so immobile, looking constantly to see. Also those pathetic old women who have no place to go.

New York's oldest active newspaper woman is Mrs. Laura Comstock Dunlap, who, up until its sale, was on the Globe. At 80 she has been for three years teaching journalism to unemployed young people. The seven course is served by mail to aspiring students in the State Prison at Dannemora.

Mrs. Dunlap also wrote a book on courtesy that is a text book in metropolitan schools. She takes a lively interest in modern journalism and often turns in a bang-up Sunday feature story.

While it is still possible for the free lance to dispose of a newspaper feature story now and then, the field is rough going. It used to be an alert reporter could double his pay with a Sunday yarn. In those days the Sun, Herald and World were ready markets. Paying as high as $75 for an especially readable yarn with pictures.

I remember Charlie Somerville causing a bit of eye-bulging in an under Brooklyn Bridge lazaretto one afternoon by flashing three checks totaling slightly more than $150. Clear and above his salary on The World.

In these opulent days of enormous radio contracts on the side, the $200-a-week newspaper writer creates no splash whatever among his fellows. But that figure was once a goal, when writing was strictly a writing game, and syndication unknown, that few achieved.

I know but two who attained that mark and it was accomplished, of course, by outside writing along with the regular chore. Irvin Cobb, I believe, obtained it just before he quit Park row to write solely for the magazines. So did Bert Terhune.

This is a tip-top way to start an argument. A man who knows much of feminine beauty from an artistic standpoint writes: "The most beautiful women in the United States are in Los Angeles, Houston and Salt Lake City. The better dressed women are in Washington, D. C."

Flo Ziegfeld, when reigning supreme as a beauty picker, would always see girls from the State of Texas, the cities of San Francisco and Portland. Three of his great beauties—who they were escapes me—came from those localities.

Oh, yes, Jessie Reed came from Texas.

Obvious cartoon idea should President Roosevelt be defeated: A dejected drawing of him under the caption: "The Forgotten Man!"

Thingumabobs: K. C. B.'s daughter Betsy is writing a New York theatrical column for Hollywood . . . Frank Menke, sports authority, was once the tiddledewink champion of his county . . . David Belasco had $3 in assets when he signed Mrs. Leslie Carter and started his fortune . . . William Gillette has told friends he expects to revive "Sherlock Holmes" at 90 . . . Bob Wagner is Charlie Chaplin's best friend and severest critic . . . David Sarnoff, next to Will Hays, is New York's most prodigious telephone user.

One of those sartorially unblemished silver-haired Tories swung jauntily out of the Racquet Club entrance this evening. A huge cane, shockingly flamboyant, purred up to him with precise timing. He stepped in and shot away. And Lois Long, noting it all from the sidelines, exclaimed: "That's the trouble with this country—everything going Communistic."

Isn't It So—

There was more horse sense on the highways now filled with autos. But the horse cannot transfer it where it is needed today.

A good husband makes a good wife, and a good wife makes a good husband. It works either way.

Phar Lap Human Side of the News By Edwin C. Hill

His name was Wink of the Skies and he died in California on April 5, 1932. He was a racehorse, and the world knew him as Phar Lap, which is the Maori for the English name we gave in the first sentence.

I saw him once at Belmont Park after that, a great red thoroughbred but not the Phar Lap of the flesh.

It was the Phar Lap of the taxidermist's art. They mounted him and had brought him East before returning the mummy to Australia.

There was a mystery in the death of Phar Lap, and that mystery has not been settled yet. In fact, it is being made the basis of a new study for which the famous Australian doctor, Sir Colin Mackenzie, and Lady Mackenzie, also a doctor, are on their way to California.

They left Australia last week, and with Dr. Herbert Evans of the University of California, are to conduct a scientific inquiry into the end of the Wink of the Skies.

"Big Red" they used to call our Man O' War, which to my mind and to that of many others was the greatest racehorse that ever faced a barrier. Phar Lap was not unlike him in appearance and not far behind him in action—perhaps the Australians will say that he was never behind him.

A GREAT HORSE

A feeling of skepticism was predominant in the American turf world on Aug. 20, 1932, when Phar Lap went to the post in the great Agua Caliente Handicap, one mile and a quarter with a purse of $50,000.

The six-year-old gelding had made a record in the land down under. He had won 36 out of 50 starts in his four years of racing and had been unplaced only nine times. In purses and prizes he had earned $282,700 for David J. Davis, his owner, who had bought him for a trifling sum.

As a general rule, horses do not show their best after an ocean trip. A few years before Phar Lap's arrival France had sent over Epinard, her champion, and he failed to show to advantage.

The comment about Epinard in the sporting columns was anything but sportsmanlike, especially when one took time to consider that our own American breeds do not fare as well when they are sent over for the English classics.

Phar Lap proved the exception, and the right to be classed as a great horse. He picked up his import of 129 pounds, top weight, and went on to win the $50,000, which brought his total up to $332,700, making his winnings second only to those of Sun Beau, the American horse, which in four years of racing rolled up $376,744. Sixteen days after the race Phar Lap was dead.

A BELATED INQUIRY

They had taken him up to a farm at Palo Alto and turned him loose to graze with a few stablemates. The theory is that he ate some poison, sprinkled on the grass or shrubs as a pest killer. In any event, the red terror was stricken whereas no other of the horses grazing with him was affected. There was talk at that time of a deliberate plot to kill the horse.

F. N. Chisholm, investigating for the Department of Agriculture, found in some tree leaves on the ranch traces of arsenate of lead which farmers use for spraying.

The deduction from his report was that Phar Lap had eaten of the leaves or of the grass under trees from which some of the spray had fallen. Davis, owner of the horse, said:

"I cannot conceive any fiend who might have been vicious enough to poison Phar Lap. But I have never heard of a horse dying of colic in just the way Phar Lap died.

"There is a chance that he may have been poisoned accidentally, and if that is the case we want to know about it."

The actual cause of death was not determined definitely. Hence the visit of Sir Colin Mackenzie. Phar Lap lives in the record book of the turf, and the 14-pound heart of Wink of the Skies rests in the Institute of Anatomy in Canberra.

"Dear Govt." By Winston Norman

Mr. Senator Black,
Investigater
U. S. Congress
DEAR SENATOR BLACK:

Excuse me for writeing you this letter, Senator Black. I know your Investagating Comittee is very busy reading everybody else's mail & Telegrams, so maybe you won't have no time to read my mail of your own.

My Next Door Neighbor told me why your Comittee was so busy at snooping. He says you wanted to find out if Private Slitzens was guilty of politics, such as trying to make Congress do the things they got elected for. "When a Senate Comittee starts to look for Politics, it is just like Monkeys in the Zoo," he says to me.

"Why is it?" I says to him.

"Because Monkeys like to hunt for Cootys on each other," says my Neighbor, "but the Monkey that is hunting the Cootys always tries to look like he don't have none of his own."

I didn't see the connection, Senator Black, because in the first place the Senate is looking for politics instead of cootys, and in the second place a Monkey don't get $10,000 per year, and he could not read somebody else's mail, even if he got ahold of it by mistake.

But my Neighbor says it wasn't no mistake when your committee snooped in the mail, Senator Black. He says they use to give a man 25 years in jail for them kind of tricks, but nowadays they give him 6 years in the U. S. Senate instead.

My Neighbor was excited, he claim your committee was killing off free speech in the U. S. A. "Tush," I says to him, "Senator Black don't have nothing against free speech, as long as folks don't write it down on paper."

Senator Black, us Democrats wants people to talk all the free speech they can, because that is the only way we will find out who is for Mr. Roosevelt and who is against him.

So then all we got to do is re-elect Mr. Roosevelt, and the folks that was against him don't dare to use no free speech except the kind that is spoke in a whisper.

Yours truly,
W. NORMAN

Today's Text: "The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart."—Psalms 19:8. Suggested by the Rev. Dr. J. F. Hivale, Bombay, India, officiating in Boston.

Listen, World! By Elsie Robinson

Now Saturday had come—the darkest Saturday the earth had ever known.

Shame—like a vulture, brooding over Calvary where yesterday the dreadful Cross had stood.

Fear—like a jackal, slinging down the street where yesterday the howling mob had surged.

And — in a room alone—a woman, sobbing out her heart. Her boy was dead!

ANGUISH LIVES ON

But now Her poor heart mourned no Son of God—only the Babe She's nursed once at Her breast. Only the tiny Boy whose step She'd led. ONLY—LONG WAIL ON WAIL—ONLY THE PRECIOUS SON THEY'D CRUCIFIED!

Alone—apart—pierced by the deepest pain our flesh can know—poor Mary sobbed Her heart out for Her Boy.

So many years since that black Saturday! Yet still that Mother's anguish is as fresh as though Her tears fell soft on our own hands.

FOR HEARTBREAK NEVER AGES, NEVER HEALS. AND WE WHO WEEP FOR OUR LOST LOVES TODAY — FOR MATE OR MOTHER, FATHER, DAUGHTER, SON—ARE ONE WITH MARY, WEEPING FOR HER CHILD.

Death binds us close as life can never bind. The grave holds both the living and the dead.

* * *

Yet can the tomb hold any living soul? Or is the grave dug by our human fear?

And do our loved ones wake as radiantly as Jesus waked and walked that Easter morn? And can we know this—if we but BELIEVE?

Christ dead? But just before the mob came He had said—

"Let not your heart be troubled . . . in My Father's house are many mansions."

So many mansions! Not one form of life alone, but many houses in which Life may bide. Millions of forms upon this earth—forms which we see and touch each day we live—flower and fish, man and winged bird.

THE WORD OF GOD

Not just one body for the growing soul, but new, bright bodies countless as the stars, in which freed souls may walk, relieved from pain.

"Let not your heart be troubled. I go . . . and I will come again."

So He had promised. So on Easter morn He came! Arose and walked—that every man might know that death is but a stupid, man-made fear, and Life cannot be bound by any fear.

So, shining in the garden, Mary found Her Boy—the Boy they'd lowered, broken, from the Cross.

So, in some garden, you will some day find the little girl you laid within the grave . . . the mate they wrenched from you in agony . . . the mother whose death left you desolate . . . the son or father whom you think you've lost.

For there are many mansions in God's plan. So many houses in the spirit's trail! And do you think that God would make a soul, flaming with His own grace and mystery—then let that soul be eaten by the worm?

No; death is but the turning of the trail—

AND ROUND THE TURN IN SOME NEW MORNING THEY ARE SAFE.
